6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

7. Approve Remuneration Policy for the Management Board
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

13. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report. However, it is clear from Company reporting that adequate measures have been taken in order to address shareholder dissent. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

14. Approve the Pearson plc Save for Shares Plan

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Company's Save for Shares Plan. Under the plan any person who is an employee or Executive Director (who devotes at least 25 hours each week to their duties) of any constituent company and has been employed for a minimum period, or any other director or employee of any constituent company who is nominated by the Board will be eligible to participate in the Plan. The maximum contribution which an optionholder may make under all savings contracts linked to options will be £500 per month, or local currency equivalent (or such other amount as may be permitted from time to time by HMRC). The Board may impose a lower savings limit. n any 10 year period, the Board may not grant awards under the Plan if such grant would cause the number of shares that could be issued under any employees' share scheme adopted by the company or any constituent company to exceed 10% of the company's ordinary share capital at the proposed date of grant. The satisfaction of awards with treasury shares will be treated as an issue of shares for the purpose of the limit for so long as institutional shareholder guidelines recommend this. An optionholder who ceases to be an employee in certain circumstances (including due to injury, disability, redundancy, retirement, following a change in control of the employing company, transfer of the employing business, or following three years after grant date) may exercise an option within the period of six months following such cessation. If an optionholder dies, an option may be exercised by their personal representatives during the period of one year following the date of death or the bonus date, in the event that their death was within six months after the bonus date. If an optionholder ceases to be an employee or director of a constituent company for any other reason, their option will lapse.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

15. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as auditors of the company

EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

19. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

SINGAPORE TECHNOLOGIES ENGR AGM - 26-04-2024

3. Elect Lim Chin Hu - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

12. Approve Related Party Transaction
Approval is sought for the Interested Person Transaction (IPT Mandate) to facilitate transactions in the normal course of business among the Company, its subsidiaries or affiliate companies, directors, chief executive officer(s), controlling shareholders of the Company and their respective associates and relatives. Whilst it is stated that procedures are in place to ensure the transactions are conducted at arm's length basis, such general authorities are not supported, as they do not allow thorough assessment of proposals from shareholders. Specific details relating to specific transactions should be provided to shareholders for thorough assessment.

7. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 14.30% of audit fees during the year under review and 15.46% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

19. Resolution on a long-term incentive program (LTI 2024)
It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the approximately 350 senior executives, including the CEO will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The maximum number of Sandvik shares that can be allocated pursuant to LTI 2024 is 2.0 million shares, which corresponds to approximately 0.16 percent of the number of outstanding shares in Sandvik. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

5. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

VIVENDI SE AGM - 29-04-2024

1. Approve Parent Company Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

7. Approval of the components of compensation and benefits of all kind paid during or allocated for 2023 to Arnaud de Puyfontaine, Chairman of the Management Board

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Arnaud de Puyfontaine, Chairman of the Management Board with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.5,

8. Approval of the components of compensation and benefits of all kind paid during or allocated for 2023 to Frédéric Crépin, member of the Management Board

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Frédéric Crépin, member of the Management Board with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. 15. Approval of the compensation policy for members of the Management Board for 2024
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for members of the Management Board for 2024. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 75.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 24.7,

16. Renewal of the term of office of Yannick Bolloré as a member of the Supervisory Board
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he is the son of Vincent Bolloré, CEO and Chair at Group Bolloré, which holds a significant percentage of the Company's issued share capital. In addition, he is the brother of Cyrille Bolloré, Non-Executive Director of the Company. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.
As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability, an overall vote to oppose is recommended.

21. Authorization granted to the Management Board for the purchase by the company of its own shares within the limit of 10% of the company's share capital
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

23. Delegation of authority granted to the Management Board to increase the share capital of the company in favor of employees and retirees who are members of the Vivendi Group Employee Stock Purchase Plan with cancellation of shareholders' preferential subscription rights
Authority for a capital increase for up to 1% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

GRUPO FINANCIERO BANORTE SA AGM - 29-04-2024

10. Elect Carlos Hank Gonzalez - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he served previously as Chief Executive Officer of the Company. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Elect Juan Antonio Gonzalez Moreno - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent as he is Chair & CEO of Gruma, a company that develop social and cultural projects with the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Elect Jose Marcos Ramirez Miguel - Chief Executive
Chief Executive Officer. Member of the Nomination Committee. It is considered best practice that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by the CEO raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Elect Carlos de la Isla Corry - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. He held executive positions within the Hermes Group, held by the Hank family, a significant shareholder via Gruma. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

16. Elect Clemente Ismael Reyes Retana Valdes - Non-Executive Director

37. Approve Directors Liability and Indemnification
It is proposed to extend the insurance cover to the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies. The insurance policy covers the civil liability (and related legal and advisory expenses) of the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies versus third parties, deriving from non-fraudulent conduct in breach of the obligations deriving from the law or intrinsic to their duties. In addition, the insurance does not explicitly exclude that it would cover also liabilities arising from fraudulent conduct, and fines handed down by the supervisory authorities. On this basis, shareholders would pay wilful violations and fraudulent conduct led by directors and executives. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

38. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting. Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

39. Elect Audit Committee Chair: Thomas Stanley Rodriguez
Non-Executive Director, chair of the audit committee. Not considered to be independent. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the audit committee should only comprise independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

41. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

DNB BANK ASA AGM - 29-04-2024

6A. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

6B. Authorise Share Repurchase and Establishment of an Agreed Pledge on Shares to Meet DNB Market's need for Hedging
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As a clear justification was provided by the Board, relating to the company's need for hedging of derivatives and other financial instruments, a vote in support is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.4,

14. Shareholder Resolution: European Shareholder Proposal
Proponent's argument: Roald Skjoldheim, a shareholder of the Company, requests that the Company should not finance wind power projects and the purchase of electric vehicles, as this will contribute most effectively to protecting the planet; should give depositors a monthly payout of accrued interest, as there is no valid reason for DNB not to distribute interest monthly when other banks already do so and should offer to exchange Bitcoin for cash, as it would be a competitive advantage for DNB to be the first bank to provide this service in the Nordic region.
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal.
PIRC analysis: Fossil fuels financing is risky, with records of several human rights and environmental violations and returns that can pay out only years after the initial expensive investment. On the contrary, financing the energy transition could be indeed an opportunity especially for banks, as the size of a greener economy is directly related to the availability of financing for those projects. It is considered to be in the best interest fo shareholders to shift financing towards more renewable solutions. Additionally, the proponent puts forwards multiple shareholder resolution in a bundle, it would be best practice for there to be individual proposals with clear and just reasoning for the request, which is not provided. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

JARDINE CYCLE & CARRIAGE LTD AGM - 29-04-2024

6. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 26.89% of audit fees during the year under review and 19.63% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7.A. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is limited to 50% of the share capital on a pro-rata basis and no more than 20% can be issued without pre-emptive rights. The mandate expires at the next Annual General Meeting. However, a limit exceeding 10% of shares issued without pre-emptive rights is deemed unacceptable. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7.B. Authorise Share Purchase Mandate
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7.C. Approve Interested Person Transaction Mandate
Approval is sought for the Interested Person Transaction (IPT Mandate) to facilitate transactions in the normal course of business among the Company, its subsidiaries or affiliate companies, directors, chief executive officer(s), controlling shareholders of the Company and their respective associates and relatives. Whilst it is stated that procedures are in place to ensure the transactions are conducted at arm's length basis, such general authorities are not supported, as they do not allow thorough assessment of proposals from shareholders. Specific details relating to specific transactions should be provided to shareholders for thorough assessment.

1.03. Elect Paul D. Donahue - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

1.04. Elect Gary P. Fayard - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

1.05. Elect P. Russell Hardin - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination and ESG Committee. Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Furthermore, as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, among other concerns, overall an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 90.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 9.4,

1.06. Elect John R. Holder - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 3.7,

1.08. Elect John D. Johns - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Furthermore, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Non-executive Director and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 5.8,

1.11. Elect Wendy B. Needham - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.8,

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 91.5, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 8.2,

3. Approval of Amendment to the 2015 Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the amendment of their 2015 long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria:
The Company are asking shareholders to approve an amendment to the Genuine Parts Company Amended and Restated 2015 Incentive Plan (the "2015 Plan") to extend its term for an additional ten-year period. As of February 12, 2024, there were 6,000,000 shares of common stock reserved and available for future awards under the 2015 Plan (after giving effect to the February 12, 2024, plan amendments which reduced the number of shares available for future awards from 6,591,440 to 6,000,000). As of such date, there were approximately 1,118,071 shares of common stock subject to outstanding awards under the 2015 Plan, and approximately 52,750 shares of common stock subject to outstanding awards under the Genuine Parts Company 2006 Long-Term Incentive Plan.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.5, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 3.2,

4. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 25.61% of audit fees during the year under review and 29.05% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

ANGLO AMERICAN PLC AGM - 30-04-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.
Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.7, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 1.1,

4. Re-elect Stuart Chambers - Chair (Non Executive)

8. Re-elect Ian Ashby - Non-Executive Director
Independent non-executive director and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability.

13. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as auditor of the Company
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.70% of audit fees during the year under review and 6.74% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.0,

15. Approve the Remuneration Report

Dividend accrual has been separately categorised which is welcome. Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The total combined variable reward paid during the year falls below the 200% recommended threshold and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

7. Approve the Remuneration Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy of Corporate Officers. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

11. Approve Remuneration Policy for Executive Chairman
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. 13. Re-elect Matthieu Dumas - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the CAG-CSR Committee. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. Not considered to be independent as he is a member of the family controlling shareholder: the companies H2 SAS, SAS Pollux & Consorts, SC Flèches, SC Falaises, Jakyval SA and SC Axam are mainly held by the Hermès' family. With, Mrs. Guerrand (via Jakyval SA) and Dumas, Hermès Family holds together the controlling share percentage of the issued share capital and voting rights. It is considered that all Board-level committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. 9. Approve Climate Roadmap 2040
Governance
There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.

The company has committed to net zero by 2050 but this commitment only extends to part of its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. This is considered to be inconsistent with an adequate commitment to a full energy transition, as shareholders are unable to make an informed assessment on the material efforts to reduce emissions and increase the resilience of the company in the long term.
There is no evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board or senior management of climate-related issues, most relevantly decarbonization.

26. Approve Directors and Officers Liability
It is proposed to extend the insurance cover to the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies. The insurance policy covers the civil liability (and related legal and advisory expenses) of the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies versus third parties, deriving from non-fraudulent conduct in breach of the obligations deriving from the law or intrinsic to their duties. In addition, the insurance does not explicitly exclude that it would cover also liabilities arising from fraudulent conduct, and fines handed down by the supervisory authorities. On this basis, shareholders would pay wilful violations and fraudulent conduct led by directors and executives. Opposition is thus recommended.

VICI PROPERTIES, INC AGM - 30-04-2024

1d. Elect Elizabeth I. Holland - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and chair of the Nomination and Governance committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Additionally, as the Chair of the Nomination and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.9,

2. To Ratify the appointment of Deloitte & Touche LLP as the independent registered public accounting firm for 2024
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.62% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

1d. Re-elect Theodore F. Craver, Jr. - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. On 25 August 2023, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) charged the company USD 35 million for overcharging more than 10,900 advisory accounts in excess of USD 26.8 million. Wells Fargo also paid affected parties USD 40 million including interest as compensation. The SEC reported in a press release that "certain financial advisers from Wells Fargo and its predecessor firms agreed to reduce the firms' standard, pre-set advisory fees for certain clients and made handwritten or typed changes on the clients' investment advisory agreements that reflected the reduced fees at the time their accounts were opened." However, it was found by the SEC that the reduced fees were not entered into the billing systems when establishing accounts. This resulted in certain clients being overcharged and inaccurate data in its billing system.
During the year under review, litigation against the company has reached an unfavourable verdict and there are concerns over how this could financially or reputationally impact the company. As such, it is not clear that the Audit Committee has performed adequate risk oversight to prevent this issue from leading to damaging legal action. Therefore, opposition is recommended to the election of the Chair of the Audit Committee.

1l. Re-elect Charles W. Scharf - Chief Executive
Chief Executive. On 21 September 2023, U.S. federal judge allowed U.S. cities to rally claims against eight large banks (Morgan Stanley, Bank of America Corp, Barclays, Citigroup Inc, Goldman Sachs, Wells Fargo, Royal Bank of Canada, and JP Morgan) over claims of driving up interest rates on a municipal bond. The banks were accused of colluding to raise the rates on over 12,000 VRDOs (Variable-rate demand obligations) between 2008 and 2016. The cases brought by cities led by Philadelphia, Baltimore and San Diego accused the banks of reducing available funding for infrastructure and public sector services, resulting in damages amounting to billions of dollars.

During the year under review, the company has received at fine due to anti-competitive practices. While the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the CEO, who is considered to be accountable for these matters.

4. Amend Articles: Approval of an amendment to the Restated Certificate of Incorporation to opt out of Delaware General Corporation Law Section 203
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.3, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 5.3,

13. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Risks of Politicized De-Banking
Proponent's argument: American Conservative Values ETF, a shareholder of the Company, requests that the Board conduct an evaluation and issue a report within the next year, at reasonable cost and excluding proprietary information and disclosure of anything that would constitute an admission of pending litigation, evaluating how it oversees risks related to discrimination against individuals based on their race, color, religion (including religious views), sex, national origin, or political views, and whether such discrimination may impact individuals' exercise of their constitutionally protected civil rights. "Financial institutions are essential pillars of the marketplace. On account of their unique and pivotal role in America's economy, many federal and state laws already prohibit them from discriminating against customers. And the UN Declaration of Human Rights recognizes that everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience, and religion. These are an important part of protecting every American's right to free speech and free exercise of religion. As shareholders of Wells Fargo, we believe it is essential for the company to provide financial services on an equal basis without regard to factors such as race, color, religion, sex, national origin, or social, political, or religious views.We are concerned with recent evidence of religious and political discrimination against customers by companies in the financial services industry, as seen in recent examples and the 2022 Statement on Debanking and Free Speech."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Our Board, directly and through its committees, oversees our culture and ethics, social and public responsibility, and anti-discrimination matters. For certain matters, the Board receives reporting directly, rather than through its committees. The HRC, which is comprised entirely of members with human capital management skills and expertise, oversees DE&I matters and periodically reviews our Code of Conduct as well as management's efforts to foster responsible conduct and ethical behaviour and decision-making throughout Wells Fargo. The CRC oversees significant strategies, policies, and programs on social and public responsibility matters and monitors the state of Wells Fargo's relationships and enterprise reputation with external stakeholders on such matters. All of the members of the CRC have experience in environmental and social matters as well as government and public policy matters. We engaged with the proponent after receipt of this proposal. We are committed to maintaining the trust of our customers and following the laws, rules, and regulations that apply to our business, including with respect to the avoidance of discrimination based on protected characteristics. The Code of Conduct, which is publicly available on our website, provides employees with principles designed to help guide their conduct with clients, customers, and others who conduct business with Wells Fargo. The Code of Conduct strictly prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, ethnicity, age, gender, or other protected characteristics. The Code of Conduct also reinforces our respect for the right to participate in the political process and to support the candidates, parties, or initiatives of one's choice. The Code of Conduct applies to all employees, including executive officers, and in some cases, our Board."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company's policy on discrimination related risks allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company; including stakeholder relationship. However; this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides customers with access to a variety of viewpoints; including books that some customers may find objectionable; does not mean that all viewpoints should be acceptable or that customers should be able to donate via company's programme to any organisation of their choice. This resolution has been filed as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's workforce diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented in the workforce as well as so-called liberal perspectives. The requested report is too one-sided to provide any real benefit to shareholders. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

1.2. Elect Charles L. Harrington - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

A.2. Approve Consolidated Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

A.5. Discharge the Board
Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

A.6. Elect Board: Slate Election
Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 81.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 18.9,

A.8. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

A.9. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

GRUPO MEXICO SAB DE CV AGM - 30-04-2024

1. Approve Financial Statements
At this time, the financial statements have not been made available. Although not uncommon in this market, it is considered a serious reporting omission.
Additionally, despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Report on Compliance with Fiscal Obligations
The report was not made available sufficiently before the meeting. Opposition is recommended, as this is considered a serious reporting omission.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approve Allocation of Income
At this time, the proposal has not been disclosed. An abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

4. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Discharge the Board of Directors, Executive Chair and Board Committees
There is insufficient disclosure of meeting materials in a timely manner to provide an informed vote. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. An adequate break-down of the nature of non-audit fees is not provided, which makes the assessment of auditor's independence based on the non-audit fee impossible. The date of appointment of the auditor is not disclosed, meaning that there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors and Committees
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

22. Amend Articles: Amend Age Limit for the Chair
It is proposed to increase the age limit for the chair of the board. Although age per se is not considered a factor that should discriminate the re-election of directors on the board, it is considered that the company should activate its succession plan, instead of amending the articles ad hoc, in order to accommodate the increasing age of the chair. Opposition is recommended.

EXELON CORPORATION AGM - 30-04-2024

1b. Elect Calvin G. Butler Jr - Chief Executive
Chief Executive.

the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

1c. Elect Marjorie Rodgers Cheshire - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.8, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 1.0,

1i. Elect John F. Young - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as Mr. Young was previously employed by the Company as Chief Financial Officer between 2005 and 2008. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, as the Company does not have a Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme.

2. Ratification of PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Exelon's Independent Auditor for 2024
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 19.11% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.33% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

THE WILLIAMS COMPANIES INC. AGM - 30-04-2024

1.04. Re-elect Stacey H. Dore - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Governance and Sustainability Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice. Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

4. Amend Articles: (Limit Liability of Certain Officers as Permitted by Law)
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

2. Restricted Stock and Deferred Compensation Plan for Non-Employee Directors
The Company is seeking shareholder approval of the Amended and Restated PACCAR Inc Restricted Stock and Deferred Compensation Plan for Non-Employee Directors (the Plan). The Plan was approved by the stockholders in 2014. As of December 31, 2023, there are 945,936 shares of PACCAR common stock available for new awards of the 1,645,312 shares previously authorized for issuance under the Plan. Each non-employee director receives a grant of restricted stock or restricted stock units annually in addition to their cash compensation. There are currently nine non-employee directors. The number of shares or units granted equals the number of shares of common stock that the "Base Amount" (USD 165,000) could have purchased at the Fair Market Value on the grant date, however this is at the discretion of the committee.
There are the following concerns with this Plan: In the event of a change in control all restricted stock will become unrestricted; the Board of Directors or the Nominating and Governance Committee may amend or terminate the Plan at any time; and, this plan has only time-based vesting and no performance criteria attached. Overall, opposition is recommended.

5. Approval of the information relating to the compensation of Executive Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 81.8, Abstain: 1.1, Oppose/Withhold: 17.2,

6. Approve the Remuneration of Chair and Chief Executive Officer, Francesco Milleri
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy for the Chair and CEO. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. 9. Approval of the compensation policy applicable to the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration and absence of quantified targets.

11. Elect Francesco Milleri
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
During the year under review, the company has been fined for misleading advertisement, and while the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, there are concerns about the reputational and legal implications of this on the company. On 1 August 2023, the eyewear chain Lenscrafters settled in Court over claims of misleading consumers regarding the benefits of Accufit technology. The lawsuit alleged that the technology was promoted by the Company as being five times more precise than any other measurement method. However, this claim was refuted by consumers who alleged that they were misled by the Company to overpay for a technology that did not deliver promises of clearer vision. Owing to this, it is recommended to oppose the Chair and CEO.

26. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
Proposed authority to issue up to 10% of the share capital to be used in exchanges in times of public offer initiated by the Company. At this time, the Company has not disclosed specific plans to future exchange offers. As the proposed authority exceeds guidelines, and in absence of specific reasons, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.3,

27. Approve Issue of Shares for Private Placement
The Board requests authority to approve a global authority for the issue of capital related securities without pre-emptive rights by private placement. The authorisation is valid up to 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 26 months. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 3.6,

28. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

UNIBAIL-RODAMCO-WESTFIELD AGM - 30-04-2024

6. Approve Compensation of Mr Jean-Marie Tritant, Chair of the Management Board
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Mr Jean-Marie Tritant, with an advisory vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

26. Approve New Executive Share Option Scheme/Plan
It is proposed a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

SANDOZ GROUP AG AGM - 30-04-2024

1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Additionally, the company has disclosed a modern slavery statement but has not clarified whether a statement will be published in the future. The statement does not appear to be approved by the board of directors. It includes a clear date of approval and the name of the director responsible for it is clearly indicated. The statement reports the title of the director that has signed that off. There is a visible signature of the director responsible. However, the statement does not appear to be up to date.The statement is available at a link, which is working, is available on the homepage and is easy to find. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

13. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as auditors of the Company

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.24% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.61% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

Proponent's argument: Gary Perinar has submitted the following proposal: That the shareholders of PepsiCo, Inc. ("Company") hereby request that the board of directors take the necessary action to adopt a director election resignation bylaw that requires each director nominee to submit an irrevocable conditional resignation to the Company to be effective upon the director's failure to receive the required shareholder majority vote support in an uncontested election. "The proposed resignation bylaw shall require the Board to accept a tendered resignation absent the finding of a compelling reason or reasons to not accept the resignation. Further, if the Board does not accept a tendered resignation and the director remains as a "holdover" director, the resignation bylaw shall stipulate that should a "holdover" director fail to be re-elected at the next annual election of directors, that director's new tendered resignation will be automatically effective 30 days after the certification of the election vote. The Board shall report the reasons for its actions to accept or reject a tendered resignation in a Form 8-K filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. The Proposal requests that the Board establish a director resignation bylaw to enhance director accountability. The Company has established in its bylaws a majority vote standard for use in an uncontested director election, an election in which the number of nominees equal the number of open board seats. A Company governance policy currently addresses the continued status of an incumbent director who fails to be re-elected by requiring such director to tender his or her resignation for Board consideration. The new director resignation bylaw will set a more demanding standard of review for addressing director resignations then that contained in the Company's resignation governance policy."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Board believes the existing director resignation policy contained in PepsiCo's Corporate Governance Guidelines already provides meaningful consequences when a director fails to receive a majority vote and effectively addresses the underlying concerns of the proposal. Since PepsiCo first adopted its current majority vote and director resignation policy, no director has failed to receive support from a majority of the votes cast. Indeed, as a testament to the caliber of our director slate and the Board's careful consideration of its nominees, our shareholders elected all members of our Board of Directors by votes greater than 91% of the votes cast in the last ten years. PepsiCo's current director resignation policy already provides for an effective process for securing and acting on an irrevocable resignation offer from a director who fails to receive a majority shareholder vote. The Board values the input of our shareholders and believes that it is essential for shareholders to have a critical role in the election of directors. As described in the "Director Election Requirements and Majority-Vote Policy" section of this Proxy Statement on page 12, all members of PepsiCo's Board are elected annually by our shareholders by a majority of the votes cast in an uncontested election, meaning that the number of votes cast "for" a director must exceed the number of votes cast "against" that director in order to elect the director to the Board. If a director nominee in an uncontested election who is an incumbent director receives more votes "against" than votes "for" election, our director resignation policy set forth in PepsiCo's Corporate Governance Guidelines provides that he or she must make an irrevocable resignation offer to the Board."
PIRC analysis: While holdover directors can provide continuity and stability during periods of transition; prolonged periods without new leadership can sometimes lead to uncertainty or operational challenges. It is considered that holdover directors who fail to be re-elected should be required to resign and the Company should disclose the review process for resignations. Holdover directors are not aligned with best corporate governance best practice as they are considered to have the potential to entrench underperforming management and hinder board rotation as well as shareholder engagement. As such; an oppose vote is recommended.

11. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Risks Created by the Company's Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Efforts
Proponent's argument: National Center for Public Policy Research has submitted the following proposal: Report to Shareholders on Risks Created by the Company's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Efforts. "Shareholders ask that the board commission and publish a report on (1) whether the Company engages in any practices associated with diversity, equity, and inclusion initiatives that may create risks of discriminating illegally on bases such as race and sex, thereby potentially triggering justice-seeking responses from stakeholders of the company (including employees, suppliers, contractors, and retained professionals), and (2) the potential costs of such discrimination to the business. In just the past year, a corporation was successfully sued for a single case of discrimination against a white employee resulting in an award of more than $25 million. The risk of being sued for such discrimination appears only to be rising. With over 300,000 employees,10 PepsiCo likely has at least 225,000 employees who are potentially the victims of this type of illegal discrimination because they are white, Asian, male, or straight. Accordingly, even if only 10 percent of such employees were to file suit, and only 10 percent of those prove successful, the cost to the company could exceed USD 56 billion.
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "As it relates to our U.S.-focused DEI efforts, we execute this strategy in a manner that is consistent with our status as an Equal Employment Opportunity Employer and it is our Company policy to achieve our DEI goals in a manner consistent with applicable laws. To maintain transparency and accountability, we voluntarily report on our DEI strategies and metrics, including but not limited to publicly disclosing our annual U.S. Consolidated EEO-1 report as submitted to the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. As one of the largest food and beverage companies in the world, PepsiCo does business in hundreds of markets, each with their own culture, character, and history. To compete on this scale, we must understand the unique needs of local consumers and put them at the center of everything we do, from our products and campaigns to our partnerships and innovations. That's why Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion is a core component of how we work, giving us a competitive advantage and serving as the foundation of a winning mentality within our company. This includes embracing the diversity of all our associates, while we strive to create an inclusive and equitable environment within our organization, across our value chain, and in the communities we serve. We believe that is not only the right thing to do for our society, but also critical to the long-term success of our business.".
PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

1.10. Elect Maria Elena Lagomasino - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director, Chair of the Corporate Governance and Sustainability Committee and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of more than nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee and Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. It is noted that previously Ms. Lagomasino served as a director from 2003 to 2006, before re-joining the Board in October 2008. Additionally, not considered independent as the director has a cross directorship with another director. Both Ms Lagomasino and Carolyn Everson serve on the Board of Directors of the Walt Disney Company. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Corporate Governance committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Furthermore, As the Chair of the Corporate Governance and Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

3. Approve New 2024 Equity Plan
The Board proposes to approve the new 2024 Equity Plan. Subject to adjustments as provided in the 2024 Plan, the aggregate number of shares of Common Stock available for all awards under the 2024 Plan is 240,000,000 plus any shares of Common Stock that are returned to the 2024 Plan share reserve under its provisions allowing shares to be reused for new grants described below under the "Reuse of Shares" heading. The shares of Common Stock issuable under the 2024 Plan may be drawn from shares of our authorized but unissued Common Stock or authorized and issued shares of Common Stock reacquired and held as treasury shares or a combination thereof.
The 2024 Plan allows shares withheld or delivered to satisfy tax withholding requirements on Full-Value Awards (but not stock options or SARs) to be added back to the share reserve. In addition, the 2024 Plan allows that Full-Value Awards under the 2014 Plan and the 2024 Plan that are cancelled, terminate, expire, are forfeited or lapse for any reason, including by reason of failure to meet time-based vesting requirements or to achieve performance goals after the Effective Date, will be added back to the 2024 Plan share reserve. Shares subject to awards under the 2014 Plan or the 2024 Plan that are settled in cash will be added back to the 2024 Plan share reserve. Shares tendered or withheld to cover an exercise price of a stock option, shares not issued in connection with a stock settlement of a SAR, and shares repurchased on the open market with the proceeds of the exercise price of stock options will not be available for issuance under the 2024 Plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is minimum of 12 months and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. 6. Shareholder Resolution: Requesting a Report on Risks Created by the Company's Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Efforts Proponent's argument: National Center for Public Policy Research "ask that the board commission and publish a report on (1) whether the Company engages in any practices directly or indirectly associated with diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) initiatives that may create risks of discriminating against individuals who might sue the Company (including employees, suppliers, contractors, and retained professionals) for illegal discrimination on the basis of protected categories like race and sex, and (2) the potential costs of such discrimination to the business... The US Supreme Court ruled in SFFA v. Harvard on June 29, 2023, that discriminating on the basis of race in college admissions violates the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment... Recent analysis of American Fortune 100 hiring in the wake of the 2020 race riots found that whites were excluded from 94% of the hiring decisions, a statistic that itself provides prima facie proof of illegal discrimination on the basis of race by these companies, given that whites constitute 76% of the American population. It was reported in 2021 that Coca-Cola infamously instructed its employees to "be less white," and that to be less white means to be less "ignorant," "oppressive" and "arrogant," alongside a host of other false and discriminatory slurs. Ironically, this blatant racism was part of an employee training seminar titled "Confronting Racism." Today, the Company's DEI webpage reports that: "It is our aspiration by 2030 to have women hold 50% of senior leadership roles . . . and in the U.S. to have race and ethnicity representation reflect national census data at all levels."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Board believes that our employees, our investors and the broader stakeholder community understand and appreciate the positive impacts to our business from a proper focus on diversity, equity and inclusion. Our Company is committed to creating a better shared future for everyone that our brands and business system touch by working to provide access to equal opportunity both in our workplace and the communities we serve. Consistent with our policies, we prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex or gender, national origin, ancestry, age, mental or physical disability, medical condition, pregnancy, military or veteran status, genetic information, citizenship status, marital status, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or gender expression, or any other reason prohibited by law. The success of our business hinges on our capacity to attract, employ, cultivate, inspire and retain a highly competent and diverse workforce. Our success is also contingent on our ability to foster a culture that propels growth and aligns employees with the Company's mission. We believe that a diverse, equitable and inclusive workplace that is well-prepared to understand, assess and engage with the markets and consumers we serve is a strategic business priority and critical to the Company's success, and that our efforts to achieve this are consistent with applicable law. Ultimately, our policies and programs help to drive positive career outcomes across our employee base and our business."
PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. UNILEVER PLC AGM - 01-05-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report
Strategic report meets guidelines. Adequate employment and environmental policies are in place and relevant, up-to-date, quantified, environmental reporting is disclosed. The Company also disclosed the proportion of women on the Board, in Executive Management positions and within the whole organisation.
Despite having climate targets, the company does have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and but does not have an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short-term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.3, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Dividend accrual has been separately categorised which is welcome. Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report. However, it is clear from Company reporting that adequate measures have been taken in order to address shareholder dissent. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. A welcome addition to the LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. There is no mitigation statement included within the remuneration policy. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Say on Climate

It is proposed that shareholders should decide annually on a consultative basis on the Company's Climate Strategy Report. This Report will be consistent with the recommendations of the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD). It will also include the evolution of emissions of the different business activities, facilities and assets over which the company maintains control, and will indicate annual progress with respect to the Greenhouse Gas Emissions Reduction Plan. The report on the climate strategy will be submitted each year to the ordinary general meeting.

Given the severity of the climate crisis, it is considered that companies should rely to every measure possible must be taken by investee companies to facilitate a net zero carbon transition, as well as to include shareholders and stakeholders in this process. With this respect, the Say on Climate mechanism is an important step in improving the quality and level of the disclosures and the company's plans to reduce them in line with its commitments. An advisory vote on the company's climate strategy, as well as a vote on the progresses made towards achieving the goals sets therein, is considered to be in the long-term interests of shareholders. The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.

Disclosure

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

Despite having climate targets, the company does have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and but does not have an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. 14. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditor of the Company

KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 7.94% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

1.01. Elect Cotton M. Cleveland - Non-Executive Director

Chair of the Governance, Environmental and Social Responsibility Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Additionally, as the Chair of the Governance, Environmental and Social Responsibility is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. To amend and restate the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Coterra Energy Inc.
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the Company is amended to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significantly higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. A welcome addition to the LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 500% of salary, for US Executives over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of the peer comparator group(FTSE-350 Health Care). This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The total combined variable reward paid during the year falls below the 200% recommended threshold and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. 19. Approve New Executive Share Option Scheme/Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a Restricted Share Plan (RSP) for US Executive Directors. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.

LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

1. Receive the Annual Report
Disclosure is considered adequate and the report was made available sufficiently before the meeting. The financial statements have been audited and certified.
Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. A mitigation statement has been made which seeks to limit the amount of any payment or benefits provided to a Director upon leaving the Company should alternative employment be secured. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to 300% of basic salary for the Group CEO and 225% of basic salary for other executives, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

18. Appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditor of the Company
EY proposed as new auditor. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

22. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Any Issuance of SII Instruments
Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP150,000,000, representing approximately 16.27% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 13 March 2024, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness. It is noted that these SII instruments include Tier 1 instruments such as Equity Convertible Instruments or ECIs.
The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

15. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditor of the Company
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.06% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.84% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, as the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act, however, in the 2023 Annual general Meeting the resolution received significant opposition of 12.17% of the votes and the Company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. 3. Amend Articles: Delaware Law

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1f. Re-elect Russell P. Fradin - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating Committee.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

1h. Re-elect Pamela A. Joseph - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

Awards made under all schemes during the year are not considered excessive as they do not exceed 200% of base salary. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The total combined variable reward paid during the year falls below the 200% recommended threshold and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee falls below the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. 13. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as Auditor to the Company

EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

18. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 10% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

THE KRAFT HEINZ COMPANY AGM - 02-05-2024

1c. Elect John T. Cahill - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Vice-Chair of the Board, member of the Audit Committee and member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent the director served as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Kraft Foods Group from December 2014 to July 2015. Additionally, upon the closing of the 2015 Merger, he was selected to serve on the Board by Berkshire Hathaway. It is considered that the Audit Committee and the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. 1j. Elect Miguel Patricio - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as CEO until December 2023. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

1k. Elect John C. Pope - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and Chair of the Nomination Committee.Not considered independent as he has served on the Board of the Company and its predecessor for over nine years. The Director served on the board of Mondelēz International (former parent company) from July 2001 until the spin-off in October 2012. The Director also served on the Kraft board from August 2012 to July 2, 2015. Upon the closing of the 2015 Merger, he was selected to serve on the Board by Kraft. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, It is considered that audit committee and nomination committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Additionally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Greenhouse Gas Goals
Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research "request the Company produce a report analyzing the risks arising from voluntary carbon-reduction commitments... Shareholders must protect our assets against potentially unfulfillable Company ESG promises, including the extent to which the Company can reduce Scope 1, 2, and 3 greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has taken enforcement actions related to Environmental, Social, Governance (ESG) issues or statements by companies who misrepresent or engage in fraud related to ESG efforts... In August 2023, the Global Climate Intelligence Group asserted, "There is no climate emergency." The declaration includes 1,609 signatories and "oppose[s] the harmful and unrealistic net-zero CO2 policy proposed for 2050. A June 2023 study by the Energy Policy Research Foundation found that net zero advocates have misconstrued the International Energy Agency's position on new oil and gas investment and that it has made questionable assumptions and milestones for NZE about government policies, energy and carbon prices, behavioral changes, economic growth, and technology maturity. Kraft Heinz has voluntarily committed to halving GHG emissions by 2030 and being a net-zero company by 2050. This promise includes commensurate reductions in Scope 3 emissions, despite the fact the Company has no real control over Scope 3 emissions and has failed to report on its evaluation of the technological or financial feasibility of such commitments. Given the SEC's climate and ESG enforcement actions, the Company must exercise caution and provide transparency about such commitments."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "As a global company with a broad and diverse footprint, our Kraft Heinz ESG strategy is designed to prioritize the issues that matter most to the Company's business, our stockholders, and stakeholders, focusing on areas that have the greatest potential for impact. Our strategy includes three key pillars: Healthy Living & Community Support, Environmental Stewardship, and Responsible Sourcing. We have a variety of goals within each pillar that help guide us toward improving our environmental and social footprint. Climate change and topics directly related to climate change such as sustainable agriculture and sustainable packaging are some of our most critical ESG material topics. We prioritize our efforts and resources on these areas in an effort to drive lasting impact. Furthermore, we have engaged with many stockholders who share this priority... We conduct an annual assessment of our total value chain emissions, including verifying all three scope emissions by an independent third-party. We strive to be as transparent as possible in our GHG reporting and deploy internal and external resources to better understand our GHG footprint and improve data quality each year based on the best science available. Our current accounting is in line with the GHG Protocol, the leading international standard for corporate accounting and reporting emissions. We also seek to align our climate reporting with leading global frameworks such as the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI), the Taskforce for Climate-Related Financial Disclosures (TCFD) and the Sustainability Accounting Standards Board (SASB)...We believe that clearer information on our GHG footprint can help us make climate smart business decisions which in turn helps manage climate risk and can bring value for stockholders. Furthermore, the stockholder's request appears to directly contradict with impending climate legislation such as the EU Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (EU CSR-D)."
PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the achievement of greenhouse gas reduction goals appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's alignment with net zero, or emission reduction targets, and focuses on executive behaviour with the clear intent to ensure that views against what the filers describe as "risky and costly political-schedule decarbonization" are represented within the company's political activities, as opposed to promoting accountability around the potential benefits of decarbonization and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues, particularly the climate emergency, or avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is recommended.

4. Amend Articles: Amended and Restated Certificate of Incorporation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Church & Dwight CO. INC., is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

4. Renew Shareholder Rights Plan
The company is seeking shareholder approval of its Shareholder Rights Plan. The rights will entitle the holder to purchase additional common shares after the separation time. A permitted takeover bid is when the offerer agrees that no common shares will be taken up or paid for under the bid for at least 60 days following the commencement of the bid and that no shares will be taken up or paid for unless more than 50% of common stock held by shareholders have been deposited and are not withdrawn. The plan expires in three years.
It is recognised that rights plans can offer significant shareholder protection, but also that, due to the difficulty of demonstrating that a board has acted against its fiduciary responsibilities, there is a considerable risk of abuse. There is also the counter argument that shareholder rights plans are bad for businesses as they may prevent mergers and help to entrench under-performing management. It is also considered that rights plans should be subject to a shareholder vote subsequent to their being triggered by the board, in order to ensure that their use is accountable to shareholders. Based on these concerns with the proposal an oppose vote is recommended.

5. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan
The long-term incentive plan (as amended and restated) will incorporate the terms of the existing option plan, including reallocating (but not increasing) the common shares reserved for issuance under the option plan to the long-term incentive plan and to address the participation of U.S. participants who may be awarded options under the long-term incentive plan. When the amendments are approved, options will be issued only under the long-term incentive plan. LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

2.07. Elect Phillip R. Knoll - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as interim Co-CEO in 2018. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended. As abstention is not a valid voting option, opposition is recommended.

ITV PLC AGM - 02-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Dividend accrual has been separately categorised which is welcome. Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The total combined variable reward paid during the year falls below the 200% recommended threshold and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy
Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. The LTIP does not utilise non-financial metrics as a means of assessing performance. The absence of Non-financial parameters to assess Executives' long-term performance is considered contrary to best practice as such factors allow the remuneration policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole and the individual roles of each of the senior executives in achieving that performance. Financial parameters are generally beyond an individual director's control. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. A mitigation statement has been made which seeks to limit the amount of any payment or benefits provided to a Director upon leaving the Company should alternative employment be secured. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

9. Re-elect Andrew Cosslett - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 4.0,

16. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as auditor of the Company
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 34.21% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.75% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. 1.3. Re-elect N. Murray Edwards - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an abstain vote is recommended.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report. However, it is clear from Company reporting that adequate measures have been taken in order to address shareholder dissent. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). 14. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Contingent Convertible Securities

Authority to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of USD 1,905,105,226, representing approximately 20% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of CCSs. CCSs are debt securities which convert into ordinary shares in certain prescribed circumstances. They benefit from a specific regulatory capital treatment under European Union legislation. This authority is in addition to resolution 12 and will expire at next AGM. The Company explains that this resolution is a recurring resolution at its AGM and will be used to comply or maintain compliance with regulatory capital requirements or targets applicable to the Group. The terms of HSBC's existing CCSs have received regulatory approval from the Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA). The dilution involved for those shareholders not able to subscribe may significantly decrease their interest in the Bank. Dis-applying pre-emption rights may result in excessive dilution.

The use of CCSs are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CCSs are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

This resolution will give the Directors authority to allot CCSs, or shares issued upon conversion or exchange of CCSs, without the need to first offer them to existing shareholders. This will allow the Directors greater flexibility to manage the Company's capital in the most efficient and economical way for the benefit of shareholders. If passed, Resolution 15 will authorise the Directors to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into shares in the Company on a non-pre-emptive basis up to an aggregate nominal amount of USD 1,905,105,226 representing approximately 20% of the Company's issued share capital. Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Member of the Remuneration Committee and Chair of the Nomination Committee . The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally. at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. 4. Amend Articles: Delaware Law provisions Regarding Officer Exculpation

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

ILLINOIS TOOL WORKS INC. AGM - 03-05-2024

1i.. Elect Christopher A. O'Herlihy - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1f.. Elect Jay L. Henderson - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee which is also in charge of matters of Sustainability for the Company. Not considered independent as he serves on the Board of Northern Trust Corporation, a parent company of Northern Trust Company, that holds a significant amount of the outstanding share capital. In addition, Mr. Henderson is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor, PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, having retired as Vice Chair in June 2016. There has not been a significant cool-off period. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

1h.. Elect Richard H. Lenny - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director, Chair of the Remuneration Committee and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Overall an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.5, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 5.3,

1j. Elect E. Scott Santi - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he was the previous CEO and Chairman of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.8, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 3.1,

1k. Elect David B. Smith Jr. - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1l. Elect Pamela B. Strobel - Non-Executive Director

Chair of the Nomination Committee and member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of the Nomination Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Overall, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 90.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 9.4,

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADA. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.2, Abstain: 0.7, Oppose/Withhold: 6.1,

3. To approve the Illinois Tool Works Inc. 2024 Long-Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.6, Abstain: 1.3, Oppose/Withhold: 4.1,

4. Appoint the Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 8.52% of audit fees during the year under review and 8.71% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 3.4,

ABBVIE INC AGM - 03-05-2024

1a. Re-elect Roxanne S. Austin - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

1b. Re-elect Richard A. Gonzalez - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.1, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 7.4,

1e. Re-elect Glenn F. Tilton - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and Member of the Audit, Remuneration and Nomination Committees. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. It is considered that the Audit, Remuneration and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 91.9, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 7.9,

2. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 20.30% of audit fees during the year under review and 22.37% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

HENNES & MAURITZ AB (H&M) AGM - 03-05-2024

9A. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

Vote Cast: Abstain

12.2. Re-elect Anders Dahlvig - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.4. Re-elect Lena Patriksson Keller - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.5. Re-elect Karl-Johan Persson - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: the Persson family. Additionally he served as President and CEO of H&M Hennes & Mauritz AB during the period 1 July 2009 to 30 January 2020. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, as there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability. Overall, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.6. Re-elect Christian Sievert - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with Ramsbury Invest AB. Christian Sievert is CEO of a company majority owned by Ramsbury Invest AB, the controller of H&M. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.7. Re-elect Christina Synnergren - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with Ramsbury Invest AB. Christian Sievert is CEO of a company majority owned by Ramsbury Invest AB, the controller of H&M. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.9. Elect Karl-Johan Persson as Chair
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: the Persson family. Additionally he served as President and CEO of H&M Hennes & Mauritz AB during the period 1 July 2009 to 30 January 2020. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, as there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability. Overall, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to executives with an advisory vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, although there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

Vote Cast: Abstain

16. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9B2.1. Approve the Dividend Policy
At this time, the Company has not made available the dividend policy. Opposition is recommended as this is considered a serious reporting omission.

Vote Cast: Oppose

KLEPIERRE SA AGM - 03-05-2024

5. Appoint the Auditors: Deloitte & Associés
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.09% of audit fees during the year under review and 7.46% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Appoint the Auditors: Ernst & Young
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.09% of audit fees during the year under review and 7.46% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Elect David Simon - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he is the Chair and the CEO of Simon Property Group which holds a significant percentage of the Company's voting rights. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Elect John Anthony Carrafiell - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Elect Steven Fivel - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Nomination and Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent as he is General Counsel & Secretary at Simon Property Group, which owns a significant percentage of the Company's voting rights. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Approve Remuneration Policy of the Chair and Members of the Supervisory Board
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for the Chair and Members of the Supervisory with a binding vote. The Chair of the Board receives only fixed remuneration. However, Non-Executive Directors receive a variable component on top of their fees. It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees, as variable compensation may align them with short-term interests and not with long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Compensation Policy for the Chair of the Executive Board
It is proposed to approve the compensation policy for the Chair of the Executive Board. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve Compensation Policy for the Members of the Executive Board
It is proposed to approve the compensation policy for the members of the executive Board. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

15. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the compensation report of Corporate Officers. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

17. Approve Compensation of Chair of the Executive Board: Jean-Marc Jestin
It is proposed to approve the compensation policy for the Chair of the Executive Board. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

18. Approve Compensation of Member of the Executive Board: Stéphane Tortajada
It is proposed to approve the compensation policy for Mr Stéphane Tortajada, Chief Financial Officer. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

CINCINNATI FINANCIAL CORPORATION AGM - 04-05-2024

1.03. Re-elect Linda Clement-Holmes - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit, Nominating and Compensation Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit, Nominating and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.2, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 4.4,

1.04. Re-elect Dirk J. Debbink - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Member of the Audit Committee and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent as Mr Debbink previously served as a director of the Company from 2004 to 2008, and has a cumulative tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Audit Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. 1.09. Re-elect Charles O. Schiff - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as Mr. Schiff is the Executive Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer of John J. & Thomas R. Schiff & Co. Inc., a privately owned insurance agency that represents a number of insurance companies, including the company's insurance subsidiaries. The company's subsidiaries paid John J. & Thomas R. Schiff & Co. Inc. fees and commissions of USD 7,603,856. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.8,

1.10. Re-elect Douglas S. Skidmore - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In addition, Mr. Skidmore is CEO and President of Skidmore Sales & Distributing Company Inc., which purchased property, casualty and life insurance from the Company's insurance subsidiaries for premiums totaling USD 1,371,974.0. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1.13. Re-elect Larry R. Webb - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Also, in 2023, Mr Webb was the principal owner of Webb Insurance Agency Inc., a privately owned insurance agency that represents a number of insurance companies, including the company's insurance subsidiaries. The company's insurance subsidiaries paid Webb Insurance Agency Inc. commissions of USD 1,385,737. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.6, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 2.1,

3. Approve Cincinnati Financial Corporation 2024 Stock Compensation Plan
It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.3, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 4.1,

4. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 28.02% of audit fees during the year under review and 21.65% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. AFLAC INCORPORATED AGM - 06-05-2024

1a. Elect Daniel P. Amos - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.8, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.9,

1b. Elect W. Paul Bowers - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, it is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Overall opposition is recommended.

3. Appoint the Auditors: KPMG LLP
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.98% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.85% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

ELI LILLY AND COMPANY AGM - 06-05-2024

1b. Elect J. Erik Fyrwald - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1c. Elect Jamere Jackson - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Audit Committee. The Company does not have an established whistle-blowing hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blowing hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputational and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. It is considered the responsibility of the audit committee to review all reports from the whistle-blowing hotline. For this reason, opposition is recommended.

1d. Elect Gabrielle Sulzberger - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Directors and Corporate Governance Committee.
At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the chair of the nomination committee is not up for election, members of the committee are held accountable for this lack of disclosure.
Additionally, As the Chair of the Directors and Corporate Governance Committee is not up for election, the members of the Directors and Corporate Governance Committee are considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

GE AEROSPACE AGM - 07-05-2024

1a. Elect Stephen Angel - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as the director has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. Mr Angel is also a director on the Board of GE Vernova. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally, It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.9, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.9,

1d. Elect H. Lawrence Culp, Jr. - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

1f. Elect Edward P. Garden - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as the director has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material: During 2016, Triland Partners Limited Partnership, a company in which Mr. Garden's brother, Thomas Garden, is the managing general partner and sole owner, entered into transactions with a GE affiliate for the development and acquisition of certain renewable energy projects. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

1g. Elect Isabella Goren - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. Additionally, at the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. Overall opposition is recommended

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.2, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.7,

1i. Elect Catherine Lesjak - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and chair of the Governance and Public Affairs Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

Additionally, as the Chair of the Governance and Public Affairs Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADA. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

5. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Sustainability

Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research request the Company produce a report analyzing the risks arising from voluntary carbon-reduction commitments. It is argued the following: "Shareholders must protect our assets against potentially unfulfillable Company ESG promises, including the extent to which the Company can reduce Scope 1, 2, and 3 greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. [...] General Electric has voluntarily committed to being a net-zero company by 2050, even when it comes to the Scope 3 emissions "for its sold products. . . ." The Company has done so even though it has failed to report on its evaluation of the technological or financial feasibility of such commitments. Given the SEC's climate and ESG enforcement actions, the Company must exercise caution and provide transparency about such commitments.".

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "GE recognizes the challenges and risks posed by climate change, and we support the Paris Agreement and other ambitious targets to reduce emissions. As a company whose equipment helps provide approximately 30 percent of the world's electricity across over 160 countries, our GE Vernova businesses aim to play a unique role in providing our customers with power generation equipment and services to make electricity more sustainable, affordable, and reliable, in a context where global electricity demand and risks are expected to grow considerably in the decades to come. [...] Contrary to this shareholder proposal's premise, we believe that establishing long-range greenhouse gas reductions ambitions is appropriate for the company and well-aligned with the expectations of the majority of our customers, shareholders and other stakeholders, and that the report requested by the proposal is therefore unnecessary.".

PIRC analysis: Increased disclosure would normally be considered to be in shareholders' interests. However, the proposed report is considered to be based on flawed methodology. The proponent seeks a report exclusively focused on short-term costs and benefits for the company, excluding the long-term benefits (also economic) of a lower carbon emission strategy. It is considered that shareholders should instead be focused on long-term value creation. Ignoring the potential long-term costs of ignoring climate change is not considered to be in shareholders best interests. Additionally, the methodology used by the proponent appears to be flawed, as the link made by the proponent to green washing is seemingly an artificial one. The Company's policy of reducing the number of coal power plants it operates is a material and positive change from an environmental perspective, not a green-washing activity. On balance, a vote in opposition of the resolution is recommended.

4. Amend Articles: Amended and Restated Certificate of Incorporation to Provide for Limited Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 84.4, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 15.3,

6. Shareholder Resolution: Executive Retention of Significant Stock

Proponent's argument: Mr John Chevedden ask the Board of Directors to adopt a policy requiring the 5 named executive officers (NEOs) to retain a significant percentage of stock acquired through equity pay programs until reaching normal retirement age and to report to shareholders regarding the policy in our Company's next annual meeting proxy. Shareholders argue the following: "This single unified policy shall prohibit hedging transactions for shares subject to this policy which are not sales but reduce the risk of loss to the executive. Otherwise our directors might be able to avoid the impact of this proposal. This policy shall supplement any other share ownership requirements that have been established for senior executives, and should be implemented without violating current company contractual obligations or the terms of any current pay or benefit plan. The Board is encouraged to obtain waivers of any current pay or benefit plan for senior executives that might delay implementation of this proposal.".

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "The company's existing share retention policy requires the company's Section 16 officers to hold either six, three or two times their base salary until satisfaction of the respective multiple, counting shares acquired upon the vesting of PSUs, MSUs and RSUs, as well as those shares acquired upon the exercise of any previously granted stock options. [...] Our insider trading policy prohibits all employees, including directors and executive officers, from engaging in any speculative or hedging transactions and from holding our securities in a margin account or pledging our securities as collateral for a loan except in certain limited circumstances and subject to the approval of the Corporate Secretary. None of our directors or executive officers has pledged shares of our stock as collateral for a loan or holds shares of our stock in a margin account.".

PIRC analysis: Quantified performance criteria have not been made available at this time, making an informed assessment of the proposal impossible. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

8. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

Vote Cast: Abstain

9. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, a vote to abstain is recommended.

14G. Re-elect Hans Straberg - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. NNot considered to be independent as he is the Chair of Atlas Copco, and Investor AB has significant interest in this company. He has also been CEO of Electrolux, also part of Investor AB's portfolio of ownership. Additionally, the director is owing to a tenure of over nine years. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14H. Elect Jacob Wallenberg - Chair (Non Executive)
Chair of the Board. Not considered to be independent as the Wallenberg family holds a significant percentage of the Company's voting rights. In addition he has previously served as the Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of the Company. He is also owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability, a vote to oppose is recommended. It is noted there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, however this director has attended 100% of Board and committee meetings during the year under review.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14I. Re-elect Marcus Wallenberg - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Vice Chair. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Knut and Alice Wallenberg Foundation. In addition he has previously served as the President and CEO of the Company. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board. A vote to oppose is recommended.

18A. Approve Performance Share Matching Plan (LTVR) for Employees in Investor
It is proposed a share matching plan.
The long-term variable remuneration program for employees within Investor, consisting of a Stock Matching Plan and a Performance-Based Share Program, has been approved by the AGM since 2006 and the long-term variable remuneration program for employees within Patricia Industries has been approved by the AGM since 2017.
Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to receive shares in exchange for part of the reinvestment of their salary. The shares resulting from reinvestment will be matched by free shares awarded by the Company. While re-investment of the bonus in shares, or payment of part or all of the bonus in shares, are considered positive practice, share matching plans are viewed as a de facto discount for executives to buy company shares. They can eventually result in excessive payments versus performance. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.2.3. Re-elect Maurizio Carli - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director, Member of the Remuneration Committee, Member of the Nomination Committee and Member of the Sustainability Committee. Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. As the Chair of the Nomination Committee is not up for election, opposition is recommended to the members of the Committee.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.2.5. Re-elect Xavier Cauchois - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor:

He was a Senior Partner at PwC until 2018. It is considered that Audit Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the Chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Appoint the Auditors : PwC

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 18.62% of audit fees during the year under review and 19.10% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.3. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.3. Approve Creation of Capital Band Within the Upper Limit of Chf 400 Million and the Lower Limit of Chf 351.7 Million With or Without Exclusion of Preemptive Rights

It is proposed to approve the capital range, and disapply pre-emptive rights for a portion of this range. Under the revised Swiss corporate law, shareholders may authorise the Board of Directors to increase or reduce the authorised share capital within a certain range, for a period of up to five years. The board has proposed a capital range of CHF 400,046,760 (upper limit) and CHF 351,664,080 (lower limit), to last for five years following the date of the upcoming meeting. The restriction of pre-emption rights does not exceed 10% of share capital. However, the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the opportunity to vote on any exclusion of pre-emption rights annually. As the time limit for the exclusion of pre-emptive rights exceeds guidelines, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Transact Any Other Business

Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

LKQ CORPORATION AGM - 07-05-2024

1d. Elect Blythe J. McGarvie - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Non-executive Director and Member of the Nomination Committee. Additionally, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Furthermore, at the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. Opposition is recommended

1f. Elect Jody G. Miller - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

1g. Elect Guhan Subramanian - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Member of the Audit Committee and Member of the Nomination Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, it is considered that the Audit Committee and the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Furthermore, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. Additionally, as the Company does not have a Board elected committee responsible for the Company's sustainability policies, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.0, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 3.9,

4. Amend Articles: Provide for Officer Exculpation
The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. The Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

KONINKLIJKE (ROYAL) PHILIPS NV AGM - 07-05-2024

2.c.. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.7, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

2.e.. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

5.a.. Approve Remuneration Policy for the Board of Management
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.1, Abstain: 2.1, Oppose/Withhold: 3.8,

6.b.. Authorise the Board to Waive Pre-emptive Rights
It is proposed to exclude pre-emption rights on shares issued over a period of 18 months. The corresponding authority for issuing shares without pre-emptive rights, requested in a previous proposal, does not exceed guidelines (10%). However it is considered that shareholders should be allowed to vote on such resolutions annually. Opposition is recommended.

1.b. Elect Martin James Murray - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company. He joined the Swire group in 1995 and has worked with the group in Hong Kong, the United States, Singapore and Australia. He was previously deputy finance director of Swire Pacific, a Company subsidiary. Additionally, the director is current Finance Director of Swire Pacific Limited. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

IDEX CORPORATION AGM - 07-05-2024

1a. Elect Mark A. Buthman - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. The Company does not have an established whistle-blowing hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blowing hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputational and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. It is considered the responsibility of the audit committee to review all reports from the whistle-blowing hotline. For this reason, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 87.7, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 12.2,

1b. Elect Lakecia N. Gunter - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director.
At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the chair of the nomination committee is not up for election, members of the committee are held accountable for this lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

3. Approve the IDEX Corporation 2024 Incentive Award Plan
The Board proposes the approval of the IDEX Corporation 2024 Incentive Award Plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares or rights to shares.

Performance targets have not been fully quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

4. Appoint the Auditors: KPMG
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 11.11% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.54% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares up to 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

GEORGE WESTON LIMITED AGM - 07-05-2024

1.1. Re-elect M. Marianne Harris - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit and Governance Committees. M. Marianne Harris is also not considered independent as the director has a cross directorship with Cornell Wright, who also stands on the Board of Loblaw Companies Limited. It is considered that the Audit and Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.3. Re-elect Sarabjit S. Marwah - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit and Governance Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit and Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.4. Re-elect Gordon M. Nixon - Lead Director
Lead Director and Chair of the Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. Also, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. At George Weston Limited, it is considered that the Chair of the Governance Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration policy, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration policy, opposition is recommended.

1.6. Re-elect Galen G. Weston - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.7. Re-elect Cornell Wright - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Cornell Wright is not considered independent as the director has a cross directorship with M. Marianne Harris, who also stands on the Board of Loblaw Companies Limited. Cornell Wright is also not considered independent as the director is President of Wittington, the company's controlling shareholder. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

FINNING INTERNATIONAL INC AGM - 07-05-2024

1.2. Re-elect James E.C. Carter - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director and Member of the Governance and Risk and Human Resources Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance and Risk and Human Resources Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.5. Re-elect Harold N. Kvisle - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

ILUKA RESOURCES LTD AGM - 07-05-2024

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

4. Approve Equity Grant to Executive Director (STIP)
The Boards is seeking shareholder approval for the purposes of ASX Listing Rule 10.14 for the grant of 82,071 performance shares to the Chief Executive And Managing Director, under the company's Long-term Incentive Plan. The proposed grant has an approximate value of AUD 1,164,800 which equates to 83.2% of the CE's fixed remuneration.
Although the potential award is not considered to be excessive, concerns over the plan are raised as awards are based on performance conditions which do not run interdependently.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature.

1g.. Elect Robert W. Sharps - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

3. Reconfirmation of the existing Shareholder Rights Plan Agreement

This authority is considered to be counter to the best interests of shareholders. The poison pill enables management to offer warrants to shareholders during a period of public offer thus implying a threat of dilution to potential acquirers of the company. While this may cause potential acquirers to negotiate with the Board, it may also potentially prevent hostile takeovers and entrench management. Opposition is recommended.

GSK PLC AGM - 08-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report and has failed to disclose sufficient measures taken to address shareholders' concerns. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.
Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee for the 2025 financial year at CHF 15.25 million. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, quantified targets were not made available. In addition, the total variable remuneration may lead to excessive payments. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 14.13% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.06% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

4. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation Provisions

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Dropdown Report on Risks of Supporting Abortion

Proponent's argument: Bowyer Research, Inc. proposes that the Board issue a public report prior to December 31, 2024, omitting confidential and privileged information and at a reasonable expense, detailing the known and reasonably foreseeable risks and costs to the Company caused by opposing or otherwise altering company policy in response to enacted or proposed state policies regulating abortion, and detailing any strategies beyond litigation and legal compliance that the Company may deploy to minimize or mitigate these risks. "In 2022, Gilead Sciences ("the Company") demonstrated clear rhetorical opposition to the Supreme Court's 2022 decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization that overturned Roe v. Wade. "This decision will have significant implications for women's healthcare," the Company wrote in a public statement at the time. "As a healthcare organization, we understand medical decisions are deeply personal, and we believe they should be made by individuals with advice from their physicians.""

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "At the core of Gilead's success is our commitment to our people. We are committed to attracting, engaging and retaining highly talented individuals who are committed to our mission and core values of integrity, inclusion, teamwork, accountability and excellence. We employ more than 17,000 people worldwide, and as we grow, we maintain a strong focus on inclusion and diversity that has contributed to our success. We have launched a number of programs to support our employees and to create an inclusive workplace that is representative of the diverse patients and communities that we serve, and we also continue to build internal and external pipelines for diverse talent. We conduct an annual review of employee compensation to ensure that our pay practices are race- and gender-neutral, and we also commission an annual global pay equity study to gain a more comprehensive view of pay parity across the organization. Determining the appropriate employee compensation, awards and other benefits is a complex matter that is core to management's ability to attract, engage and retain highly talented individuals. We believe that our extensive and thorough compensation programs and practices are competitive within the biopharmaceutical industry. The proposal requests a report on "known and reasonably foreseeable risks and costs" caused by "opposing or otherwise altering company policy in response to enacted or proposed state policies regulating abortion." Preparing such a report could involve both a review and analysis of not only the laws of each state, but also all proposed bills and regulations, speculation about the results or outcomes of relevant pending state-level litigation, and any current or proposed administrative policies of state governmental bodies. Moreover, as developments in this space continue to evolve, any results of such report may promptly become obsolete."

PIRC analysis: Social issues have caught momentum for investors since the COVID-19 pandemic has become a global health crisis, where women have suffered a higher toll, in their ability to conciliate work with family, access to work or even return to work after the pandemic. More specifically on reproductive health, the UN High Commissioner for Human rights stated that human rights bodies have characterized restrictive abortion laws as a form of discrimination against women, and that treaty body jurisprudence has indicated that denying women access to abortion can amount to violations of the rights to health, privacy and, in certain cases, the right to be free from cruel, inhumane and degrading treatment (updated in 2020). It is considered that this report on such practices associated with business activities and with a direct impact on the company's very workforce composition is in shareholders' interests both as a means of informing shareholders of potential risks and opportunities faced by the company. On the contrary, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on diversity analysis with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. In addition, its focus appears to be flawed and artificially focusing on the short-term risks, while deliberately ignoring the long-term impacts from effective diversity and inclusion at the company. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

4. Approve Non-Financial Statements
The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks.

5.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

4.1.2. Re-elect Karl Gernandt - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Vice Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination and Remuneration Committee and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent he served in an executive position for the Company until 3rd May 2016. Mr. Gernandt was elected at the EGM held in December 2008 to replace Mr. Kühne as Delegate to the Board. He is also Executive Chairman of the Kuehne Holding AG, which holds a significant percentage of the Company's issued share capital. Furthermore the director is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the board level committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the report on the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. 4. Approve Grant of performance rights (Rights) to Russell Proutt
The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company under-performance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

4.3. Approve Variable Remuneration of Executive Directors in the Amount of CHF 7.452 Million

Approve Variable Remuneration of members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the cap for the variable remuneration component. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 7.452 million. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid.
Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which meets best practice. On balance, opposition is recommended.

5.1. Elect Nayla Hayek - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair and Chair of the Audit Committee. The Company does not have an established whistle-blowing hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blowing hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputational and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. It is considered the responsibility of the audit committee to review all reports from the whistle-blowing hotline.
It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and in addition, the Audit Committee should be fully independent.

Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
As there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

5.7. Elect Marc A. Hayek - Executive Director
Executive Director, considered to be connected with the controlling shareholder. The level of independence on the Board is not considered to be sufficient to offset the power of an Executive director who also has connections on the Board. Where there is a controlling shareholder, it would be best practice to have an independent Board and independent Lead Director to offset the power of the controlling shareholder. As the Company does not abide by this practice, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.1. Elect Remuneration Committee - Nayla Hayek
It is considered that executives should not be members of compensation committee so that they would not decide on their own remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.2. Elect Remuneration Committee - Ernst Tanner
Non-Executive Director, candidate to the Remuneration Committee on this resolution. It is considered that the Remuneration Committee should consist exclusively of independent members. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.3. Elect Remuneration Committee - Daniela Aeschlimann
Non-Executive Director, candidate to the Remuneration Committee on this resolution. It is considered that the Remuneration Committee should consist exclusively of independent members. Opposition is recommended.

8. Appoint PwC as the Auditors of the Company
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 41.3% of audit fees during the year under review and 44.4% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Transact Any Other Business
Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.8. Elect Nayla Hayek as Chair of the Board
Executive Chair and Chair of the Audit Committee. The Company does not have an established whistle-blowing hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blowing hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputational and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. It is considered the responsibility of the audit committee to review all reports from the whistle-blowing hotline.
It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and in addition, the Audit Committee should be fully independent.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
As there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

INTACT FINANCIAL CORPORATION AGM - 08-05-2024

2. Appoint the Auditors: Ernst & Young LLP
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.64% of audit fees during the year under review and 10.65% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. As opposition is not a valid voting voting option on this resolution, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

1.13. Elect William L. Young - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1.3. Elect Janet De Silva - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.7. Elect Robert G. Leary - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Human Resources and Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Human Resources and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1.11. Elect Frederick Singer - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Governance and Sustainability Committee and Member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance and Sustainability Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally, it is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Approval of the Executive Stock Option Plan
The Board proposes the approval of the Executive Stock Option Plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: xxx. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

1.9. Re-elect Robert J. Routs - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: the director is is the Lead Director of ATCO, the company's controlling shareholder. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.11. Re-elect Linda A. Southern-Heathcott - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Vice Chair of the Board. The Vice Chair is not considered independent as she is the Vice Chair of ATCO Ltd., which controls the Company. In addition, she is the sister of Nancy C. Southern, Chair and CEO of the Company. Additionally, she is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

5. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 5% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Elect John Lok Kam Chong - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of Audit Committee and member of the Nomination and Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board. It is considered that the three main committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Additionally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. 9. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to authorise the board of directors to fix the Directors' remuneration for the next financial year. This will include fixed fees and variable remuneration, for executive directors. There are concerns regarding the absence of performance criteria or targets, which could lead to substantial overpayment for underperformance, as well as the possibility for discretionary bonuses.

Vote Cast: Oppose

HALEON PLC AGM - 08-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

15. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as auditor to the Company
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. [KPMG] proposed as new auditor. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor. Acceptable proposal.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Approve Remuneration Policy

Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. The LTIP scheme is using non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. A mitigation statement has been made which seeks to limit the amount of any payment or benefits provided to a Director upon leaving the Company should alternative employment be secured. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder.

The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. However, the deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is not considered adequate. Half of the bonus should be deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

6. Re-elect Lord Smith of Kelvin - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Company do not have a Board level Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability. In addition, the Chair is not considered to be independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Overall, an oppose vote is recommended.

18. Approve the IMI Incentive Plan (the IIP)

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the IMI Incentive Plan. Under the plan employees (including executive directors) of the Company or of any of its subsidiaries will be eligible to participate. It is intended that the IIP will be used annually to grant Performance Share Awards in respect of ordinary shares to the executive directors and other members of senior management. Performance Share Awards must be granted subject to performance conditions. Performance Share Awards may be granted in the form of: i) nil (or nominal) cost options to acquire ordinary shares; or ii) contingent rights to receive ordinary shares and iii) cash-based awards. The IIP contains an overarching individual limit which provides that the maximum number of ordinary shares that may be awarded to a participant in any financial year under all forms of award may not exceed 400 per cent of basic salary. The performance conditions applied to Performance Share Awards granted to executive directors of the Company will be determined and applied in accordance with the Company's shareholder approved Directors' Remuneration Policy.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1f. Re-elect Jonathan Peacock - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1i. Re-elect Gregory Summe - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

2. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. 13. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as auditor of the Company
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

1.c. Elect Swire, Merlin Bingham - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent as he is a member of the Swire Family. Also, he is a shareholder and Director of John Swire & Sons Limited, the controlling shareholder. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors (PwC) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration

3. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

AMPOL LTD AGM - 09-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the report on the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

4. Approve Equity Grant to Executive Director
The Boards is seeking shareholder approval for the purposes of ASX Listing Rule 10.14 for the grant of 86,853 performance shares to the Chief Executive And Managing Director, under the company's Long-term Incentive Plan. The proposed grant has an approximate value of 150% of the CE's fixed remuneration.
Although the potential award is not considered to be excessive, concerns over the plan are raised as awards are based on performance conditions which do not run interdependently.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature.

C.H. ROBINSON WORLDWIDE INC. AGM - 09-05-2024

1c.. Elect Kermit R. Crawford - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Governance Committee. At this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Additionally, As the Chair of the Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, opposition is recommended

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and member of the Remuneration and Nomination Committees. The Chair is not considered to be independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.
In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Remuneration and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

3. Amend DSU Plan for Non-Employee Directors
The Board proposes the approval of an amended incentive plan. Under the plan, the eligible directors will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 91.7, Abstain: 8.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Dividend accrual has been separately categorised which is welcome. Awards made under all schemes during the year are not considererd excessive as they do not exceed 200% of base salary. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The total combined variable reward paid during the year falls below the 200% recommended threshold and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

12. Re-appoint PwC as the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 21.42% of audit fees during the year under review and 35.47% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards made under all schemes during the year are not considered excessive as they do not exceed 200% of base salary. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report and has failed to disclose sufficient measures taken to address shareholders' concerns. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The total combined variable reward paid during the year falls below the 200% recommended threshold and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

16. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as the Auditors of the Company

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.13% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.49% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. 23. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to the Issuance of Contingent Equity Conversion Notes

It is proposed to give the Directors the authority to allot ECNs, or shares issued upon conversion or exchange of ECNs, up to an aggregate nominal amount of £825,000,000 representing approximately 21.81% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital (excluding shares held in treasury) as at 14 March 2024. The Company explains that this resolution is a recurring resolution at its AGM and will be used to comply or maintain compliance with regulatory capital requirements or targets applicable to the Group.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilizing effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks.

3. Discharge the Board
Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

4.1. Elect Javier Echenique Landiribar - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent as he represents Corporacion Financiera Alcor as a shareholder representative. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board and it is further considered that the nomination committee should be fully independent.

4.2. Elect Mariano Hernandez Herreros - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as he serves as he is a representative of Inversiones Vesan, S.A., a significant shareholder of the Company. In addition, he is a director of Dragados, with which the company merged in 2003. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board and it is further considered that the nomination committee should be fully independent.

5. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 79.3, Abstain: 12.1, Oppose/Withhold: 8.6,

9. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 15% and five years. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. The Company has stated that this resolution may authorise the Board of Directors to allocate all or part of its repurchased shares to remuneration schemes. However, this is not considered to be sufficient, as it includes only part of the requested authority. As no clear justification was provided by the Board regarding the full use of the authority, an oppose vote is recommended.

10. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for more than 10% of the current share capital, and the duration of the authority would exceed 12 months. It is considered that share issuances without pre-emptive rights should be limited to 10% of the issued share capital and shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

WH GROUP LTD AGM - 09-05-2024

2.a. Elect Wan Long - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.b. Elect Charles Shane Smith - Executive Director
Executive Director, considered to be connected with the controlling shareholder. The level of independence on the Board is not considered to be sufficient to offset the power of an Executive director who also has connections on the Board. Where there is a controlling shareholder, it would be best practice to have an independent Board and independent Lead Director to offset the power of the controlling shareholder. As the Company does not abide by this practice, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.c. Elect Jiao Shuge - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent as he was previously Executive Director of the Company. He was re-designated as a Non-Executive Director on 31 December 2013. In addition, he has been on the board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Authorise the Board to Fix Directors' Remuneration
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market; support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting; as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors (Ernst & Young) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 16.67% of audit fees during the year under review and 20.00% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

6. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 96.2, Abstain: 3.8, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Dividend accrual has been separately categorised which is welcome. Awards made under all schemes during the year are not considererd excessive as they do not exceed 200% of base salary. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The balance of CEO realised pay with financial performance is not considered acceptable as the change in CEO total pay over five years is not commensurate with the change in TSR over the same period. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee falls below the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

16. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crises or natural disasters.
At this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
In addition, as the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended overall.

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

5. Shareholder Resolution: Risks Created by the Company's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Efforts
Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research ask that the board commission and publish a report on (1) whether the Company engages in any practices directly or indirectly associated with diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) initiatives that may create risks of discriminating illegally on bases such as race and sex, thereby potentially triggering justice-seeking responses from stakeholders of the company (including employees, suppliers, contractors, and retained professionals), and (2) the potential costs of such discrimination to the business. Shareholders argue the following: "In just the past year, a corporation was successfully sued for a single case of discrimination against a white employee resulting in an award of more than USD 25 million. The risk of being sued for such discrimination appears only to be rising. With over 50,000 employees, Progressive likely has at least 37,000 employees who are potentially the victims of this type of illegal discrimination because they are white, Asian, male, or straight. Accordingly, even if only 10 percent of such employees were to file suit, and only 10 percent of those prove successful, the cost to the company could exceed USD 9 billion. And while racial equity audits can cost up to USD 4 million, this report should cost much less, as it need review only the potentially discriminatory programs, unless Progressive has established so many such programs that its liability for this discrimination must be expected to be much higher.".

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "he Board maintains active oversight. Progressive regularly monitors and reviews its Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) programs and efforts to assess their effectiveness and to evaluate and address any potential risks associated with them. The Board engages regularly with management on these matters, and has done so for many years, consistent with Progressive's longstanding approach to fostering a healthy and engaging work environment. The Board oversees these programs and efforts and their related risks through the Compensation and Talent Committee. [...] We do not have "quotas" for our workforce. We recognize the great breadth of diversity of our employees and of the external talent market, from demographic diversity to diversity of experiences, perspectives, backgrounds, and more. We recruit broadly, seeking to leave no corner of this diverse talent pool untapped, whether we're hiring from within our workforce or from external markets. We believe that if our recruiting, retention, and development efforts are successful, and if we hire the best candidates for each of our openings, then we will naturally find diversity-in all its dimensions-in our candidate pools and, ultimately, at every level of our workforce.".

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended. Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. 4. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are not considered excessive as they do not exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee falls below the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit

13. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.92% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

15. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. It is noted that on the 2023 Annual General Meeting the proposed resolution received significant opposition of 11.3% of the votes. The Company did not disclose information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 88.8, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 10.7,

16. Issue Shares for Cash
The authority sought exceeds the recommended 5% maximum of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.8, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 10% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 88.9, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 10.3,

18. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

19. Approve Increase in Non-executives Fees
It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the increase of the aggregate fees for the Board of Directors from GBP 800,000 to GBP 975,000. The proposed increase is of 21.8%. The previous increase was in 2022 which gives an annual increase from 2022 to 2024 of 10.9%. Since the increase is above the recommended limit of 10% annually, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.3, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 0.2,

20. Meeting Notification-related Proposal
It is proposed that a general meeting of the Company other than an annual general meeting may be called on not less than 14 clear days' notice.
It is considered that all companies should aim to provide at least 20 working days notice for general meetings in order to give shareholders sufficient time to consider what are often complex issues. However, as the proposed change is permissible by the Companies Act. It is noted that in the 2023 Annual General Meeting the proposed resolution received significant opposition of 11.79% of the votes. The Company did not disclose information's as to how address the issue with its shareholders, therefore abstention is recommended.

PEMBINA PIPELINE CORP AGM - 10-05-2024

1.1. Re-elect Anne-Marie Ainsworth - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director and Member of the Remuneration, Nomination and Corporate Governance Committees. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, abstention is recommended.

1.11. Re-elect Henry W. Sykes - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend abstaining the Chair of the Board.

Vote Cast: Abstain

2. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 16.73% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.31% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADC. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

GALP ENERGIA SGPS SA AGM - 10-05-2024

1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

LUNDIN MINING CORP AGM - 10-05-2024

1A. Elect Adam I. Lundin - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1B. Elect C. Ashley Heppenstall - Senior Independent Director

Senior Independent Director and member of the Audit, Human Resources/Compensation Committee and Corporate Governance and Nominating Committees. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by as a Chief Executive by Lundin Petroleum. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Therefore a oppose vote is recommended. It is also considered that the Audit, Human Resources/Compensation Committee and Corporate Governance and Nominating Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

0030. Long-Term Incentive Plan Based on 2024-2028 Performance Shares
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares or rights to shares. Performance targets have not been fully quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

1b.. Elect Marie A. Ffolkes - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee. At this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of the Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less-represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
As the Chair of the Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, and given other concerns, an oppose vote is recommended overall.

QBE INSURANCE GROUP LTD AGM - 10-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

3. Approve the grant of Conditional Rights under the Company's LTI Plan for 2024 to the Group CEO
The Boards is seeking shareholder approval for the purposes of ASX Listing Rule 10.14 for the grant of 229,323 performance shares to the Chief Executive And Managing Director, under the company's Long-term Incentive Plan. The proposed grant has an approximate value of AUD 3,874,500, which would correspond to 200% of the fixed salary. At this time, the Company has not fully disclosed performance targets in a quantified manner, making it impossible to assess whether the grant will award overpayment for underperformance.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature.

SUN COMMUNITIES INC AGM - 14-05-2024

1a. Re-elect Gary A. Shiffman - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

1g. Re-elect Brian M. Hermelin - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Member of the Audit Committee and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Audit and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1i. Re-elect Clunet R. Lewis - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and Member of the Audit and Remuneration Committees. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. It is considered that the Audit and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACD. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Appoint the Auditors
Grant Thornton LLP proposed. Non-audit fees represented 17.97% of audit fees during the year under review and 22.69% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

IMCD NV AGM - 14-05-2024

2c. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5a. Approve Remuneration Policy for Management
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for management. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6a. Elect Janus Smalbraak - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Remuneration Committee. It is considered that the members of the remuneration committee are responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7b. Authorise the Board to Waive Pre-emptive Rights
It is proposed to exclude pre-emption rights on shares issued over a period of 18 months. The corresponding authority for issuing shares without pre-emptive rights, requested in a previous proposal, does not exceed guidelines (10%). However it is considered that shareholders should be allowed to vote on such resolutions annually. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

PHOENIX GROUP HOLDINGS AGM - 14-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

15. Re-elect Nicholas Shott - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. There are serious concerns regarding the implementation of remuneration at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.8,

17. Appoint KPMG LLP as the Company's Auditor
KPMG proposed as new auditor. Auditor rotation is considered a positive factor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

19. Approve Political Donations
Although the aggregate limit sought is within acceptable limits, the company has made donations which are deemed to be political during the year. The Group made political donations of GBP 63,982.40 for sponsorship event of political parties. This raises concerns about the potential donation which could be made by the Company under this authority.

21. Issue Shares for Cash
The authority sought exceeds the recommended 5% maximum of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.2,

22. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 10% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

1d. Re-elect Paul J. Fribourg - Lead Director
Lead Director, Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee and Member of the Audit and Compensation Committees. Not considered independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. Also, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance, Audit and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole. Finally, it is considered that the members of the Compensation Committee are responsible for the company's remuneration policy, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration policy, opposition is recommended.

1e. Re-elect Walter L. Harris - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and Member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that Audit and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Also, at the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Audit Committee. The Company also does not have an established whistle-blowing hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blowing hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputation and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. It is considered the responsibility of the audit committee to review all reports from the whistle-blowing hotline. Finally, it is considered that the members of the Compensation Committee are responsible for the company's remuneration policy, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration policy, opposition is recommended.

1h. Elect Irving F. Lyons III - Lead Independent Director
Lead Independent Director, Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and Member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered independent owing to an aggregate tenure of over nine years as Mr. Lyons previously served as on the Board of BRE Properties from 2006 until its merger with the Company in April 2014. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, it is considered that the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nominating and corporate governance committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Additionally, as the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

1i. Elect George M. Marcus - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. Not considered independent as the Chair has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. Mr. Marcus is the Founder of the Company. In addition, The Chair is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As the Chair of the Public Policy and Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.1, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 4.7,

1i. Re-elect Arjun N. Murti - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit and Finance Committee and Member of the Human Resources and Compensation Committee. Not considered independent due a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit and Finance Committee and Human Resources and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Also, the Company does not have an established whistle-blowing hotline. It is considered that without a whistle-blowing hotline, the company is potentially subject to reputational and financial damage by a lack of supervision of potential malpractice. It is considered the responsibility of the Audit and Finance Committee to review all reports from the whistle-blowing hotline. At the company, there is also no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the Audit and Finance Committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

1j. Re-elect Robert A. Niblock - Lead Independent Director

Lead Director, Chair of the Director Affairs Committee and Member of the Human Resources and Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Director Affairs Committee and Human Resources and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. It is also considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Director Affairs Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Finally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.79% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.35% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is:

ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.7, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 4.0,

5. Shareholder Resolution: Revisit Pay Incentives for GHG Emission Reductions
Proponent's argument: The National Legal and Policy Center (NLPC) "request the Board of Directors' Human Resources and Compensation Committee to revisit its incentive guidelines for executive pay, to emphasize legitimate fiduciary goals and consider eliminating greenhouse gas reduction targets and other scientifically dubious goals from compensation inducements...The "scientific consensus" claims anthropogenically-driven climate change will result in catastrophic impacts to the environment, to the planet, and to humans. However, research increasingly shows worst-case scenarios are unlikely, and the potential consequences of carbon dioxide emissions (aka "plant food") have been greatly overstated... Despite the evidence that climate alarmism is overstated, ConocoPhillips's executive pay program incorporates unnecessary incentives to assumed combat climate change. According to the Company's 2023 Proxy Statement, the Human Resources and Compensation Committee set a Variable Cash Incentive Program target of 14 percent of total compensation for the CEO and 16 percent for other Named Executive Officers. "Strategic and ESG Milestones" are one of the five metrics used to determine VCIP for NEOs. These milestones include: "Demonstrated meaningful progress toward our Paris-aligned climate risk framework." "Progressed our long-term strategy by establishing new methane and flaring targets, executing emission reduction projects, and progressing CCS business development opportunities." These VCIP metrics are unscientific and create a breach of fiduciary duty. ConocoPhillips is an oil and gas company and should focus on what it does best. The company cannot afford to be left behind because of misguided executive pay incentives."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "ConocoPhillips continues to be guided by our value proposition of superior returns to stockholders through price cycles while executing against our Triple Mandate, which sets out three objectives to align our actions with the underlying realities of our business and demonstrates our commitment to create long-term value for our stockholders. Our Triple Mandate includes reliably and responsibly delivering oil and gas production to meet energy transition pathway demand, delivering returns on and of capital for our stockholders, and remaining focused on achieving our net-zero operational emissions ambition. Consistent with our philosophy of aligning our executive compensation programs with company strategy and with the long-term interests of our stockholders, our executive compensation programs and metrics remain aligned with our value proposition and Triple Mandate. We regularly meet with stockholders on a variety of topics, including our executive compensation programs. In recent years, during these engagements, an overwhelming majority of stockholders have sought to confirm how we link progress on our climate commitments to our executive compensation programs."
PIRC analysis: The requested review of performance measures tied to greenhouse gas reduction targets appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's alignment with net zero, or emission reduction targets, and focuses on executive behaviour with the clear intent to ensure that views against what the filers describe as "risky and costly political-schedule decarbonization" are represented within the company's political activities, as opposed to promoting accountability around the potential benefits of decarbonization and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues, particularly the climate emergency, or avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is recommended.

SKYWORKS SOLUTIONS INC AGM - 14-05-2024

1b.. Elect Kevin L. Beebe - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

In Addition, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. 1c.. Elect Liam K. Griffin - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.6, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 7.2,

9.. Approval of the Amendment to the Company's 2002 Employee Stock Purchase Plan

It is proposed to amend a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

2. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan: 1997 Incentive Plan
It is proposed to amend the 1997 Stock Award and Incentive Plan. The Company believes that an equity compensation program is a necessary and powerful incentive and retention tool that benefits all the Company's stockholders. On March 26, 2024, the Board of Directors approved an amendment and restatement of the 1997 Incentive Plan, which was last approved by the Company's stockholders in May 2022, subject to approval by the Company's stockholders.
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

6. Approval of the annual report and accounts for Equinor ASA and the Equinor group for 2023, including the board of directors' proposal for distribution of fourth quarter 2023 dividend

The Board seeks shareholders' approval for the consolidated and individual financial statements for the year under review. The financial statements have been audited and the auditors have not qualified their opinion. The reports have been made available to shareholders sufficiently prior to the date of the general meeting. A fourth quarter 2023 ordinary dividend of USD 0.35 per share and an extraordinary dividend of USD 0.35 per share are proposed. It would be welcomed that the Company submitted the approval of the financial statements and the allocation of income individually, under two separate resolutions.

Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. 10. Shareholder Resolution: Resignation of the Board of Directors

Proponent's argument: Gro Nylander and Guttorm Grundt propose that the Board resign and make room for a new board of directors with better sustainability expertise and higher ambitions for Equinor to contribute more actively to Norway and the UN achieving their climate goals for the benefit of future generations. "Equinor's board does not appear to have sufficient expertise to ensure the necessary transition of the business in a sustainable direction. The company also appears to lack real commitment to reducing the company's greenhouse gas emitting production sufficiently. We fear that Equinor is heading towards climate ethical insolvency, with a negative impact on the company's reputation and value, both in the market and for future generations.

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Equinor's energy transition plan demonstrates a business model and strategy that are compatible with a transition to a sustainable economy and with the limiting of global warming to 1.5C, in line with the Paris Agreement. While progress on the ambitions on a year-on-year level showed varied results for 2023, they show that Equinor are driving the transition at a faster pace than society. Equinor's current board includes members with extensive experience in the energy sector and transition processes. The company's ambition to reduce emissions from own operations by 50% by 2030 compared to 2015 levels is aligned with a science-based approach. Equinor has made significant progress towards this ambition driving emissions down to 30 % lower than in 2015. Electrification is the single most important measure to reach this ambition. In addition to electrification, energy efficiency and consolidation are important measures. Together these measures will help both Equinor and Norway to reach their ambitions. Further, Equinor aim to allocate more than 50% of the annual gross capex to renewables and low carbon solutions by 2030. The net carbon intensity ambition describes how the company plans to deliver energy that has lower emissions over time (including emissions from the use of sold products – scope 3) by reducing 20% by 2030 and 40% by 2035, and eventually net-zero by 2050.

PIRC Analysis: We acknowledge the proposal and shareholders concerns. However, it is important to note that the company has set medium to long-term targets that are in alignment with the global climate goals. These targets include maintaining a temperature increase within 1.5 degrees Celsius and achieving a net-zero carbon footprint by the year 2050. We are in favour of implementing certain levels of accountability to ensure these targets are met, however, the Company is making efforts in alignment with global climate goals. Such a drastic change could disrupt the company's operations and potentially hinder the progress towards the set targets. Opposition is recommended.

There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. 14. Approve Remuneration Policy for the CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for the CEO. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 80.9, Abstain: 11.1, Oppose/Withhold: 8.0,

15. Approve Remuneration Policy for the COO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy for the COO. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 80.8, Abstain: 8.7, Oppose/Withhold: 10.5,

16. Approve the Remuneration Report for All Directors and Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to non-executive board members with an advisory vote. Directors received only fixed remuneration. This approach is commended. However, it is also proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 95.4, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 4.3,

21. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% per director on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

25. Issue Shares for Cash
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 7.7,

26. Issue Additional Shares for Cash
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

31. Authorise Issuance of Bonds
It is proposed to issue additional Tier 1 capital bonds at an interest rate to be determined with reference to market interest rates.
The use of Tier 1 capital bonds are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. Such instrument are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

4. Discharge the Supervisory Board
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability and the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.8,

6. Authorisation for the Board of Directors to decide on acquisition and transfer of treasury shares
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until 13 May 2029. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.3,

7. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to approve authority to use financial derivatives to repurchase and use capital stock within legal boundaries. Authority is sought for a period until 13 May 2029.
Within EU regulation, companies are required to maintain safe harbour conditions, which generally limit share buybacks with derivatives from within by limiting the possibilities of derivatives used. Given the concerns with the corresponding share repurchase resolution, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.8,

8.2. Elect Martin Jetter - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. Chair of the Remuneration Committee and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report, opposition is recommended. Additionally, the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

10. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

TENCENT HOLDINGS LTD AGM - 14-05-2024

3a. Elect Charles St Leger Searle - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit and Nomination Committees. Not considered independent as he is the Chief Executive Officer of Naspers Internet Listed Assets and Mail.ru Group Ltd, both of which are associated with, Naspers, a controlling shareholder of the Company. In addition, he has been on the Board for more than nine years. It is considered that the Audit and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
In addition, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less-represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. As the Chair of the Nomination Committee is not up for election, opposition is recommended to the members of the Committee.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3c. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to authorise the board of directors to fix the Directors' remuneration for the next financial year. This will include fixed fees and variable remuneration, for executive directors. There are concerns regarding the absence of performance criteria or targets, which could lead to substantial overpayment for underperformance, as well as the possibility for discretionary bonuses.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 36.77% of audit fees during the year under review and 31.85% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

6. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

SIGNIFY N.V. AGM - 14-05-2024

10.a. Approve Remuneration Policy for Management Board
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.b. Authorise the Board to Waive Pre-emptive Rights
It is proposed to exclude pre-emption rights on shares issued over a period of 18 months. The corresponding authority for issuing shares without pre-emptive rights, requested in a previous proposal, does not exceed guidelines (10%). However it is considered that shareholders should be allowed to vote on such resolutions annually. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

VAT GROUP AG AGM - 14-05-2024

1.1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.5, Abstain: 1.5, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

1.2. Approve Non-Financial Statements
The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 6.0,

4.1.1. Elect Martin Komischke - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As at the company there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.7,

4.1.2. Elect Urs Leinhäuser - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director, chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.0, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.9,

4.1.5. Elect Libo Zhang - Non-Executive Director

6. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 20.93% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.03% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.0,

7.1. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

7.2. Approval of actual Short-Term Incentive (STI) compensation of the Group Executive Committee (GEC)
It is proposed to approve the annual incentives for the previous year for executives, corresponding to CHF 1,006,993. Annual incentives appear to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has disclosed achievements only as a percentage of undisclosed targets, and as such, without quantified targets, it is impossible to assess whether the proposed amount would correspond to any overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 1.9,

7.3. Approval of the maximum aggregate amount of fixed compensation of the GEC
It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 2,700,000 million. This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.
Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.8,

7.4. Approval of the maximum aggregate amount of Long-Term Incentive (LTI) compensation of the GEC
It is proposed to approve the prospective variable remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the cap for the variable remuneration component. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 2,150,000 million. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid.
There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

1h. Elect Andrea Redmond - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Member of the Remuneration Committee and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Also, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

1m. Elect Thomas J. Wilson - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. Additionally, as the Company has not constituted a Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board / CEO is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme and the programme is not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

8.b12. Approve Discharge of Helena Hedblom from Supervisory Board (as President and CEO)
Standard proposal. The company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Abstain

8.d. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

10a.6. Re-elect Ronnie Leten - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.b . Re-elect Ronnie Leten as Chair
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Ronnie Leten was Chair and NED at Ericsson, one of the companies within the portfolio of Investor AB, a significant shareholder of Epiroc AB. He has also ben CEO of Atlas Copco AB (related company) in the past five years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, as there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12.a. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

12.b. Approve Stock Option Plan 2024 for Key Employees
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13.a. Reissue of Treasury Shares with Pre-emption Rights Disapplied
The Board requests authority to repurchase and re-issue the shares to participants in the long term incentive plans, included that proposed at the present meeting. Although companies have a legal duty to fund approved plans, this resolution is considered to be a proposal enabling the LTIP proposed. Based on the concerns on the resolution for the approval of the LTIP, opposition is recommended also on this resolution.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13.c. Approve Equity Plan Financing Through Transfer of Class A Shares to Participants
The Board further proposes that the Meeting decides to transfer shares in the Company in relation to the Company's personnel option plan 2024, including the matching options part. A maximum of 1,900,000 A shares may be transferred. Right to acquire shares is to be granted the persons participating in the Company's proposed performance stock option plan 2024, with a right for each participant to acquire the maximum number of shares stipulated in the terms and conditions of this plan. The participant's right to acquire shares is conditional upon all terms and conditions of the Company's performance stock option plan 2024 being fulfilled. Shares are to be transferred on the terms and conditions stipulated by the plan, meaning inter alia, that what is stated therein regarding price and time during which the participants are to be entitled to use their right to acquire shares is also applicable to the transfer. Participants are to pay for the shares within the time and on the terms stipulated in the performance stock option plan 2024.
Although companies have a legal duty to fund approved plans, this resolution is considered to be a proposal enabling the LTIP proposed. Based on the concerns on the resolution for the approval of the LTIP, opposition is recommended also on this resolution.

3.1. Discharge Martin Daum
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, there are serious concerns regarding the company's governance of sustainability, which is not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks, while the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, opposition is recommended on the discharge.

4.1. Discharge Joe Kaeser
Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, there are serious concerns regarding the company's governance of sustainability, which is not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks, while the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, opposition is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.8, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 3.8,

7. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until 14 May 2029. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

8. Authorise Financial Derivaties for Share Repurchase

It is proposed to approve authority to use financial derivatives to repurchase and use capital stock within legal boundaries. Authority is sought for a period until 14 May 2029.

Within EU regulation, companies are required to maintain safe harbour conditions, which generally limit share buybacks with derivatives from within by limiting the possibilities of derivatives used. Given the concerns with the corresponding share repurchase resolution, opposition is recommended.

1.1. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.5, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 95.5, Abstain: 1.1, Oppose/Withhold: 3.4,

1.3. Approve Non-Financial Statements
The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 91.1, Abstain: 0.9, Oppose/Withhold: 8.0,

4.3. Approve Fixed and Long-Term Variable Remuneration of Executive Committee in the Amount of CHF 13.8 Million
It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.
It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 13.8 million (CHF 13.8 million was proposed last year). This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.
There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has also disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component. However, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.2, Abstain: 0.9, Oppose/Withhold: 3.9,

5.1. Re-elect Rolf Dörig - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years and previously served as CEO of the Company until 2008. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee.
At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 89.8, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 10.0,

5.2. Re-elect Thomas Buess - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director was previously the Chief Financial Officer and a Member of the Executive Board from 2009 to March 2019. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board. Additionally, there are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.8, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.9,

5.4. Re-elect Philomena Colatrella - Non-Executive Director

7. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 6.98% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.84% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 80.5, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 19.2,

10. Ad Hoc
Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

BUNGE GLOBAL SA AGM - 15-05-2024

5b. Elect Sheila Bair - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominations committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.3,

5c. Elect Carol M. Browner - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Sustainability and Corporate Responsibility Committee and Member of the Corporate Governance and Nominations Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
As the Chair of the Sustainability and Corporate Responsibility Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Chief Executive.
Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

5j. Elect Mark N. Zenuk - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

8. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan: The 2024 LTIP
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.4,

9. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. Lead Independent Director and Member of the Nominating, Governance and Sustainability Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Overall opposition is recommended.

1j. Elect Gordon M. Nixon - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating, Governance and Sustainability Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Additionally regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
Furthermore as the Chair of the Nomination, Governance and Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 58.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 41.3,

3. Approve Amendment to the 1999 Stock Award and Incentive Plan
The Board proposes shareholders vote on the amendment to the BlackRock, Inc. Third Amended and Restated 1999 Stock Award and Incentive Plan. The Board is seeking to increase the number of shares of common stock, authorised for issuance under the plan from 41,500,000 to 48,500,000 shares. The Board believes that the existing number of shares authorised for issuance will not be sufficient to meeting the Company's anticipated needs to support the equity compensation plan beyond 2024. The Plan is eligible to all employees and non-employee members of the Board. Under the plan, participants are eligible to receive stock options, stock appreciation rights and restricted stock units. The Management Development and Compensation committee administers the stock plan. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

4. Appoint the Auditors: Deloitte LLP
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.04% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.49% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5. Shareholder Resolution: Report on EEO Policy Risk
Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research request that "BlackRock, Inc. issue a public report detailing the potential risks associated with omitting "viewpoint" and "ideology" from its written equal employment opportunity (EEO) policy. The report should be available within a reasonable timeframe, prepared at a reasonable expense and omit proprietary information." The Proponent supports the proposal with the following: "BlackRock does not explicitly prohibit discrimination based on viewpoint or ideology in its written EEO policy. BlackRock's lack of a company-wide best practice EEO policy sends mixed signals to company employees and prospective employees and calls into question the extent to which individuals are protected due to inconsistent state policies and the absence of a relevant federal protection. Approximately half of Americans live and work in a jurisdiction with no legal protections if their employer takes action against them for their political activities or discriminates on the basis of viewpoint in the workplace. Companies with inclusive policies are better able to recruit the most talented employees from a broad labor pool, resolve complaints internally to avoid costly litigation or reputational damage, and minimize employee turnover. Moreover, inclusive policies contribute to more efficient human capital management by eliminating the need to maintain different policies in different locations.".
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The Company states that "BlackRock is committed to cultivating an inclusive work environment where everyone has fair access to opportunities and feels seen, heard, valued and respected. We believe that diversity of thought, experiences, and backgrounds, in all its forms, helps BlackRock build stronger and better teams, avoid group think, and solve tough problems, today and in the future. As discussed below, our existing policies, including our Equal Employment Opportunity, Non-Harassment and Retaliation Prevention Policy ("EEO Policy"), reflect this commitment. The EEO Policy, which is applicable to the Americas region (excluding Canada), establishes our expectations for a productive and positive work environment, alerts employees to their legal rights under applicable laws, and provides information on options for raising concerns either internally or externally. As stated in the EEO Policy, BlackRock does not discriminate against any employee or applicant because of race, color, creed, religion, sex, pregnancy status, pregnancy-related conditions, national origin, ancestry, mental or physical disability, medical condition, age, veteran status, military status, citizenship status, marital status, familial status, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity or expression, genetic information, political affiliation, unemployment status, or any other characteristic protected by law (referred to as "Protected Status").".
PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

1.02. Elect Antonio F. Neri - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and member of the Governance Committee.
At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the chair of the Governance committee is not up for election, members of the committee are held accountable for this lack of disclosure.
Additionally, as the Chair of the Governance Committee is not up for election, the members of the Governance Committee are considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

1. Approve Consolidated Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

8. Approve the Remuneration of Mr Patrice Caine, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. However, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. Opposition is recommended.

10. Approve Remuneration Policy of the Chair and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

14. Issue Shares for Cash
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 86.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 13.5,

15. Approve Issue of Shares for Private Placement
The Board requests authority to approve a global authority for the issue of capital related securities without pre-emptive rights by private placement. The authorisation is valid up to 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 26 months. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 86.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 13.5,

16. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Securities Issued in case of Exceptional Demand
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.

A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

17. Approve Issue of Shares Deviating from Price Fixing Conditions
The Board requests authority to issue capital related securities without adhering to the general pricing conditions. Under this authority, the company would be authorised to issues shares at a discount of 10% up to a total of 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 12 months at a time, until a total duration of the authority of 26 months. Given concerns over the level of discount and the amount of the authority, opposition is recommended.

21. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan
Authority for a capital increase for up to 2% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% or 40% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

BAYERISCHE MOTOREN WERKE AG AGM - 15-05-2024

4.1. Discharge Norbert Reithofer
Standard proposal.
Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

6.2. Elect Stefan Quandt - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Audit and Remuneration Committees. Not considered independent as he is a significant shareholder through the company Aqton SE. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. It is considered that the two mentioned committees should be fully independent and where that is not the case, opposition is recommended.

1.06. Elect Jeffrey M. Leiden - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1e. Elect Edith E. Holiday - Non-Executive Director
Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. 13. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACA. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 75.2, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 24.0,

3. Appoint the Auditors: Ernst & Young LLP
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.86% of audit fees during the year under review and 19.12% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 58.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 41.1,

6. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

7.1. Re-elect Ian Gallienne - Vice Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Independent Non-Executive Vice Chair of the Board and member of the remuneration and nomination committees. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 77.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 22.4,

7.4. Re-elect Thomas Rabe - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board and chair of the nomination committee and remuneration commmittee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Additionally, it is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report and policy as well as the concerns raised above, opposition is recommended.

RENAULT SA AGM - 16-05-2024

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and have been audited and certified. The Company's Sustainability programme is considered to be adequate in order to minimize the impact from material non-financial risks and aiming at better performance.

Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

19. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 88.4, Abstain: 11.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.2,

23. Issue Shares for Cash by way of Public Offering

Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 83.9, Abstain: 11.4, Oppose/Withhold: 4.7,

24. Issue Shares for Cash through Public Offerings Referred to in 1 of Article L.411-2 of the French Monetary and Financial Code

Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 83.6, Abstain: 11.4, Oppose/Withhold: 5.0,

26. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan

Authority for a capital increase for up to 2% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 88.3, Abstain: 11.4, Oppose/Withhold: 0.4,

27. Approve free issue of shares for Employees and Executive Officers

Proposal to authorize for 26 months the Board to allot shares free of charge to employees and executives. Share issued under this authorization will not enjoy pre-emptive rights and will be attributed free of charge to management or employees. The Board would maintain full discretion over the beneficiaries. Incentives such as this are not related to performance and as such may reward the position of the recipient instead of performance. Opposition is recommended.

UNIVERSAL MUSIC GROUP N.V. AGM - 16-05-2024

4.. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 70.6, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 28.9,

5.. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to oppose this resolution.

9.d.. Re-elect James Mitchell - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: they were appointed at the designation of the Tencent-led consortium such in accordance with the Relationship Agreement. In addition, not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as Executive Director between February 2021 and September 2021. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. On balance, support is recommended. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

10.b.. Issuance of Shares for Existing Incentive Plan
The Board is seeking to issue shares and grant rights to subscribe for shares up to a maximum 5% of the Company's issued share capital. Under this allocation, Non-Executive Directors would receive a variable component on top of their fees. It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees, as variable compensation may align them with short-term interests and not with long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.0,

11.a. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

TEXAS ROADHOUSE INC AGM - 16-05-2024

1.02. Re-elect Michael A. Crawford - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Remuneration Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.05. Re-elect Gregory N. Moore - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Audit and Remuneration Committees. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. It is considered that the Audit and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.07. Re-elect Curtis A. Warfield - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.08. Re-elect Kathleen M. Widmer - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Nomination and Remuneration Committees. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.89% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.26% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

5.1. Elect Evan G. Greenberg - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.5, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 6.2,

5.2. Elect Michael P. Connors - Lead Independent Director
Lead Independent Director, Member of the Compensation Committee and Member of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation Committee and the Nominating and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.6,

5.3. Elect Michael G. Atieh - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.4, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.5,

5.4. Elect Nancy K. Buese - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as a consultant to the Board of Directors since September 2022. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.4, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

5.5. Elect Sheila P. Burke - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as she was appointed to the board by the CEO of Chubb Corporation and ACE Limited in connection with the merger in 2015. There are concerns over this selection process as it was carried out by the CEO of both companies as opposed to the independent directors. From 1997 to 2015 she served as a Non-Executive Director of Chubb Corp. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.7,

5.9. Elect Robert Scully - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

5.10. Elect Theodore E. Shasta - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.4, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.5,

5.11. Elect David Sidwell - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee and Member of the Compensation committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee and the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

Addionally, as the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 87.5, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 12.4,

7.1. Elect Compensation Committee Member: Michael P. Connors
Non-Executive Director, candidate to the Remuneration Committee on this resolution. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Remuneration Committee should consist exclusively of independent members. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 4.3,

7.2. Elect Compensation Committee Member: David H. Sidwell
Non-Executive Director, candidate to the Remuneration Committee on this resolution. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Remuneration Committee should consist exclusively of independent members. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.2, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 4.7,

12.2. Approve Executive Directors' Fees
It is proposed to increase the maximum amount payable to the Executive Board by more than 10% on average per member and on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the Company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.1, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 2.6,

12.3. Approve the Compensation Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.7,

14. Approve Sustainability Report
The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks.

5.1. Appoint the Auditors
In April 2023, EY faced significant sanctions from German regulators due to their role in the Wirecard scandal. EY was banned from carrying out audits for firms of public interest in Germany for two years. This ban was a consequence of EY's failure in their auditing responsibilities related to Wirecard, a German payment processor that collapsed in 2020 after revealing a EUR 1.9 billion hole in its accounts. The collapse of Wirecard led to substantial losses for investors and hindering confidence in the auditing processes. Given the severity of the sanctions and the concerns raised regarding audit quality and compliance, and although the ban did not cover existing audit agreements, it is recommended to oppose the election or re-election of EY until fiscal year 2025. Aligning with the stance of regulators underscores a commitment to upholding standards of accountability and transparency within the company's governance framework.

5.2. Appoint the Auditors for the Sustainability Report
In April 2023, EY faced significant sanctions from German regulators due to their role in the Wirecard scandal. EY was banned from carrying out audits for firms of public interest in Germany for two years. This ban was a consequence of EY's failure in their auditing responsibilities related to Wirecard, a German payment processor that collapsed in 2020 after revealing a EUR 1.9 billion hole in its accounts. The collapse of Wirecard led to substantial losses for investors and hindering confidence in the auditing processes. Given the severity of the sanctions and the concerns raised regarding audit quality and compliance, and although the ban did not cover existing audit agreements, it is recommended to oppose the election or re-election of EY until fiscal year 2025. Aligning with the stance of regulators underscores a commitment to upholding standards of accountability and transparency within the company's governance framework.

AT&T INC. AGM - 16-05-2024

1a. Elect Scott T. Ford - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Human Resources Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Human Resources Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1b. Elect Glenn H. Hutchins - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Governance and Policy Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance and Policy Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Governance and Policy Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Overall opposition is recommended.

1c. Elect William E. Kennard - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Human Resources Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Human Resources Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole.
Furthermore, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Furthermore, as the Company does not have a board election committee in charge of their sustainability policies, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.
Additionally, during the year under review, the company has been accused of environmental mismanagement. On 28 July 2023, a complaint was filed with the US District Court in New Jersey over Justice Department and EPA probes into lead cables. Probes into lead cables across the US stemmed from an investigation by the Wall Street Journal in July 2023. AT&T shareholder John Brazinsky filed the complaint to seek damages over falling stock prices pursuant to the news exposed by the probe. The lead cables, inherited by telecommunication companies like AT&T from former owner and operator Bell Systems, were abandoned despite knowledge of the health risks associated with lead. While no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are nevertheless concerns over the potential impact of these allegations. As such, as the Company does not have a board elected sustainability committee, it is recommended to hold the Chair of the Board responsible.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Respecting Workforce Civil Liberties

Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research proposes that the Board conduct an evaluation and issue a report within the next year, at reasonable cost and excluding proprietary information and disclosure of anything that would constitute an admission of pending litigation, evaluating how AT&T's policies and practices impact employees and prospective employees based on their religion (including religious views) or political, social and environmental view, and the risks those impacts present to Company's business. "AT&T employs more than 160,000 people. It should respect its employees' speech rights and religious freedom. Company legally must comply with many laws prohibiting discrimination against employees on many grounds, including religion and sometimes political affiliation. Respecting diverse views and beliefs allows Company to attract the most qualified talent, promote a healthy and innovative business culture, and contribute to a healthy economic market and marketplace of ideas. Company bottom-lines, and thus shareholder value, decrease when ideological lockstep makes the risks of hyperpartisan behavior invisible. The Company must act now to assess and correct potential shortcomings. Corporations have recently lost such illegal discrimination actions, paying $10 to $25 million in damages, plus litigation costs. The risk of these suits is rising. AT&T has a proven record of discrimination on illegal grounds and of active campaigns against religious liberty."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We take an affirmative stance in support of equality, including free speech and religious freedom, and against discrimination. Standing for equality aligns with our Company Purpose of connecting people to greater possibility. Our publicly disclosed policies and our robust practices reflect this commitment. We reached out to the proponent and engaged in a lengthy discussion about the commitment we have to respecting human rights and providing a fully fair and equitable workforce for all. After listening to the proponent, we reviewed our policies and public statements and will be making adjustments to clarify, ensure consistency and reinforce our commitment to equitable policies for all employees. At its most basic level, the infrastructure we build and operate is part of a global platform which enables the ability to connect and communicate. Through our services and platforms, we make it possible for our users to hold and share opinions freely, to seek out the ideas of others and to communicate their own. Our Human Rights Policy codifies our approach to equality in the workplace. As an employer, we strive to be a preferred place to work, to be respectful and supportive of our workforce, and to provide an inclusive culture. We agree with the proponent's assertion that respecting diverse views and beliefs allows our Company to attract the most qualified talent, promote a healthy and innovative business culture, and contribute to a healthy economic market. However, we believe that the disclosed policies and practices we already have in place effectively safeguard our workforce's civil liberties, making the report requested by this proposal redundant and not in the best interests of stockholders.

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report. However, it is clear from Company reporting that adequate measures have been taken in order to address shareholder dissent. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

16. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as auditor
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 5.73% of audit fees during the year under review and 6.59% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

As in previous years, the company seeks authority to enter into off-market contingent purchase contracts with any of Goldman Sachs International, UBS AG, BNP Paribas and Barclays Bank plc under which shares may be purchased off-market at a discount to the market price prevailing at the date each contract is entered into. The maximum which the Company would be permitted to purchase pursuant to this authority would be lower of 3 million shares or a total cost of up to GBP 200 million. The contracts would enable the company to make share purchases at all times, including close periods, such as prior to the announcement of interim and full year results, under contingent forward trades. The authority represents approximately 2.4% of the issued share capital. There is a concern regarding the potential repurchase of shares during a closed trading period, as this off market authority may potentially allow for transactions to still occur. Therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments are debt securities which convert into ordinary shares in certain prescribed circumstances. They are additional tier 1 ('AT1') instruments which convert into ordinary shares of the Company should the Company's common equity tier 1 ratio fall below a contractually defined trigger point. They benefit from a specific regulatory capital treatment under European Union legislation.

The use of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instrument is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. They are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in the banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. There are important concerns about the destabilizing effect of such instruments on both the instrument price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

20. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

21. Authorise Issue of Equity without Pre-Emptive Rights in Relation to the Issue of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments
This resolution will give the Directors authority to allot Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments without the need to first offer them to existing shareholders. If passed, Resolution 21 will authorize the Directors to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into shares in the Company on a non-pre-emptive basis up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 1,250,000,000, representing approximately 18.65% of the Company's issued share capital. In line with the voting recommendation on resolution 18, an oppose vote is recommended.

22. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

HEIDELBERG MATERIALS AG AGM - 16-05-2024

3.1. Discharge Management Board Member: Dr Dominik von Achten
Standard proposal.
Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 2.9, Oppose/Withhold: 0.4,

3.6. Discharge Management Board Member: Dr Nicola Kimm

Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability and the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, abstention is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 2.9, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

6. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.8, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.2,

7. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

8.1. Re-elect Dr. Bernd Scheifele - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as a member of the Managing Board. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Overall, an oppose vote is recommended.

8.2. Re-elect Ludwig Merckle - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director Chairman of the Personnel and Nomination committees, member of the Audit Committee and of the Sustainability and Innovation Committee. Not considered to be independent as he holds significant share ownership of the Company's issued share capital. In addition he has served on the Board for more than nine years. It is considered that board-level committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1g. Elect Jerome A. Peribere - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
As the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.

A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. Although the potential total reward does not excessiveness concerns, the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

3. Appoint the Auditors
Grant Thornton proposed. No Non-audit fees represented during the year under review and 1.78% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

INTERCONTINENTAL EXCHANGE, INC. AGM - 17-05-2024

1f. Elect Thomas E. Noonan - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nomination Committee and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. In addition, as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

1h. Elect Jeffrey C. Sprecher - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1i. Elect Judith A. Sprieser - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee, Member of the Nomination and Sustainability Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Sustainability Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

5.a. Appoint the Auditors for the fiscal year 2024
In April 2023, Ernst /[htmltag][htmltag][htmltag]/ Young (EY) faced significant sanctions from German regulators due to their role in the Wirecard scandal. EY was banned from carrying out audits for firms of public interest in Germany for two years. This ban was a consequence of EY's failure in their auditing responsibilities related to Wirecard, a German payment processor that collapsed in 2020 after revealing a EUR 1.9 billion hole in its accounts. The collapse of Wirecard led to substantial losses for investors and hindering confidence in the auditing processes. Given the severity of the sanctions and the concerns raised regarding audit quality and compliance, and although the ban did not cover existing audit agreements, it is recommended to oppose the election or re-election of EY until fiscal year 2025. Aligning with the stance of regulators underscores a commitment to upholding standards of accountability and transparency within the company's governance framework.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.1, Abstain: 2.8, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are not considered excessive as they do not exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report. However, it is clear from Company reporting that adequate measures have been taken in order to address shareholder dissent. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.5,

4. Re-appoint KPMG Ireland as independent auditor of the Company
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 2.05% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration, Nomination and Audit Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. 13. Re-elect Douglas Sutherland - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Furthermore, as the Company do not have a Board level Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability. In addition, on the 2023 Annual General Meeting the re-election of Mr. Sutherland received significant opposition of 10.09% of the votes and the Company did not disclose information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Overall, opposition is recommended.

Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. Governance
The policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company.
There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues.
The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.
Disclosure
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.
The company has not pledged to refrain from financing new plans based on fossil fuels. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with the marginal cost of renewables being cheaper, and energy security being increasingly seen in terms of non-fossil sources.

PIRC Analysis
The company has said it will be carbon neutral by 2050 and has extended this commitment to its Scope 1, Scope 2 and Scope 3 emissions. However, the strategy does not seemingly address the challenges the company faces, with competition from renewable energy potentially putting fossil fuel businesses out of business on grounds of costs. The company does not seem to have a clear plan for the competitive aspects of the energy transition and there does not seem to be a sharp target or commitment. Reviewing the strategy according to new scenarios concerning decarbonization in order to be aligned with customer sentiment or other changes in society, does not seemingly puts the company in the position of taking the lead in decarbonization. Rather, it appears too accommodating and inconsistent with the policy objectives and some of the targets. Under such assumption, there is no guarantee that the targets would be reviewed to a lower ambition or that they will not be met at all. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

HENRY SCHEIN INC. AGM - 21-05-2024

1b. Elect Stanley M. Bergman - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1g. Elect Philip A. Laskawy - Senior Independent Director
Lead Independent Director, Chair of the nominating and Governance Committee and Member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. Additionally in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee and the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

Additionally, as the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended

2. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan

It is proposed to amend 2020 Stock Incentive Plan. The Board proposes to make the following amendments; change the name of the plan to '2024 Stock Incentive Plan'; Increase of the Aggregate Share Reserve by 4,800,000 shares; Increase of Individual Participant Limitations to 750,000 shares; Extend the term of the plan to March 31, 2034; and Introduce clawbacks to all awards granted under the plan.

There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

During the year under review, a fine has been issued for fraud at the company, and while the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, there are concerns about the sufficiency of the board-level ethics and compliance oversight. 3. Approval of amended and restated long-term incentive plan effective May 21, 2024

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Humanitarian Risks due to Climate Change Policies

Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center request the Board of Directors to oversee an audit that analyzes the impacts, both adverse and beneficial, of JPM's climate transition policies regarding the economic and humanitarian effects on emerging nations, which rely heavily on - but have limited access to - fossil fuels and other non-"renewable" sources of power, such as nuclear. "JPM has made energy transition policies integral to its lending and underwriting activities: •JPM joined the Net-Zero Banking Alliance in October 2021. The NZBA is a group of leading global banks, convened by the United Nations, committed to transitioning the economy to net-zero emissions by 2050. •JPM has pledged to finance and facilitate $2.5 trillion in climate action and sustainable development by 2030. •JPM is targeting a 31% reduction in emissions from crude steel production and a 36% reduction from aviation by 2030. •JPM has promised to phase out "credit exposure" to the coal extraction industry by 2024. •"The J.P. Morgan Development Finance Institution (JPM DFI) was established in January 2020 to mobilize finance in support of the UN Sustainable Development Goals in emerging economies." JPM's climate policies appear to conflict with its commitment to the SDGs, especially the first goal of "no poverty." "

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Firm's objectives across our sustainable development activities and climate are complementary. JPMorgan Chase has committed to finance and facilitate $2.5 trillion over 10 years - from 2021 through the end of 2030 - to advance long-term solutions that address climate change and contribute to sustainable development ("Sustainable Development Target"), which we believe will help accelerate the transition to a low-carbon economy while also supporting socioeconomic development and inclusive growth for people and communities around the world. As this finance target is measured across both sustainability and climate, those objectives are by definition complementary. More importantly, we do not agree with the implied premise that progress on business-driven climate objectives hinders progress on sustainable development, or vice versa. The Firm's sustainable development activities are focused in three areas, one of which is development finance to support socioeconomic development in emerging economies, with an emphasis on mobilizing capital to advance the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals ("SDGs"). Contrary to the proponent's claim that our policies appear to conflict with the SDGs, in 2021 and 2022, the Firm financed and facilitated $482 billion toward its Sustainable Development Target, including $204 billion for development finance."

PIRC analysis: Increased disclosure would normally be considered to be in shareholders' interests. However, the proposed report is considered to be based on flawed methodology. The proponent seeks a report exclusively focused on short-term costs and benefits for the company, excluding the long-term benefits of transitioning to a lower-carbon economy, including economic ones and for jobs creation, also in developing countries. Reducing the company's financing of businesses heavily invested in fossil fuels is in shareholders' best interests as fossil fuels are a risky business and ignoring the impact of climate change on business and life on the planed bears long-term costs, which are not considered to be in the best interests of any of the company's stakeholders. Additionally, the methodology used by the proponent appears to be flawed, as the link made by the proponent between decarbonization and poverty of people in developing countries is seemingly an artificial one. On balance, a vote in opposition of the resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 1.0, Abstain: 1.2, Oppose/Withhold: 97.7,

11. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Respecting Workforce Civil Liberties

Proponent's argument: Bowyer Research Inc. on behalf of The Bahnsen Family Trust request the Board of Directors conduct an evaluation and issue a civil rights and non-discrimination report within the next year, evaluating how Chase's policies and practices impact employees and prospective employees based on their religion (including religious views) or political views, and the risks those impacts present to Chase's business. "The Company funds abortion provider Planned Parenthood and has pledged coverage for "medically necessary transition-related care" for its employees and their children. The 2023 [Viewpoint Diversity] Index also found that 78% of scored companies discriminate against religious nonprofits in their charitable giving and 63% give money to legislation that undermines fundamental First Amendment freedoms. According to the Freedom at Work survey, 60% of employees were concerned that their company would punish them for expressing their religious or political views at work, and 54% said they feared the same for sharing these views even on their private social media accounts. These concerns become relevant in the case of Chase. As per the 1792 Exchange's 2023 report, Chase has been accused of terminating the accounts of politically conservative customers without disclosing the rationale for such debanking. Companies may also face additional legal liability for DE&I programs that make distinctions based on race or that discriminate based on religious practices, per the recent Supreme Court decisions in Students for Fair Admission v. Harvard and Groff v DeJoy. In light of these risks, the Company must take immediate steps to assess potential shortcomings and act to remedy these concerns."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The Firm maintains internal processes to create a culture that empowers employees to raise concerns. This provides an opportunity for the Firm to gain insight into concerns about its workplace environment, recognize potential risks, and gauge the effectiveness of policies such as those related to anti-discrimination, anti-harassment, and anti-retaliation. The proposal misleadingly cites findings of a survey, in which the Firm did not participate. The proposal also raises general accusations that "many companies" alienate their own employees, without specifying their application to the Firm. At JPMorgan Chase, we rely on various surveys to assess employee sentiment, such as employee exit surveys and Employee Opinion Surveys that gather feedback on areas such as employee engagement, operational excellence, and commitment to integrity, fairness, and responsibility. Through these surveys, the Firm receives additional insight into where things are going well and areas presenting opportunities for improvement."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship.However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides customers with access to a variety of viewpoints, including books that some customers may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be acceptable or that customers should be able to donate via company's programme to any organisation of their choice. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

ANSYS INC EGM - 22-05-2024

2. Approve Merger-related Compensation

Introduction: The board seeks to approve, on a non-binding, advisory basis, the merger-related compensation that will or may be paid to Ansys' named executive officers in connection with the transactions contemplated by the merger agreement, which proposal is referred to as the "compensation proposal". Accordingly, if the merger agreement is adopted and the merger is completed, the merger-related compensation will be paid to Ansys' named executive officers to the extent payable in accordance with the terms of the compensation agreements and arrangements, regardless of the outcome of the vote on this compensation proposal.

Proposal: This proposal only applies to Named Executive Officers. Golden parachute payments include cash, equity or other compensation that is paid out or vests due to a senior executive's termination for any reason. Payments include those provided under employment agreements, severance plans, and change-in-control clauses in long-term equity plans, but not life insurance, pension benefits, or deferred compensation earned and vested prior to termination. "Estimated total value" includes: lump-sum payments; payments offsetting tax liabilities; perquisites or benefits not vested under a plan generally available to management employees; post-employment consulting fees or office expense; and equity awards if vesting is accelerated, or a performance condition waived, due to termination.

Rationale: For purposes of quantifying the potential payments and benefits described, the following assumptions were used: a) The effective time is March 11, 2024; b) The relevant price per share of Ansys common stock is $332.79, which is the average closing price per share of Ansys common stock as reported on the Nasdaq over the first five business days following the first public announcement of the merger on January 16, 2024; c) each executive officer of Ansys experiences a qualifying termination of employment immediately following the assumed effective time of March 11, 2024.
Recommendation: It is considered that "golden parachutes" can lead to a misalignment of interests between executives and shareholders. These arrangements often result in substantial payments to executives upon termination, irrespective of the company's performance or financial standing. This protection may shield executives from accountability for poor performance or misconduct, allowing for generous payouts even in cases of underperformance or ethical breaches. Considering the concerns regarding potential underperformance and excessive payments, it is advisable to vote against such resolution.

AMAZON.COM INC. AGM - 22-05-2024

1a. Elect Jeffrey P. Bezos - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Additionally, as the Company does not have a board elected Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Furthermore, during the year under review, litigation against the company has reached an unfavourable verdict and there are concerns over how this could financially or reputationally impact the company. On May 31 2023, Reuters reported on a USD5.8 million settlement filed by the FTC with Amazon over privacy concerns with Ring products. Ring was acquired by the Company in April 2018. It was alleged that Ring employees were given unrestricted access to sensitive customer data, which the regulator alleged allowed employees to view, download and transfer videos of customers. As such, it is not clear that the Audit Committee has performed adequate risk oversight to prevent this issue from leading to damaging legal action. Therefore, opposition is recommended to the election of the Executive Chair of the Company.

Additionally, during the year under review, the company has been fined for an issue with its data management practices. On 19 July 2023, the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Department of Justice announced that Amazon.com Inc has agreed to a USD 25 million penalty and permanent injunction regarding the alleged violation of data privacy under the Children's Online Protection Act, Federal Trade Commission Act and Children's Online Privacy Protection Rule. It was alleged that Amazon retained voice recordings from children using the Alexa device. On May 31 2023, the FTC filed a complaint with the Department of Justice over Amazon's alleged violation of the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act Rule. The Company's Alexa devices were found to retain geolocated information despite assuring users that voice recordings could be deleted from the device. The proposed order requires the Company to pay USD 25 million in civil penalty as well as other provisions that would notify users of the FTC-DOJ action against the Company. On 31 May 2023, the company said that it agreed to pay more than USD 30 million. While the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, is not apparent that the company has adequate data protection controls in place to protect the company and its stakeholders' data. Therefore, opposition is recommended to the election of the Executive Chair of the Company.

1b. Elect Andrew R. Jassy - Chief Executive

Chief Executive.

During the year under review, there have been allegations over the company's labour practices. On 31 October 2023, the United Nations (UN) made public letters and requests to some US corporations like Walmart, DoorDash and Amazon regarding allegations that low wages paid to workers trapped workers in cycles of poverty, leaving them dependent on government aid. Led by Olivier Schutter, the UN's special rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights, the requests addressed inadequate pay and the misclassification of workers as "independent contractors" which deprived workers of benefits such as minimum wage guarantees. While no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are concerns about how potentially failing to meet expectations in labour management could impact the company's ability to retain or attract talents, as well as its reputation. It is considered that the company should not rely on compliance with law as a minimum, but aiming at best practice.

Additionally, during the year under review, the company has been accused of misleading advertisement. On 21 June 2023, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accused Amazon.com of enrolling millions of consumers into its paid subscription Amazon Prime without their consent. The FTC sued Amazon, alleging that the Company has used "manipulative, coercive or deceptive user-interface designs known as 'dark patterns' to trick customers into enrolling in automatically renewing Prime subscriptions." The FTC sought civil penalties and a permanent injunction to prevent future violations. Amazon's sign-up and cancellation process has been under investigation since March 2021. This marked the first major lawsuit against Amazon since investigations began. While no wrongdoing has yet been identified, there are concerns about the potential reputational and legal implications of this on the company. Owing to this, it is recommended to abstain on the re-election of the CEO.

Senior Independent Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Overall opposition is recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors: Ernst & Young LLP

5. Shareholder Resolution: Corporate Financial Sustainability Report
Proponent's argument National Center for Public Policy Research request that the Board of Directors create a board committee on corporate financial sustainability to oversee and review the impact of the Company's policy positions, advocacy, partnerships and charitable giving on social and political matters, and the effect of those actions on the Company's financial sustainability. "The Company takes public and politically divisive positions over issues of significant social policy concern, including discriminating in service provision against mainstream viewpoints with which its executives differ. Likewise, it opposed common-sense voting-integrity provisions that most Americans of all surface-characteristic categories support. [...] The Company supports divisive organizations and takes public stances on divisive issues that alienate current and prospective consumers and draw even more regulatory and legislative attention than it's already under. Recent events have made clear that company bottom-lines, and therefore value to shareholders, drop when companies take overtly political and divisive positions that alienate consumers. Following Bud Light's embrace of partisanship and disparagement of its customer base, its revenue fell $395 million in North America when compared to the same time a year ago. This amounts to roughly 10 percent of its revenue in the months following its leap into contentious politics. Target Corporation's market cap fell over $15 billion amid backlash for similar actions. And Disney stock fell 44 percent in 2022-its worst performance in nearly 50 years-amid its decision to put extreme partisan agendas ahead of parents' rights."

Company's response The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We believe that our current Board and committee structure already provides an appropriate level of oversight of the types of matters raised in the proposal. The full Board has overall responsibility for risk oversight and regularly oversees and reviews reports from management on various aspects of our business, including related risks and strategies for addressing them. In addition, the Board has delegated responsibility related to certain risks to our standing Board committees, which are comprised solely of independent directors. For example, under its charter, the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is responsible for overseeing and monitoring the Company's policies and initiatives relating to our corporate social responsibility practices, including human rights and ethical business practices, and risks related to our operations and engagement with customers, suppliers, and communities. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee also regularly reviews the Company's public policy, government relations, and public relations initiatives. In addition, the Audit Committee is responsible for overseeing our policies, procedures, and reports with respect to political contributions and lobbying expenses, including donations to trade associations and social welfare organizations, and for our risk assessment and risk management policies. Finally, the Leadership Development and Compensation Committee is responsible for overseeing and monitoring our strategies and policies related to human capital management within our workforce, including with respect to policies on diversity, equity, and inclusion, our workplace environment and safety, and corporate culture. These committees regularly meet with, and receive updates from, management on Amazon's policies, practices, and initiatives relating to such matters. "

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. Increased disclosure that links charitable spending with Financial Sustainability would normally be considered to be in shareholders' interests. Nevertheless, the identification of donations to certain charities as the sole or at least a direct responsible for a company's stock price is disputable. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology with the intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company may donate. On the contrary, the fact that the company provides donations to different charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all charities or all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. On balance, a vote in opposition of the resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 0.6, Abstain: 1.8, Oppose/Withhold: 97.6,

9. Shareholder Resolution: Respect Civil Liberties in Digital Services

Proponent's argument: The American Family Association request that the Board of Directors of Amazon conduct an evaluation and issue a report within the next year, at reasonable cost and excluding proprietary information and disclosure of anything that would constitute an admission of pending litigation, evaluating how it oversees risks related to denying or restricting service to users or customers based on their viewpoint under "hate speech," "misinformation," and related policies, other terms of use or content management policies, or any other policies or practices, and how such viewpoint discrimination impacts users, customers, and other individuals' exercise of their constitutionally protected civil rights. "Digital service providers (DSPs) control access to critical services and platforms that drive innovation in the American economy and facilitate expression and the open exchange of information across the globe. These companies have unprecedented power to censor speech. And they are under increasing pressure to remove unpopular religious and political views from the marketplace. Respecting fundamental freedoms, like free speech and religious liberty, drives healthy discourse and tolerance for diverse views. Amazon, Inc. can and should promote these freedoms to best serve its diverse users and promote a healthy market and marketplace of ideas. Economic growth also requires innovation, and that requires the freedom to challenge the status quo. If DSPs build their own social credit system, they are going to lock out Americans from some of the best tools for innovation and growth."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We keep in mind the cultural differences and sensitivities of our global community when making decisions on products, and as a store, we've chosen to offer a very broad range of viewpoints. We strive to maximize selection for all customers, even if we do not agree with the message or sentiment of all of the products. [...] In addition to the policies, programs, and initiatives that support our commitment to diversity and respect for people from all backgrounds, we have risk management processes to protect against risks to the Company. The Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee oversees and monitors our policies and initiatives relating to corporate social responsibility, including human rights and ethical business practices, and related risks most relevant to the Company's operations and engagement with customers, suppliers, and communities; and the Audit Committee oversees, among other things, our risk assessment and risk management policies, including management of operational risks."

PIRC analysis: The proposal does not request the company to consult with technology and civil liberties experts and civil and human rights advocates to assess the level of risk of misrepresenting facts and allowing or even inciting misinformation by its platform being used by any customer. Rather, the proponent appears to consider that misinformation (such as denying the reality of anthropogenic global warming, or that of the COVID pandemic) should be treated with the same dignity of scientific and fact-based information, on the basis of a flawed assumption of freedom of expression. Research has shown that misinformation has deep impact across society as a whole and appear to be tied to lower-income section of society. This proposal seemingly aims to ensure that misinformative views are represented on the platform, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of diversity and requesting transparency over the financial impact from these issues, avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is thus recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 0.8, Abstain: 0.7, Oppose/Withhold: 98.5,

15. Shareholder Resolution: Adopt a Policy for Director Transparency

Proponent's argument National Legal and Policy Center request the Board adopt as policy, and amend the governing documents as necessary, to require director nominees to furnish the Company, in sufficient time before publication of the annual proxy statement, information about their political and charitable giving. The information would be most valuable if it contained: • a list of his or her donations to federal and state political candidates, and to political action committees, in amounts that exceed $999 per year, for the preceding 10 years; • a list of his or her donations to nonprofit (under all IRS categories) and charitable organizations, in amounts that exceed $1,999 per year, for the preceding five years. "Amazon.com, Inc. [...] donated at least $10 million6 to groups7 that support lenient criminal justice policies following the death of George Floyd, policies that have destroyed many U.S. inner cities. Despite warnings, the Company's executive chair remained intransigent and tone-deaf.8 Unsurprisingly, the Company has now suffered a crime epidemic in its home city of Seattle.9 Corporate underperformance can be avoided if directors exercise greater risk oversight objectively. "Amazon's Board of Directors is responsible for the control and direction of the company,"10 but shareholders are uninformed about members' ideological and political views. Greater transparency is needed to allow shareholders to know whether our Board suffers partisan capture and therefore the group-think and ideological blinders that have cost some companies dearly in recent years.

Company's response The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The proposal is based on the false premise that individual director nominees' personal charitable and political giving reflects how the Board manages and oversees the Company. Under Delaware corporate law, our Board members have fiduciary duties of care and loyalty to our shareholders and must act in our shareholders' best interest, including in the context of the Board's actions and decisions around director nominations. The duty of care requires informed, deliberative decision-making based on the material information reasonably available. The duty of loyalty requires acting on a disinterested and independent basis, in good faith, with an honest belief that the action is in the best interest of shareholders. Our Board represents the long-term interests of our shareholders consistent with these principles."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding directors' donations to charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that a director provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

COCA-COLA EUROPACIFIC PARTNERS AGM - 22-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.59% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.26% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

23. Waiver of mandatory offer provisions set out in Rule 9 of the Takeover Code
The company are proposing a Rule 9 waiver, which will exempt Olive Partners S.A. and associates from the requirement to make an offer for the entire share capital of the Company. If the Company were to repurchase from persons other than the concert party all the ordinary shares for which it is seeking authority, their interest would increase up to 40.1034% of the issued share capital. The share repurchase linked to this proposal will mean that the controlling shareholder will further increase its holdings and therefore this requested waiver is not supported, given its impact on the governance of the company by minority shareholders.

Vote Cast: Oppose

25. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

32. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

34. Approve Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities for Private Placements, up to Aggregate Nominal Amount of EUR 908 Million
The Board requests authority to approve a global authority for the issue of capital related securities without pre-emptive rights by private placement. The authorisation is valid up to 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 26 months. This authority is not requested in connection with a particular operation and has not been duly justified by the Company. Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.3, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 2.9,

35. Authorize Issuance of Equity or Equity-Linked Securities without Preemptive Rights up to Aggregate Nominal Amount of EUR 908 Million
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.2, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 1.9,

36. Authorize Board to Increase Capital in the Event of Additional Demand Related to Delegation Submitted to Shareholder Vote Under Items 33-35, 37-38 and 41-42
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Given the potential for inequitable treatment of shareholders, opposition is recommended.

38. Authorize Board to Set Issue Price for 10 Percent Per Year of Issued Capital Pursuant to Issue Authority without Preemptive Rights
The Board requests authority to issue capital related securities without adhering to the general pricing conditions. Under this authority, the company would be authorised to issues shares at a discount of 10% up to a total of 10% of the issued share capital over a period of 12 months at a time, until a total duration of the authority of 26 months. Given concerns over the level of discount and the amount of the authority, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.6, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

41. Authorize Capital Issuances for Use in Employee Stock Purchase Plans
Authority for a capital increase for up to 1% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.4, Abstain: 0.8, Oppose/Withhold: 0.8,

42. Authorize Capital Issuances for Use in Employee Stock Purchase Plans Reserved for Employees of the Group's Subsidiaries
Authority for a capital increase for up to 1% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. MONDELEZ INTERNATIONAL INC AGM - 22-05-2024

1.02. Elect Charles E. Bunch - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and chair of the Governance, Membership and Sustainability committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Additionally as the Chair of the Governance, Membership and Sustainability committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.2, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 4.5,

1.05. Elect Jorge S. Mesquita - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.8, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.9,

1.09. Elect Patrick T. Siewert - Lead Independent Director
Lead Independent Director. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Therefore a oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 3.0,

1.10. Elect Michael Todman - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Compensation Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.0, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 3.5,

1.11. Elect Dirk Van de Put - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.6, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 6.9,

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.5, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 6.1,

3. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan '2024 Performance Incentive Plan'. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.9, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 3.6,

4. Appoint the Auditors: PwC LLP

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.98% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.25% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 95.5, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 4.2,

5. Shareholder Resolution: Audit Subcommittee Study on Company Affiliations

Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center request the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors create a study subcommittee to examine the risks and consequences of the Company's associations with external organizations, to determine whether they threaten the growth and sustainability of the Company. Ideally the Committee would issue a public report on the committee's findings by March 31, 2025, and publish it on the Company website. "Boycotts, silent or boisterous, can arise without warning. Once they gain momentum, the damage can be difficult to contain. InBev, Target and Disney are learning the hard way. Thus, it is critical the Board of Mondelēz International ("Company") focus on its own vulnerabilities before they become a liability. Concerns include: • Mondelēz has placed its iconic snack label, Oreo, in partnership with radical LGBTQ activist group PFLAG. The cookie brand sponsored the group's conference this year, whose centerpiece theme was to advocate for the placement of sexually explicit books in school libraries. • The Company lists the United Nations Human Rights Office of the High Commissioner as one of its many "Partners and Industry Memberships." UN Human Rights paints a moral equivalence between Hamas and the State of Israel, mostly downplaying the vicious and unprovoked attacks of the terrorists while more frequently condemning Israel's military response in Gaza, where the terror group uses civilians and hospitals as shields to cover its weapons stockpiles and tunnel systems."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We regularly engage outside advisors, where appropriate, to assist in the identification and evaluation of risks. Furthermore, many of our long-term public goals and associated action plans are developed in partnership with external advisors. We consider perspectives from our ongoing engagement with shareholders and other stakeholders, and we actively engage with multiple sustainability ratings organizations and indices as we advance our disclosure and promote transparency. Diversity and inclusion are cornerstones of our continued success. We strongly believe that greater diversity of perspectives, approaches, and partners brings about better business outcomes, and benefits for everyone involved. That's why we are dedicated to building a more diverse, inclusive and equitable world – socially and economically – for our colleagues, culture and communities. We also believe in inclusive marketing and work to mobilize brands and marketing partners to drive change, equity, and inclusion across a wide variety of topics and viewpoints. "
PIRC analysis: This resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the company's message internally and externally. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides customers with access to a variety of viewpoints, including those that some customers may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be acceptable or that customers should be able to donate via company's programme to any organization of their choice. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 0.6, Abstain: 1.6, Oppose/Withhold: 97.8,

MTR CORP LTD AGM - 22-05-2024

3A. Elect Christopher Hui Ching-yu - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: HKSAR Government. Mr Hui was an Administrative Officer in the HKSAR Government from 1999 to 2003 and held different positions in the Economic Development Branch, the Office of the HKSAR Government in Beijing and the Home Affairs Department.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. As the Chair of the Nomination Committee is not up for election, opposition is recommended to the members of the Committee.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3B. Elect Hui Siu-wai - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: the HKSAR Government. He was appointed by the HKSAR Government as a member of the Expert Adviser Team and he worked in a wide range of posts in the former Buildings Ordinance Office. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Elect Ayesha Abbas Macpherson - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: KPMG. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Appoint the Auditors (KPMG) and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 13.43% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

ORANGE S.A AGM - 22-05-2024

O.1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.8, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.10. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

E.17. Authorize up to 0.12 Percent of Issued Capital for Use in Restricted Stock Plans
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted stock options, each of which will give right to one share. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure. LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful

- dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

STMICROELECTRONICS NV AGM - 22-05-2024

4. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.5, Abstain: 2.6, Oppose/Withhold: 4.9,

11. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 92.8, Abstain: 1.8, Oppose/Withhold: 5.4,

13. Approve Grant of Unvested Stock Awards to Jean-Marc Chery as President and CEO
The Board proposes the approval of a new executive incentive plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted 100,000 unvested shares. Performance criteria are based on Revenue Growth, Operating Margin Ratio and Composite Corporate Social Responsibility Index. The performance conditions will be assessed over a 3-year period, and granted Unvested Stock Awards will conditionally vest after 3 years, subject to the assessment of the performance conditions. Performance targets have not been quantified at this time, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to (partial) payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

17. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. No Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.95% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

18. Re-elect Nicolas Dufourcq - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he is CEO of the investment bank of the French State. The French State holds a significant shareholding of the Company's share through STMicroelectronics Holding N.V. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, he is a member of the renumeration committee, nomination committee, and the sustainability committee. It is considered that board-level committees should be comprised exclusively of independent. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

PUMA SE AGM - 22-05-2024

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

9. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% per director on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

M&G PLC AGM - 22-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are not considered excessive as they do not exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

6. Re-elect Clare Chapman - Non-Executive Director

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.3, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

12. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP ('PwC') as the auditor of the Company,

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.66% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.75% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

15. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights

The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. However, it is noted that on the 2023 Annual General Meeting the proposed resolution received significant opposition of 14.86% of the votes and the Company did not disclose information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore abstention is recommended.

16. Authorise Issue of Equity in Connection with the Issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities

The authority is limited to one third of the Company's issued share capital. This cap can reduced to 23% of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. This resolution is in connection with the issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended

1.01. Elect D. James Bidzos - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 91.6, Abstain: 2.8, Oppose/Withhold: 5.6,

1.04. Elect Kathleen A. Cote - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee and Member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
Additionally, as the Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Additionally, At the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. 20. Elect Alain Boulet - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

21. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

23. Issue Shares for Cash
Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually.

Vote Cast: Oppose

25. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

27. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan
Authority for a capital increase for up to 1.26% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

PRUDENTIAL PLC AGM - 23-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

8. Re-elect Chua Sock Koong - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. There are serious concerns regarding the implementation of remuneration at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

14. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP ('EY') as the Company's auditor
EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

21. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

LEGAL & GENERAL GROUP PLC AGM - 23-05-2024

15. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as auditor to the Company

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.59% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.18% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. 18. Approve the Performance Share Plan (PSP) 2024

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Performance Share Plan of the Company. Under the plan employees and executive directors of the Company and its subsidiaries (the Group) are eligible to participate in the Plan. In the case of executive directors of the Company and certain other designated individuals, the Company's Remuneration Committee will decide who will participate in the Plan and how many shares they may receive. Awards made to executive directors of the Company under the Plan will be consistent with the latest Directors' Remuneration Policy approved by shareholders. Under the Plan, participants are granted a right to receive shares in the Company in the future, subject to them remaining in employment and also potentially subject to the satisfaction of performance conditions. The right (referred to as an award) can take the form of rights to free shares, options to acquire shares at an exercise price set at the time of grant (which may be zero) or shares issued or transferred at grant which are forfeited to the extent the award lapses. The receipt of shares on the vesting of an award may be subject to a performance condition set by the Committee at the time of grant. Awards will normally only vest at the end of a period set at the time of grant. The Committee will determine the extent to which the awards will vest, taking into account the extent that any relevant performance conditions have been satisfied, the underlying performance of the Company and of the participant, and such other factors as the Committee considers, in its opinion, relevant.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries. On balance, opposition is recommended.

20. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights in respect of Contingent Convertible Securities

Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of £20,000,000 representing approximately 13.37% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 25 March 2024, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) Restricted Tier 1 (RT1) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain its and the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities (or CoCos) is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. There are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Past events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilizing effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

2.1. Elect Nakatomi Kazuhide - President
Incumbent President. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

7. Amend Articles: remuneration of the Supervisory Board members
Due to growing legal and other regulatory requirements and responsibilities, the workload of committee members is constantly increasing. Against this background and taking into account the general development of committee remuneration at comparable companies, the Supervisory Board and the Management Board have come to the conclusion that the committee remuneration for committee members should be increased from the current EUR 25,000.00 to EUR 30,000.00 and the remuneration for committee chairmen should be increased accordingly from the current EUR 50,000.00 to EUR 60,000.00. As it is proposed to increase the amount payable by more than 10% per director on an annual basis, the increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

CK HUTCHISON HOLDINGS LTD AGM - 23-05-2024

3A. Elect Li Tzar Kuoi, Victor - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair and member of Nomination and Remuneration Committee. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.
In addition, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

3B. Elect Lai Kai Ming, Dominic - Executive Director
Executive Director, considered to be connected with the controlling shareholder. The level of independence on the Board is not considered to be sufficient to offset the power of an Executive director who also has connections on the Board. Where there is a controlling shareholder, it would be best practice to have an independent Board and independent Lead Director to offset the power of the controlling shareholder. As the Company does not abide by this practice, opposition is recommended.

CK ASSET HOLDINGS LIMITED AGM - 23-05-2024

3.1. Elect Edmond Ip Tak Cheun - Executive Director
Executive director. It is noted that this executive director holds non-executive positions on another listed company.
When executives hold external NED positions, it is considered that the company should disclose how much time they dedicate to the company. In particular, it is considered that they should dedicate at least 20 working days per month to the company where they hold executive functions, as this is the equivalent of a full-time employment.
As the company has failed to disclose such time commitment, abstention is recommended. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

AALBERTS INDUSTRIES NV AGM - 23-05-2024

3a. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

SPECTRIS PLC AGM - 23-05-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the inadequate board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 97.0, Abstain: 3.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Dividend accrual has been separately categorised which is welcome. Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

8. Re-elect Alison Henwood - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and designated non-executive director with oversight of sustainability matters. As such, she is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

13. Re-appoint Deloitte the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.56% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

15. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights
The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. However, the corresponding resolution at the previous AGM received opposition from 10.73% of votes cast, which is considered significant by PIRC. As the company has not disclosed steps to address the shareholders' concerns on the issue, abstention is recommended.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 10% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

12. Approve the Remuneration Paid to Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

12. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Additional Tier 1 Contingent Equity Conversion Notes
It is proposed to issue additional Tier 1 capital bonds, at an interest rate to be determined with reference to market interest rates.
The use of Tier 1 capital bonds are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. Such instrument are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

TOTALENERGIES SE AGM - 24-05-2024

1. Approve Financial Statements
Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and have been audited and certified.
Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

20. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand
In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.
A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. AIA GROUP LTD AGM - 24-05-2024

3. Re-elect Lee Yuan Siong - Chief Executive
Chief Executive.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

5. Re-elect John Barrie Harrison - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director and Member of the Nomination and Audit Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Audit Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

10. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.96% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.23% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

11B. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

INTERTEK GROUP PLC AGM - 24-05-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.6, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

2. Approve Remuneration Policy
Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. The LTIP does not utilise non-financial metrics as a means of assessing performance. The absence of Non-financial parameters to assess Executives' long-term performance is considered contrary to best practice as such factors allow the remuneration policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole and the individual roles of each of the senior executives in achieving that performance. Financial parameters are generally beyond an individual director's control. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. A mitigation statement has been made which seeks to limit the amount of any payment or benefits provided to a Director upon leaving the Company should alternative employment be secured. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.4, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 7.4,

3. Approve the Remuneration Report

6. Re-elect Andrew Martin - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. As the Company do not have a Board level Sustainability Committee. The Chair of the Board is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. Additionally, the Chair is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company. Furthermore, in the 2023 Annual General meeting the re-election of Mr. Martin received significant opposition of 13.76% of the votes. The Company did not disclose information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Overall, opposition is recommended.

16. Re-appoint PwC as the Auditors

PwC proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

18. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights

The authority is limited to 33% of the Company's issued share capital and expires at the next AGM. Within acceptable limits. It is noted that in the 2023 Annual General Meeting the proposed resolution received significant opposition of 12.1% of the votes and the Company did not disclose in formation as to how address the issue with its shareholders. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 90.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 9.2,

21. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

NN GROUP N.V. AGM - 24-05-2024

4.. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

MEDIATEK INC AGM - 27-05-2024

4.1. Re-elect Ming-Kai Tsai - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

3. Approve Adjournment of the Special Meeting to Solicit Additional Proxies
The board requests authority to adjourn the special meeting until a later date or dates, if necessary, in order to permit further solicitation of proxies if there are not sufficient votes at the time of the special meeting to approve the merger. An oppose vote is recommended to any adjournment or postponement of meetings if a sufficient number of votes are present to constitute a quorum. It is considered that where a quorum is present, the vote outcome should be considered representative of shareholder opinion.

WELCIA HOLDINGS CO AGM - 28-05-2024

2.1. Elect Ikeno Takamitsu - President
Incumbent President. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.2. Elect Kirisawa Hideaki - Executive Director
Newly appointed Executive Director. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that the election of new executives should not be supported until gender diversity is introduced on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

2.5. Elect Takahashi Kouji - Executive Director
Newly appointed Executive Director. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that the election of new executives should not be supported until gender diversity is introduced on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.10. Elect Nozawa Katsunori - Non-Executive Director
Incumbent Non-Executive Director, not considered independent as the candidate is considered to be connected to an affiliated bank. Overall Board independence is above 50%, providing a majority and sufficient quorum, and therefore the election of a further non-independent outsider is not supported.

ABC-MART INC AGM - 28-05-2024

2. Amendment of Article of Association
Authority is sought to increase the authorised share capital of the Company from the current 334,500,000 shares to 742,000,000 shares. At this time, the company has not disclosed whether successive increases would be carried out with or without pre-emptive rights. As such, the aggregate authority may exceed recommended limits for issues with or without pre-emptive rights. An oppose vote is therefore recommended.

SIBANYE-STILLWATER LTD AGM - 28-05-2024

O.1. Appoint the Auditors: E&Y
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.34% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.39% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

O.3. Elect Richard Menell - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director. Not considered independent as owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Member of the Audit and Nomination Committees. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Audit and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
In addition, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. As the Chair of the Nomination Committee is not up for election, opposition is recommended to the members of the Committee.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.4. Elect Jerry Vilakazi - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. There are no independent Directors on the Board. It is considered that the Nomination Committee has a responsibility to consider overall board independence when nominating new directors for appointment.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.6. Elect Audit Committee: Keith Rayner
Non-Executive Director, member of the audit committee. Not considered to be independent. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the audit committee should only comprise independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.7. Elect Audit Committee: Timothy Cumming
Non-Executive Director, member of the audit committee. Not considered to be independent. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the audit committee should only comprise independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.8. Elect Audit Committee: Richard Menell
Non-Executive Director, member of the audit committee. Not considered to be independent. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the audit committee should only comprise independent members. An oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.9. Elect Audit Committee: Sindiswa Zilwa
This director is considered to be independent. Support would be normally recommended. However, due to the concerns over the potential aggregate time commitments for this Director, it is believed that they may not have sufficient time for this position as member of the Audit Committee. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

O.12. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

O.13. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

S.3. Approve Fees Payable to the Board Directors Committee Members
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% per director on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

S.5. Approve Financial Assistance
It is proposed to obtain approval from shareholders to enable the company to provide financial assistance to a related or interrelated company or corporation, subject to section 44 and/or 45 of the Companies Act.
The purpose of the resolution is to confirm financial assistance to related directors (unless specifically not provided for in the company's memorandum of incorporation) and/or inter-related companies granted during the year under review and to authorise the Board to give effect to any financial assistance deemed appropriate to implement during a two-year period, starting from the date of the adoption of this resolution. While the opportunity for shareholders to approve intra group loans is welcomed, there are reservations about the potential use of this authority for loans to associates, as allowed for by these sections of the Act.
The proposal holds the likelihood of raising potential conflicts of interest between the company and its associates or employees. Also, there are concerns over the risk carried by the company's shareholders in the event of a default of a loan or guaranteed credit made to a related company in which it holds less than 50% of the capital. Based on the above, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

S.6. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

ALUMINA LTD AGM - 28-05-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
In accordance with Section 250R of the Australian Corporations Act, the directors are seeking approval of the remuneration report. The Act does not require directors to act on approval of the resolution and the vote is advisory.
The variable remuneration of the CEO for the year under review is below 200% of variable remuneration, which is welcome. There are concerns over the features of the LTIP, which are not considered appropriate such as performance conditions not running interdependently. Based on these concerns, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3B. Re-elect John Bevan - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director,Chair of the Nomination Committee and Member of the Audit and Risk Management and Compensation Committees. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company Chief Executive Officer of Alumina Limited from 2008 to 2013. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination, Compensation and Audit and Risk Management Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve Grant of Performance Rights to Chief Executive Officer (Long Term Incentive)
The Boards is seeking shareholder approval for the purposes of ASX Listing Rule 10.14 for the grant of 872,700 performance shares to the Chief Executive Officer, under the company's Long-term Incentive Plan. The proposed grant has an approximate value of AUD 645,800 which equates to 43.39% of the CEO's fixed remuneration.
Although the potential award is not considered to be excessive, concerns over the plan are raised as awards are based on performance conditions which do not run interdependently.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. LTIPs are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance. These schemes are not considered to be properly long term and are subject to manipulation due to their discretionary nature.

IPSEN SA AGM - 28-05-2024

1. Approve Financial Statements
The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

6. Re-elect Philippe Bonhomme - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee, the Compensation Committee and the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent as he is the representative of Beech Tree SA. Beech Tree SA is an indirect shareholder of Ipsen SA. It is considered that the Audit Committee, the Compensation Committee and the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

7. Re-elect Carol Xueref - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nomination Committee, member of the Compensation Committee and the CSR Committee. Not considered independent as Carol Xueref is closely linked to Highrock S.àr.l., direct shareholder of Ipsen SA. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 85.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 14.4,

11. Approve Remuneration Policy of the CEO and Executive Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.0,

12. Approve the Remuneration paid to Corporate Officers

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.4,

14. Approve the Remuneration Paid to David Loew, CEO

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to David Loew, CEO with a binding vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. META PLATFORMS INC AGM - 29-05-2024

1.01. Re-elect Peggy Alford - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the nomination committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. 1.03. Elect John Arnold - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. It is considered that the volume of issues regarding the Company suggests a fundamental problem with the corporate culture at the Board level, and raises serious concerns about supervisory failure. For these reasons, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of Board Directors.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

1.04. Re-elect Andrew W. Houston - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. It is considered that the volume of issues regarding the Company suggests a fundamental problem with the corporate culture at the Board level, and raises serious concerns about supervisory failure. For these reasons, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of Board Directors.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 85.8, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 14.2,

1.05. Re-elect Nancy Killefer - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Privacy Committee.
There are currently allegations over the company's privacy practices, and while no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are concerns about how inaction in protecting privacy of interested parties (or practice of violating them) would potentially impact the company or its stakeholders' data. The director is Chair of the Privacy Committee, who is considered responsible for overseeing data protection. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.0,

1.06. Re-elect Robert M. Kimmitt - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director. Considered independent. 1.07. Elect Hock E. Tan - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. It is considered that the volume of issues regarding the Company suggests a fundamental problem with the corporate culture at the Board level, and raises serious concerns about supervisory failure. For these reasons, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of Board Directors.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.3,

1.08. Re-elect Tracey T. Travis - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. As the Chair of the Audit Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.
Additionally, during the year under review, the company has been fined for an issue with its data management practices. While the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, is not apparent that the company has adequate data protection controls in place to protect the company and its stakeholders' data. The director is Chair of the Audit Committee, who is considered responsible for overseeing data protection.
The company has also been subject to litigation during the year under review and while no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are concerns about the potential financial and reputational impacts of this litigation on the company. The Audit Committee is considered responsible for risk oversight and as such, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the Chair of the Audit Committee.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.9,

1.09. Re-elect Tony Xu - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. It is considered that the volume of issues regarding the Company suggests a fundamental problem with the corporate culture at the Board level, and raises serious concerns about supervisory failure. For these reasons, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of Board Directors.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 87.1, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 12.9,

1.10. Re-elect Mark Zuckerberg - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.
During the year under review, the company has been fined for its community or human rights practices by the company, and while the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, these practices are considered to be examples of a corporate culture not aligned with the interests of all stakeholders. Therefore, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the Chair of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 92.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 7.1,

2. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.01% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.76% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.4,

3. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

4. Amend Existing 2012 Equity Incentive Plan

It is proposed to amend the 2012 Equity Incentive Plan. "The board of directors is asking our shareholders to approve an amendment (the Plan Amendment) to the Meta Platforms, Inc. 2012 Equity Incentive Plan (the 2012 Plan) to allow for the award of share-settled dividend equivalents and dividend equivalent units on awards of restricted stock and restricted stock units granted under the 2012 Plan".
There are concerns with the Plan as the it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive. As a result, opposition is recommended.

GLENCORE PLC AGM - 29-05-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.
Having a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term climate target is considered essential. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. It is welcome that the company the company has both these targets in place. However, it is also necessary to have both medium and long term targets to guide business planning and strategy in a way that is aligned to keeping global warming within 1.5 degrees. The absence of either of these targets (given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks for companies strategically important for the transition to net zero) is considered to fall short of best practice. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.2, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 0.8,

3. Re-elect Kalidas Madhavpeddi - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. It is noted that in the 2023 Annual general Meeting the re-election of Mr. Madhavpeddi received significant opposition of 11.16% of the votes. The Company did not disclose information as to how address the issue with its shareholders.

Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. It is welcome that the company the company has both these targets in place. However, it is also necessary to have both medium and long term targets to guide business planning and strategy in a way that is aligned to keeping global warming within 1.5 degrees. The absence of either of these targets (given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks for companies strategically important for the transition to net zero) is considered to fall short of best practice. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

5. Re-elect Martin Gilbert - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. There are serious concerns regarding the implementation of remuneration at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

9. Re-elect Liz Hewitt - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

10. Re-appoint Deloitte LLP as the Company's auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 7.89% of audit fees during the year under review and 5.62% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

12. Approve the Company's 2024-2026 Climate Action Transition Plan dated 20 March 2024.
Governance
There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.
There does not appear to be adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonization on the board of directors, and particularly there is no evidence that any of the directors on the non-executive directors on the board has significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company.
Disclosure
The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.
The concerns above are reinforced by a seeming inadequate experience or knowledge on decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company, accompanied by lack of relevant training at board level. The Climate/Transition report is not included within the annual report and accounts. The legal status of the annual report is protected to be reliable for the purpose of holding to account at AGMs, and the inclusion of the transition report in the annual report and accounts submitted to vote at the AGM make it becomes both strategically reliable information as well as forward-looking. On the contrary, excluding it from the annual report makes it an informational document and not binding the company in any way. As such, opposition is recommended.

13. Approve Remuneration Policy

Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. A welcome addition to the LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. There is no mitigation statement included within the remuneration policy. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The performance period for the LTIP is at least five years and therfore considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). The 'binding' pay policy vote has not been effective. The disappointment with the policy vote comes across in the levels of dissenting votes on remuneration reports, which disclose outcomes under previously agreed policies. When there are contentious circumstances with executives leaving the instrument that really matters is the service contract. As such, the concept of alignment with shareholders' for pay purposes is a fallacy, because the risk and responsibilities are different. Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

14. Approve the Remuneration Report

1.06. Elect Joseph L. Hooley - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: State Street Corporation where he was CEO until 2019. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Therefore a oppose vote is recommended. In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
In Addition, Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
There are further concerns relating to the lawsuit Exxon filed in January 2024 against two of its shareholders, Arjuna Capital and Follow This, who had filed a resolution with the company focused on managing climate risk. PIRC is of the view that shareholders should have the unqualified right to participate in constructive engagement with the companies in which they invest and, where necessary, utilise the filing of shareholder resolutions as part of wider stewardship activity. The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has established procedures through which companies are able to challenge the filing of shareholder resolutions, without resorting to legal action. In PIRC's view, this unprecedented lawsuit represents an assault on fundamental shareholder rights with the additional risk of initiating a system wide chilling effect. As senior independent director, Mr Hooley is considered to have responsibility of oversight of the decision to use company funds to litigate and as such an oppose vote is recommended.

1.12. Elect Darren W. Woods - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Additionally, despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors.

4. Shareholder Resolution: Revisit Executive Pay Incentives for GHG Emission Reductions

Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center request the Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors to revisit its incentive guidelines for executive pay, to emphasize legitimate fiduciary goals and consider eliminating greenhouse gas reduction targets and other scientifically dubious goals from compensation inducements. Shareholders argue the following: "The 'scientific consensus' claims anthropogenically-driven climate change will result in catastrophic impacts to the environment, to the planet, and to humans. However, research increasingly shows worst-case scenarios are unlikely, and the potential consequences of carbon dioxide emissions (aka 'plant food') have been greatly overstated. [...] Energy transition metrics are unscientific and create a breach of fiduciary duty. ExxonMobil is an oil and gas company and should focus on what it does best. The company cannot afford to be left behind because of misguided executive pay incentives.".

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "Performance is evaluated in the context of the Company's long-term strategy, and over 70% of total direct compensation is delivered in performance shares, with the longest restriction periods in any industry. Recognizing the complexity of the market in which we operate, including the risks and opportunities associated with current and future aspects of an energy transition, executive performance is evaluated across the Company's long-term strategic objectives, centered around four key interdependent performance dimensions. [...] As strategic priorities evolve, the program is adaptable. Our compensation program ensures careful consideration of current and future risks (such as those related to energy transition), driving long-term accountability as our executives make decisions to generate sustainable shareholder value across a wide range of scenarios.".
PIRC analysis: The inclusion of non-financial targets, such as greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions reduction, in executive compensation is essential for aligning corporate strategy with long-term shareholder value. By integrating GHG emissions targets into performance goals and metrics for senior executives, the company can ensure that its climate strategy aligns with its overall corporate objectives, safeguarding and augmenting long-term shareholder value. Therefore, supporting the shareholder resolution to emphasize fiduciary goals and consider eliminating greenhouse gas reduction targets into executive compensation is considered a step backwards in order to fostering sustainability and shareholder value alignment within the company. Opposition is recommended.

A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. It is proposed to amend the New TopCo's bylaws to limit personal liability of New TopCo directors and certain officers for monetary damages for breach of fiduciary duty as a director or as an officer to the fullest extent permitted under the DGCL.
The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances. While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

2.F. Amend Articles: Ratify Jurisdiction of Incorporation as the Exclusive Forum
It is proposed to amend the bylaws of the New TopCo, selecting an exclusive forum for certain litigation (Delaware). The board adopted an amendment requiring that designated categories of corporate disputes be litigated exclusively in the Court of Chancery in the State of Delaware (or, if the Court of Chancery does not have jurisdiction, the federal district court for the District of Delaware). An oppose vote is recommended on the grounds that shareholders should be free to bring a lawsuit where it is most convenient for shareholders, not the company.

2.G. Amend Articles: Allow Board to Issue Preferred Shares
It is proposed to amend the bylaws of the New TopCo to allow the Board to issue up to 100,000 shares of New TopCo Preferred Stock in one or more series, with such terms and conditions and at such future dates as may be expressly determined by the New TopCo Board and as may be permitted by the DGCL.
The issue of preference shares is not considered best practice. It is considered that companies should abide by the one-share, one-vote principle. Opposition is recommended.

2.H. Amend Articles: Allow Board to Issue New Shares Without Offering Pre-Emptive Rights
It is proposed to authorize the New TopCo Board to issue new shares of New TopCo Common Stock in the future without offering pre-emptive rights. The company notes that pre-emptive rights are uncommon in U.S. companies. However, it is considered that the proposed amendments may have an adverse effect on shareholder rights as they would allow dilution of shareholders' voting rights. Therefore, it is recommended to oppose.

PCCW LTD AGM - 30-05-2024

3A. Elect Richard Li Tzar Kai - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair and member of the Nomination Committee. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended. It is also considered best practice that the Nomination Committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by Executive Directors raises serious concerns in this regard.
Additionally, Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended overall.

3F. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcome on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 46.15% of audit fees during the year under review and 152.56% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
The authority is exceeding 10% of the share capital and expires at the next AGM. The authority exceeds recommended limits. An oppose vote is recommended.

6. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

8. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

10. Approve HKT New Share Stapled Unit Award Scheme
It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

MOWI ASA AGM - 30-05-2024

6. Approve Financial Statements and Discharge the Board
It is proposed to approve the guidelines for share-based executive remuneration with a binding vote.
Equity-based incentives at the Company will consist of shares that will vest over four years. At this time, the company has disclosed the performance criteria, targets have not been quantified, which makes an informed assessment impossible and may lead to partial payment against (partial) failure.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

5. Appointment of Auditors in Charge of the Certification Mission of Sustainability Related Information: Ernst & Young LLP
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 6.15% of audit fees during the year under review and 9.43% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The tenure of the auditor is six years, and re-election will further extend the auditors term to 12 years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Opposition is recommended.

12. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the board of directors by more than 10% on annual basis. The company has increased fees more than one year ago and the increase per year per director, since last time that fees were increased, is considered to be within guidelines. However, the company does not disclose a periodical process to review directors' fees: credit will not be given to companies that do not disclose their review of director fees at least every three years, as it denotes lack of remuneration oversight. On balance, opposition is recommended.

13. Approve Compensation Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

16. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
Non-Executive Directors receive a variable component on top of their fees. It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees, as variable compensation may align them with short-term interests and not with long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

18. Approve Remuneration Policy of the CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy of the CEO. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

19. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. 23. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand
The Board requests authority for using the previous delegation to issue shares in the event of a public offer on the share capital of the Company. This is considered an anti-takeover measure which can be used to entrench under-performing management in the event of a hostile takeover. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

27. Approve Issue of Shares for Employee Saving Plan
Authority for a capital increase for up to 1.82% of share capital for employees participating to saving plans. The maximum discount applied will be 30% on the market share price. It is considered that it is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders to provide employees with an opportunity to benefit from business success and increase their share ownership. However, the discount to be applied exceeds guidelines (20%). Opposition is therefore recommended.

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, there are concerns with the presence of LTIPs with a performance period that is considered to be short-term and with the severance package that within this policy, which would be in excess of 12 months and include bonus. 0050. Approve New Equity-based incentive plans
The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based incentive plan. Under the plan, it is envisaged the free granting of Rights to receive Shares. The number of Rights to be granted to Beneficiaries is subject to the achievement of Performance Targets over the Performance Period, following confirmation of exceedance of the Hurdle Condition, the Qualifying Conditions and compliance with the Malus Provisions (the latter for BP Beneficiaries including the Chief Executive Officer). The Rights thus granted to the Beneficiary will be converted into Shares at the end of a Retention Period, with the exception of the Rights relating to the 40% instalment envisaged for the Other Beneficiaries (including the General Manager), which will be converted at the end of Performance Period. However, the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term.

0080. Amend Article 11 (insertion of the clause related to the faculty of providing the attendance and intervention to the Shareholders' Meeting of those entitled to vote solely through the representative appointed)

It is proposed that the board will have faculty to call meetings where participation would be permitted only via the designed proxy (i.e. "rappresentante designato"). While this is permitted by law (most recently with law n. 21/2024), such meetings will prevent shareholders from participating at meetings and from proposing items for debate at the meetings. While the law maintains intact shareholders' rights to send questions (up to three days prior to the meeting) and add items on the agenda (if written communication is sent at least 15 days prior to the meeting).

Meetings are a place for debate and decision: shareholders should have the right to ask questions to the board and senior management during a meeting. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. Namely, restrictions to participation at meetings should not be used lightly and might be allower only in cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Opposition is recommended.

1. Approve Financial Statements

Disclosure is considered adequate and was made available sufficiently before the meeting. The financial statements have been audited and certified.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

3. Approve Release of Directors from Non-Competition Restriction

Approval is sought for directors to serve on the board of other companies engaged in activities within the scope of the company's business. There are concerns over the risks and potential negative impact on shareholders interest connected to directors or other officers of the Company serving for competing companies. In addition, there is insufficient description on how the Company will take measure to monitor the conflicts of interest and prevent any negative effect for the Company and ultimately its shareholders. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.
Additionally, due to inadequacies in the company's adherence to best practices in requirements, communications, or both, for its Modern Slavery Statement, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.4, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 3.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The Company received significant opposition at the last AGM to its remuneration report and has failed to disclose sufficient measures taken to address shareholders' concerns. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

12. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as the External Auditor of the Company
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.49% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.49% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

7. Approve General Share Issue Mandate
It is proposed to authorize the Board to issue shares with or without without pre-emptive rights, for up to 50% and 10% of the current share capital, respectively. The authority is valid for the next five years. While the duration is in accordance with Article 297.1.b and 506 of the Capital Companies Act, it is deemed excessive as it is believed that shareholders should decide upon such resolutions annually.

8. Issue Bonds

The Board requests shareholder authorization to issue debt, including convertible debt without pre-emptive rights, up to 10% of the share capital, over a period of five years. This is in accordance with Article 507 of the Capital Companies Act and the limit for issuance without pre-emptive rights is within guidelines. However, it would be preferred that shareholders approved or re-approved issues without pre-emptive rights annually.

9.1. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 15% and five years. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. The Company has stated that this resolution may authorise the Board of Directors to allocate all or part of its repurchased shares to remuneration schemes. However, this is not considered to be sufficient, as it includes only part of the requested authority. As no clear justification was provided by the Board regarding the full use of the authority, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 65.6, Abstain: 32.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.3,

9.2. Approve Remuneration Scheme for Employees, Executive Directors and Members of Management

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 67.7, Abstain: 32.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.2,

10.3. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, abstention is recommended.

UNIVERSAL ROBINA CORP AGM - 03-06-2024

4.1. Elect James L. Go - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Member of the Audit Committee, Chair of the Remuneration Committee and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent as the director is Chairman Emeritus and Executive Chairman of the Board until 2018. His brother, Mr. John Gokongwei, Jr., is the founder of the Company and also serves on the Board. It is considered that the Audit Committee, Remuneration Committee and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.2. Elect Lance Y. Gokongwei - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

4.4. Elect Johnson Robert G. Go Jr - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent as he is the nephew of Mr. John L. Gokongwei, Jr., the founder of the Company. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Appoint the Auditors

SyCip Gorres Velayo & Co. proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.75% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years.

There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Transact Any Other Business
Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

RIOCAN REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT TRUST AGM - 04-06-2024

1.1. Re-elect Bonnie Brooks - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director and Member of the Nominating, Environmental, Social and Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating, Environmental, Social and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

1.7. Re-elect Jane Marshall - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the People, Culture and Compensation Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the People, Culture and Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration policy, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration policy, an abstain vote is recommended is recommended.

1.9. Re-elect Edward Sonshine - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as Founder and Chief Executive Officer until 31 March 2021. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. An abstain vote is therefore recommended.

1.11. Re-elect Charles Winograd - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit, People, Culture and Compensation and Nominating, Environmental, Social and Governance Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. Although there are concerns over potential aggregate time commitments, this director has attended all Board and committee meetings during the year under review. However, it is considered that the Audit, People, Culture and Compensation and Nominating,

Environmental, Social and Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole. An Abstain vote is recommended.

3. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1a. Elect Mary T. Barra - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Furthermore, despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

During the year under review, there have been allegations over the company's labour practices. On 1 September 2023, the U.S. National Labour Relations Board announced its investigation into labour charges filed by the United Auto Workers Union. Stellantis and General Motors were accused by the union of refusing to bargain in good faith. These allegations emerged in the context of the imminent expiration of the current labour agreement covering 146,000 workers. The union called for a 20% wage increase. As of 1 September 2023, companies had failed to provide adequate counteroffers according to the union, the president of which expressed concerns about closures of plants in retaliation. Additionally, On 7 September 2023, General Motors was ordered by a federal appeals court to defend against claims by a Black safety supervisor, who said she endured years of racism and sexism at an upstate New York plant where other workers displayed Confederate flags and nooses. Billie Banks filed a hostile environment claim and in support, Circuit Judge Denny Chin said the evidence suggested "pervasive and long-term sex and race-based animosity". While no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are concerns about how potentially failing to meet expectations in labour management could impact the company's ability to retain or attract talents, as well as its reputation. It is considered that the company should not rely on compliance with law as a minimum, but aiming at best practice. Overall opposition is recommended.

1i. Elect Thomas M. Schoewe - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Additionally at the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

During the year under review, litigation against the company has reached an unfavourable verdict and there are concerns over how this could financially or reputationally impact the company. On 4 October 2022, Business Wire reported a California Jury found that General Motors knowingly hid an engine defect that resulted in excessive oil consumption, engine stalling and premature breakdown in tens of thousands of its vehicles. The lawsuit claimed that internal documents showed the company had been aware of the fault since 2009, making design changes that proved ineffective while continuing to produce the engine until 2014. Around 38,000 owners in California, Idaho and North Carolina will be compensated for USD 2,700 each. As such, it is not clear that the Audit Committee has performed adequate risk oversight to prevent this issue from leading to damaging legal action. Therefore, opposition is recommended to the election of the Chair of the Audit Committee.

5. Shareholder Resolution: To Eliminate EV Targets from Incentive Compensation Programs
Proponent's argument: The National Legal and Policy Center request the Executive Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors to revisit its incentive guidelines for executive pay, to emphasize legitimate fiduciary goals, and to consider eliminating EV production metric goals from compensation inducements. "Climate models used to predict future events "may be overly sensitive to carbon dioxide increases and therefore project future warming that is unrealistically high." In addition, EVs are plagued by economic, logistical, and ethical downsides, including: Pre-tax operating profit for the EV division at General Motors Company ("GM" or "Company") may not be positive until 2025. The division relies on politically controversial EV subsidies that may be repealed under a new U.S. government in 2025. According to an open letter to President Biden signed by almost 4,000 auto dealers, most consumers don't want EVs. Electric vehicle batteries require large quantities of rare-earth elements, which are overwhelmingly owned, mined, and processed by China. This presents a risk for U.S. companies that could become political targets of the Chinese Communist Party. Battery supply chains are tainted by forced labor. Supporting Statement: Considering the evidence that EVs are unnecessary, unprofitable, and unethical, GM's executive pay incentives are an inefficient deployment of company resources[...] . These pay incentives reduce management's strategic flexibility. We believe GM's executives should focus on maximizing financial performance by pleasing customers. GM's competitors substantially invest to meet demand for non-electric vehicles.18 The Company cannot afford to be left behind because of misguided executive pay incentives. " Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "The production and profitable sale of EVs is critical to our long-term strategy to drive shareholder value, and we believe it is essential to align management and shareholder interests through our compensation plans as we continue our transition to an all-electric future. [...] As one of the four pillars of our strategy, we remain committed to growing our EV business profitably. Based on current expectations for EV demand and production growth, strong interest in our vehicles, lower commodity prices, and other factors, we expect our U.S. EV portfolio will become variable profit positive in the second half of this year, and we continue to target low- to mid-single digit EBIT-adjusted margins on our EV portfolio by 2025. However, if demand conditions change, we'll take advantage of our manufacturing flexibility in Spring Hill and Ramos Arizpe to build more ICE models and fewer EVs, and we can adjust the mix between different EV products at Factory ZERO. In addition, while we remain committed to an all-electric future, our interim plans include bringing our plug-in hybrid technology to select vehicles in North America. Ultimately, we will follow the customer and build to demand – always with the goal of driving strong shareholder returns.

PIRC analysis: Given the severity of the climate crisis, it is considered that companies should rely to every measure possible must be taken by investee companies to facilitate a net zero carbon transition. Electronic Vehicles are not a fits-all solution as adaptation to climate change and decarbonization require several actions in conjunction. However, they are part of the solution. If anything, performance management and executive remuneration should be redesigned to include more sustainability-related targets and not less, so that the company will align the pay of its executives with the company's pledge to reduce emissions and incentivize senior executives in line with its commitments. It will not only mitigate regulatory and reputational risk in this area, which can be detrimental to company financial performance, but also motivate executives to seek long term opportunities from the energy transition. Stripping away climate-related criteria from executive compensation would mean ignoring the potential long-term costs of climate change. Opposition is recommended.

TAIWAN SEMICONDUCTOR MFG CO AGM - 04-06-2024

3. To approve the issuance of Employee Restricted Stock Awards for year 2024

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

4.1. Elect C.C. Wei - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Member of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Sustainability Committee. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. It is also considered best practice that the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Sustainability Committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Sustainability Committee by the CEO raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.4. Elect Peter Leahy Bonfield - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that Audit and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.6. Elect Moshe N. Gavrielov - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Sustainability Committee.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

1h. Elect Carol Meyrowitz - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1i. Elect Jackwyn L. Nemerov - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Corporate Governance Committee.
At this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of the Corporate Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Furthermore, as the Chair of the Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, among other issues, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 96.6, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 3.3,

2. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 8.62% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.17% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 93.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 6.3,

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: AEB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

HONG KONG & CHINA GAS CO LTD AGM - 04-06-2024

3I. Elect Lee Ka Shing - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Co-Chair of the Board, Chair of the Nomination Committee and member of the Remuneration Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as Mr. Lee Ka Shing is the son of the ultimate controlling shareholder and Chair of the Company Lee Shau Kee and brother of non-executive director Lee Ka Kit. Furthermore, he is the Vice Chairman of Henderson Land Development Company Limited, who is a controlling shareholder of the company. Moreover, he has a tenure of over nine years on the Board. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Nomination and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Opposition is recommended overall.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3II. Elect Colin Lam Ko-yin - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered to be independent as he is a director of Hopkins Limited, Rimmer Limited and Riddick Limited, which in aggregate hold a controlling share of the issued share capital of the Company, primarily through Henderson Land Development Company Limited of which he is Vice Chair and which is a controlling shareholder of the company. Moreover, he has served on the Board for more than nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3III. Elect Poon Chung Kwong - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit, Nomination and Remuneration Committees. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that the Audit, Nomination and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 20.21% of audit fees during the year under review and 33.85% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5I. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5III. Extend the General Share Issue Mandate to Repurchased Shares
The directors seek authority to re-issue shares repurchased under the authority proposed at this meeting. The effect of the proposal, if approved, the limit for issuance of shares would exceed 10% of issued share capital. Given the concerns over dilution of the shareholder rights, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

SCOUT24 AG AGM - 05-06-2024

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for over 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

BEIJING ENTERPRISES WATER GROUP AGM - 05-06-2024

3.1. Elect Yang Zhichang - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.2. Elect Jiang Xinhao - Executive Director
Newly appointed Executive Director. There are concerns that more than one-third of the Board comprises of Executive Directors, and as such it is considered that there may be insufficient independent representation to protect minority shareholder interests. An oppose vote is recommended for newly appointed executive directors, while executives will correspond to more than 33% of the whole Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.3. Elect Xiong Bin - Chief Executive
Chief Executive Officer. Chair of the Nomination Committee. It is considered best practice that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by the CEO raises serious concerns in this regard.
Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. As the Chair of the Nomination Committee is not up for election, opposition is recommended to the members of the Committee.
Additionally, there are concerns that more than one-third of the Board comprises of Executive Directors, and as such it is considered that there may be insufficient independent representation to protect minority shareholder interests. Members of the Nomination Committee are required to take overall board independence into account when suggesting new board appointments. While Executive Directors correspond to more than 33% of the whole Board, it is deemed that overall board independence has been insufficently conisdered. For this reason, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.4. Elect Geng Chao - Executive Director
Newly appointed Executive Director. There are concerns that more than one-third of the Board comprises of Executive Directors, and as such it is considered that there may be insufficient independent representation to protect minority shareholder interests. An oppose vote is recommended for newly appointed executive directors, while executives will correspond to more than 33% of the whole Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.6. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. As abstention is not a valid voting outcomes on this resolution, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 32.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 18.61% on a three-year aggregate basis. THOMSON REUTERS CORPORATION AGM - 05-06-2024

1.1. Re-elect David Thomson - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as Mr. David Thomson and his brother, Peter Thomson, are substantial shareholders of the Company as members of the family that owns Woodbridge, the Thomson family investment company. Additionally, the director served on the Board over nine years.. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. An abstain vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

1.4. Re-elect W. Edmund Clark - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Human Resources Committee and Member of the Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered independent as he acts as advisor to the Thomson family on issues that arise under Kenneth R. Thomson's estate arrangements and periodically also advises The Woodbridge Company Limited, the controlling shareholder of the Company. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Human Resources and Corporate Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Also, it is considered that the Chair of the Human Resources Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration policy, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration policy, an abstain vote is recommended.

1.6. Re-elect Michael E. Daniels - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Corporate Governance Committee and Member of the Human Resources and Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Corporate Governance, Audit and Human Resources Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Abstain

1.12. Re-elect Peter J. Thomson - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Human Resources Committee. Not considered independent as Peter Thomson is Chair of Woodbridge, the Thomson family investment company. In addition, he has been on the board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Human Resources Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

2. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 10.94% of audit fees during the year under review and 14.36% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

DWS GROUP AGM - 06-06-2024

5.1. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

5.2. Appoint the Sustainability Auditors
KPMG proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

6. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Approve Issuance of Participatory Certificates and Other Hybrid Debt Securities up to Aggregate Nominal Value of EUR 500 Million
The Board seeks authority to issue convertible bonds, warrant bonds, profit participation rights and/or income bonds (or a combination of these instruments) and to exclude subscription rights for a nominal amount corresponding to more than 10% of the share capital and for five years. As the authority would also include bonds convertible and without pre-emptive rights, the amount under this authority exceeds guidelines for issues of shares without pre-emptive rights.

1g. Re-elect William O. Grabe - Non-Executive Director
Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Finally, as the Chair of the Nomination Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

1l. Re-elect James C. Smith - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Audit Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1. Approve 2024 Share Award Scheme and Authorise Board to Grant Awards
The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options/rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. The Company does not disclose clear performance criteria but only a list of indicators, which makes it impossible to assess clearly the link between pay and performance and is deemed a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.
LTIP based schemes are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the Company (creating capital and - lawful - dividends). They act as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute Company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

1d. Elect Jay C. Hoag - Senior Independent Director

Senior Independent Director and Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered independent as he has served on the board for over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. 5. Shareholder Resolution: Corporate Financial Sustainability Proposal

Proponent's argument National Center for Public Policy Research request that the Board of Directors create a board corporate sustainability committee to oversee and review the impact of the Company's policy positions and advocacy on matters relating to the Company's financial sustainability. "In July 2022, after two full years of incessantly, and increasingly, taking public political stances (in a near exclusively hard-left manner) on a number of hotbed issues such as Diversity, Equity & Inclusion (DEI), Covid-19, climate change and LGBTQ+ – a politicization that also very noticeably found its way into Netflix's content – the Company lost nearly 1 million subscribers in a single quarter, which was the single largest drop in company history. By comparison, from the end of 2022 to 2023 to date – a year in which Netflix seemed to have partially learned from its past mistakes by shelving some woke content – both subscribers and the stock price have subsequently increased significantly. After Netflix's worst quarter to date in July, 2022, the Company very publicly canceled ultra- woke disasters including Ibram X. Kendi's Antiracist Baby, a show about supposed male pregnancy called He's Expecting, and Meghan Markle's Pearl. Additionally, Netflix also publicly stood by its decision to air a controversial new Dave Chapelle special. And since July 2022, and in light of this noticeable political shift, Netflix subscriptions have risen by 27 million and the stock price has risen over 48 percent in the past year as of December 6, 2023. The data couldn't be more clear: Netflix subscribers simply don't want to be preached on politics – especially in a radically one-sided fashion – they just want to watch good content."

Company's response The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Netflix engages in public policy advocacy for issues that could impact our business and members. Our Public Policy team, which reports directly to our Chief Legal Officer, oversees regulatory matters and government affairs globally. We publish annually a report on our political activity, which is available on our Investor Relations website. The Nominating and Governance Committee oversees and reviews this report, which includes a discussion of the Company's public policy positions, political contributions, lobbying activities and trade association memberships. As such, we do not believe an additional report on the same subject matter is necessary and would be duplicative of an existing publicly-available report."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. Increased disclosure that links charitable spending with Financial Sustainability would normally be considered to be in shareholders' interests. Nevertheless, the identification of donations to certain charities as the sole or at least a direct responsible for a company's stock price is disputable. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology with the intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company may donate. On the contrary, the fact that the company provides donations to different charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all charities or all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. On balance, a vote in opposition of the resolution is recommended.

1j. Elect David S. Regnery - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

2. Appoint the Auditors

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 7.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.28% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

PORSCHE AG AGM - 07-06-2024

6. Approve Remuneration Policy for Executive Board Members
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration.

7. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the remuneration report. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Finally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

1d. Re-elect John L. Hennessy - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of more than nine years. In addition, Mr. Hennessy was previously the President of Stanford University until 2016, to which the Company paid $5.7 million in 2015 for scholarships, research and consulting services. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in

4. Shareholder Resolution: EEO Policy Risk Report
Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research request that Alphabet Inc. issue a public report detailing the potential risks associated with omitting "viewpoint" and "ideology" from its written equal employment opportunity (EEO) policy. "Alphabet's lack of a company-wide best practice EEO policy sends mixed signals to company employees and prospective employees and calls into question the extent to which individuals are protected due to inconsistent state policies and the absence of federal protection for partisan activities. Approximately half of Americans live and work in a jurisdiction with no legal protections if their employer takes action against them for their political activities. Companies with inclusive policies are better able to recruit the most talented employees from a broad labor pool, resolve complaints internally to avoid costly litigation or reputational damage, and minimize employee turnover. Moreover, inclusive policies contribute to more efficient human capital management by eliminating the need to maintain different policies in different locations. There is ample evidence that individuals with conservative viewpoints may face discrimination at Alphabet. [...]Coupled with the fact that Alphabet has refused previous requests to increase the viewpoint diversity of its board, this type of behavior signals to employees that viewpoint discrimination is condoned if not encouraged at the highest levels. Presently shareholders are unable to evaluate how Alphabet prevents discrimination towards employees based on their ideology or viewpoint, mitigates employee concerns of potential discrimination, and ensures a respectful and supportive work atmosphere that bolsters employee performance. Without an inclusive EEO policy, Alphabet may be sacrificing competitive advantages relative to peers while simultaneously increasing company and shareholder exposure to reputational and financial risks.
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Google is an equal opportunity employer, where employment is based solely on a person's merit and qualifications directly related to professional competence. Our EEO Policy states, "Google does not discriminate against any employee or applicant" because of many enumerated categories, including "basis protected by law", and it is Google's policy to "comply with all applicable national, state and local laws pertaining to nondiscrimination and equal opportunity." This protection includes any state or local laws that provide protection with respect to political activities or affiliation. Beyond the enumerated categories in the EEO Policy, we have a Standards of Conduct Policy provision as part of our Policy on Harassment, Discrimination, Retaliation, Standards of Conduct, and Workplace Concerns (the Conduct Policy). The Conduct Policy states that all employees are held to the highest standards of ethics and conduct and prohibits failing to maintain basic standards of civility and not treating each other with dignity."
PIRC analysis: This resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the company's message internally and externally. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides customers with access to a variety of viewpoints, including those that some customers may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be acceptable. In addition, it's important to note that while promoting diverse perspectives is essential, explicitly tying viewpoint or ideology to the company's Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) policy may inadvertently introduce bias or hinder an inclusive environment. Therefore, the proposal's focus on ideological diversity within the EEO policy framework may indeed undermine the policy's very effectiveness. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 0.2, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 99.5,

6. Shareholder Resolution: Request for the Board to Adopt a Policy for Director Transparency

Proponent's argument National Legal and Policy Center request the Board adopt as policy, and amend the governing documents as necessary, to require each year that director nominees to furnish the Company, in sufficient time before publication of the annual proxy statement, information about their political and charitable giving. " Viewpoint disagreements have intensified, and businesses are caught in the middle. While shareholders should expect corporate engagement over matters that affect operations – like taxation and regulation – many companies get involved in contentious matters unrelated to their core businesses. Corporate support of potentially controversial stances, especially on social and cultural issues, can damage relationships with customers, employees, and investors, and present material risks to companies' reputation and sustainability. [...] Alphabet, Inc. [...] donated millions of dollars to groups that support lenient criminal justice policies that have destroyed many U.S. inner cities. The Company's efforts contributed to the widespread vilification of police officers and a rise in crime across the country. Corporate underperformance can be avoided if directors exercise greater risk oversight objectively. According to Alphabet's Investor Relations, "the fundamental responsibility of the directors is to exercise their business judgment to act in what they reasonably believe to be the best interests of Alphabet and its stockholders," but shareholders are uninformed about members' ideological and political views. Greater transparency is needed for shareholders to discern whether our Board suffers the partisan capture and therefore the group-think ideological blinders that have cost some companies in recent years."

Company's response The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "To facilitate the thorough and detailed evaluation of each director nominee in light of the robust criteria and processes established by our Board, our director nominees are required to furnish to Alphabet extensive disclosures about themselves relating to each of the criteria and considerations established by our Board. For example, among many other categories of information requested from our directors, director nominees are required to provide to Alphabet information regarding their outside activities and commitments, including employment history, outside directorships, involvement with charitable or non-profit organizations, relationships with business partners, related party considerations, and other affiliations (political or otherwise). All of this information is collected through our director questionnaires, which are comprehensive and aligned with best practices. Our Governance Committee uses the information received by each director nominee, consulting with the company's legal team as appropriate, to ensure that each decision furthers the best interests of the company and our stockholders. "

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding directors' donations to charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that a director provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. A vote against the resolution is recommended.

ARISTA NETWORKS INC AGM - 07-06-2024

1.03. Elect Jayshree Ullal - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the chair of the nomination committee is not up for election, members of the committee are held accountable for this lack of disclosure.
As there is no Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

4. Approve 2014 Equity Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Under the Restated Plan, the number of shares available for issuance as of the Restated Plan Effective Date will be (i) 13,200,000 shares, plus (ii) shares subject to awards under the Existing Plan that, on or after the Restated Plan Effective Date, expire or otherwise terminate without having been exercised in full, or that are forfeited to or repurchased by us, including net settlement of shares subject to restricted stock units (the most shares that can roll into the Restated Plan as a result of forfeitures is 10,039,657 shares).
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. At the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. Opposition is recommended

1C. Elect Ronald W. Hovsepian - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Member of the Compensation Committee and Member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation Committee and the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the chair of the nomination committee is not up for election, members of the committee are held accountable for this lack of disclosure.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
Additionally, as the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.
Additionally, as the Company does not have a board elected committee in charge of their sustainability policies, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, the Chair is held accountable for the fact that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability.

4. Approve 2024 Long-Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. The 2024 Plan will replace the Synchrony Financial Amended and Restated 2014 Long-Term Incentive Plan (the "2014 Plan"). As of April 5, 2024, there were 32,503,921 shares of Common Stock that remained available for future issuances under the 2014 Plan (assuming outstanding performance awards are counted at the maximum vesting level), which will terminate and cease to be available for future grants under the 2014 Plan if the 2024 Plan is approved by our stockholders.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

5. Amend Articles: exculpation of officers

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

4. Approve HubSpot, Inc. 2024 Stock Option and Incentive Plan
It is proposed to approve the HubSpot, Inc. 2024 Stock Option and Incentive Plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. There seem to be no performance criteria besides employment and tenure.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clearly performance criteria and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1.06. Elect Lydia H. Kennard - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, chair of the nomination committee and member of the sustainability committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

1.09. Elect Dustan E. McCoy - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to an aggregate tenure of over nine years. Mr. McCoy served on the Board of Phelps Dodge Corporation from 2006 until its merger with the Company in March 2007. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

1.12. Elect Frances Fragos Townsend - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Also, there are concerns over the director's potential aggregate time commitments and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.
As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.7,

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 94.9, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 4.5,

4. Amend Articles: exculpation of officers
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

TOYOTA INDUSTRIES CORP AGM - 11-06-2024

1.2. Elect Itou Kouichi - President
Incumbent President. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.3. Elect Sumi Shuuzou - Non-Executive Director
Incumbent Non-Executive Director, not considered independent as the candidate's tenure exceeds nine years

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.6. Elect Terashi Shigeki - Executive Director
Newly appointed Executive Director. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that the election of new executives should not be supported until gender diversity is introduced on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

RUBIS SCA AGM - 11-06-2024

4. Elect Nils Christian Bergene - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Audit and CSR Committee and Member of the Compensation and Appointments Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, it is considered that Audit and CSR committee and the Compensation and Appointments Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Furthermore, at the company, the Audit and CSR Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. Overall opposition is recommended

5. Elect Laure Grimonpret-Tahon - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Compensation and Appointments Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation and Appointments Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Opposition recommended.

9. Approve the Remuneration of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

15. Approve the Remuneration Policy of the Management Board
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy of the Management Board. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

22. Authorise Share Repurchase
It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 18 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

A. Shareholder Resolution: Removal of Mr Olivier Heckenroth from his Duties as Member of the Supervisory Board
Proponent's argument: Compagnie Nationale de Navigation ask the Board the removal of Mr. Olivier Heckenroth from his Duties as Member of the Supervisory Board. Shareholders argue the following: "It is essential to rethink the composition of the Supervisory Board so that it can effectively fulfil its mission of control and of representing the limited partners. [...] Finally, it was specified that, in order to ensure the best cohesion and continuity of the Board, the two new members proposed by the Management (Michel Delville and Benoît Luc) would not be appointed. The composition of the Supervisory Board would thus be reduced from 10 to 8 members comprising: - 4 women, i.e. 50% of the Supervisory Board compared with 40% of the outgoing Board, - 8 independent members, i.e. 100% of the Supervisory Board, compared with 60% of the outgoing Board.".

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board and the management argues the following: "Mr. Olivier Heckenroth and Ms. Chantal Mazzacurati have been on the Board for over 12 years. As such, they have an in-depth experience and knowledge of the Group, which is invaluable in a long-term business sector and in the context of the Group's transition phase. Following the results of his reappointment in 2023, Mr. Olivier Heckenroth resigned as Chairman of the Board and withdrew from the two specialised committees. Chantal Mazzacurati's term of office expires in 2025. However, there is no reason to dismiss her today, at a time when new members are being called upon to join the Board as it continues to recompose itself. Indeed, two non-independent members whose terms were due to expire in 2024 were not renewed, and two new independent candidates were proposed following a sound and structured selection process for nominating Supervisory Board members implemented by the Compensation and Appointments Committee."

PIRC Analysis: The director is not considered independent due to his tenure exceeding nine years. However, the board maintains a sufficient level of independence and includes over 33% gender diversity. The shareholder proposal suggests this reorganization to better represent the interests of the limited partners and ensure effective control. However, given the current sufficient level of independence on the board, opposition to this proposal is recommended.

C. Shareholder Resolution: Removal of Mr Alberto Pedrosa from his Duties as Member of the Supervisory Board

Proponent's argument: Compagnie Nationale de Navigation ask the Board the removal of Mr Alberto Pedrosa from his Duties as Member of the Supervisory Board. Shareholders argue the following: "It is essential to rethink the composition of the Supervisory Board so that it can effectively fulfil its mission of control and of representing the limited partners. [...] Finally, it was specified that, in order to ensure the best cohesion and continuity of the Board, the two new members proposed by the Management (Michel Delville and Benoît Luc) would not be appointed. comprising: - 4 women, i.e. 50% of the Supervisory Board compared with 40% of the outgoing Board, - 8 independent members, i.e. 100% of the Supervisory Board, compared with 60% of the outgoing Board.".
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board and the management argues the following: "CNN argues that this would be necessary to maintain a balanced representation on the Supervisory Board in view of the proposed new appointments. This reason is erroneous, since the composition proposed by CNN equals 50% women, which would have allowed the retention of Mr. Alberto Pedrosa, who has only been a member of the Board for two years (elected with 99% of the votes) and brings to the Board international experience and in-depth knowledge of the sector. This further illustrates the opportunism of CNN's request. [...] Well beyond the standards of good governance, the Supervisory Board will comprise over 80% independent members at the close of the next Shareholders' Meeting (compared with 60% today) if the candidates proposed or approved by the Company are elected by shareholders, which is the best guarantee of representation of all shareholders and other stakeholders.".
PIRC Analysis: The director is not considered independent due to his tenure exceeding nine years. However, the board maintains a sufficient level of independence and includes over 33% gender diversity. The shareholder proposal suggests this reorganization to better represent the interests of the limited partners and ensure effective control. D. Shareholder Resolution: Appointment of Mr Patrick Molis as a Member of the Supervisory Board for a Period of Three Years
Proponent's argument: Compagnie Nationale de Navigation ask the Board the appointment of Mr Patrick Molis as a Member of the Supervisory Board for a Period of Three Years. Shareholders argue the following: "It is essential to rethink the composition of the Supervisory Board so that it can effectively fulfil its mission of control and of representing the limited partners. [...] Finally, it was specified that, in order to ensure the best cohesion and continuity of the Board, the two new members proposed by the Management (Michel Delville and Benoît Luc) would not be appointed. Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board and the management argues the following: "The Managing Partners also note that in his request, Mr. Patrick Molis does not demonstrate or illustrate any failure on the part of the Board, nor does he comment on Rubis' strategy, performance or even activities. This request is unfounded and based on artificial grounds. In this context, his desire to radically and abruptly overhaul the Board, without prior consultation and at a time when the Board is being renewed, and his opportunistic proposal, with 5% of the share capital, to appoint half of the future members of this Board, illustrate a profound contempt for our Group. Mr. Patrick Molis's request is based on imprecise or even false assertions, likely to fuel a biased perception of the Group's financial situation, performance and governance. [...] Well beyond the standards of good governance, the Supervisory Board will comprise over 80% independent members at the close of the next Shareholders' Meeting (compared with 60% today) if the candidates proposed or approved by the Company are elected by shareholders, which is the best guarantee of representation of all shareholders and other stakeholders.
PIRC Analysis: The director is not considered independent due to his connection to a significant shareholder, Compagnie Nationale de Navigation/Molis Shareholder Grouping. Currently, the board maintains a sufficient level of independence and includes over 33% gender diversity. The shareholder proposal suggests this reorganization to better represent the interests of the limited partners and ensure effective control. However, given the board's existing level of independence and the risk that this independence could be compromised by the director's appointment, opposition to this proposal is recommended.

PLDT INC. AGM - 11-06-2024

6. Elect Artemio V. Panganiban - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and member of Audit, Remuneration, Nomination and Sustainability Committees. Not considered independent as the director serves on the Board of Metro Pacific Investment Corporation, related with Metro Pacific Resources Inc., a significant shareholder of the Company. Additionally, he has been on the board for over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. In addition, it is considered that the Audit, Remuneration and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

8. Elect Marilyn A. Victorio-Aquino - Executive Director
Executive director. It is noted that this executive director holds non-executive positions on another listed company.
When executives hold external NED positions, it is considered that the company should disclose how much time they dedicate to the company. In particular, it is considered that they should dedicate at least 20 working days per month to the company where they hold executive functions, as this is the equivalent of a full-time employment.
As the company has failed to disclose such time commitment, abstention is recommended.

11. Elect James L. Go - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as the director serves as Chair of JG Summit Holdings, Inc., a significant shareholder of the Company. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Elect Kazuyuki Kozu - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, member of the Nomination and Remuneration Committees. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: he was Director of Core Network Development Department of NTT DOCOMO, INC. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
In addition, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended to the members of the Committee.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Elect Rolando L. Macasaet - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Social Security System. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

14. Elect Manuel V. Pangilinan - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. In addition, the executive chair is member of the Remuneration and Nomination Committees. It is considered best practice that the committee should consist of a majority of independent non-executive directors, excluding Executive Directors from its membership. It is considered best practice that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by Executive Directors raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

7. Elect Ramon S. Ang - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

BEST BUY CO. INC. AGM - 12-06-2024

1b. Elect Lisa M. Caputo - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Public Policy Committee and member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Public Policy Committee and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Furthermore, As the Chair of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Public Policy Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, among other concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

1c. Elect David W. Kenny - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Compensation Committee and member of the Nominating, Corporate Governance and Public Policy Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Compensation and Nominating, Corporate Governance and Public Policy Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.
Furthermore, it is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, among other concerns, opposition is recommended.

VEEVA SYSTEMS INC AGM - 12-06-2024

1d. Elect Mary Lynne Hedley - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended overall.

3. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the Company is amended to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

1e. Elect Brian C. Cornell - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. 8. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Target's Partnerships with Charitable Contributions
Proponent's argument National Center for Public Policy Research propose that the Board conduct an evaluation and issue a report examining the risks to the financial sustainability and reputation of the Company arising from its partnerships with, charitable contributions to, and other support for divisive social and political organizations and causes – as illustrated particularly by its continued participation in and striving for high scores on the Human Rights Campaign's Corporate Equality Index. The report, prepared at reasonable cost and excluding proprietary information and disclosure of anything that would constitute an admission of pending litigation, should be publicly disclosed on the Company's website by the end of 2024. "Recent events made clear that revenue, and therefore shareholder value, drop when companies engage in overtly partisan and divisive activism – especially the sort of LGBTQ activism that is demanded of companies by the Human Rights Campaign (HRC)'s Corporate Equality Index (CEI), which seeks to sow gender confusion in children, encourage the permanent genital mutilation of confused teens, effectively eliminate girls' and women's sports and bathrooms, and rollback longstanding religious liberties. Target received a perfect score on the CEI from 2013-2022, which can only mean that it is spending shareholder assets to espouse and fund such divisive partisanship. Yet despite Target engaging in its most extreme activism to date, its CEI score in 2023 dropped for the first time in a decade, proving that no amount of Company-destroying activism will satisfy the insatiable appetite of HRC and its allies."
Company's response The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "This proposal asks the Board to evaluate and issue a report examining the risks to Target's financial sustainability and reputation arising from Target's partnerships with and charitable contributions to certain social and political organizations and causes. We do not believe that the requested evaluation or report are necessary. At the same time, consistent with the allocation of responsibilities for oversight among the Board and its Committees, and Target's transparency regarding policies, practices, procedures and reports, Target is committed to engaging in sustainable corporate practices to fortify the long-term health of its business and create long-term value for Target's shareholders. In addition, Target is presently involved in litigation on matters related to the themes of the proposal, which the proposal references expressly. The lawsuit seeks a remedy similar to the report requested by the proposal, and Target believes the proponent's relationship to the parties in the lawsuit influenced the submission of the proposal. Target intends to vigorously defend itself against this action. The Proposal would interfere with Target's ability to do so. The Infrastructure & Finance Committee also reviews the plans and strategies surrounding transactions such as partnership arrangements and, together with management and the Board, assesses potential financial risks posed by such transactions. Further, the Audit and Risk Committee conducts ongoing assessments of Target's overall risk identification, management, and mitigation processes."

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company-approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

8. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

9. Approve the Remuneration of Philippe Berterottière, Chair and CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Mr Philippe Berterottière with a binding vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

3.1. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. TOYOTA BOSHOKU CORP AGM - 12-06-2024

1.1. Elect Toyoda Shuuhei - Chair (Executive)
Incumbent Chairman. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

DOLLARAMA INC AGM - 12-06-2024

1A. Elect Joshua Bekenstein - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1B. Elect Gregory David - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent owing to his relationship with Larry Rossy, Neil Rossy and other members of the current or former management. He is Chief Executive Officer of GRI Capital Inc., a holding company controlled by Larry Rossy. Furthermore, he has been on the Board for more than nine years. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1C. Elect Elisa D. Garcia C. - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Compensation and Nominating and Governance Committees. Not considered to be independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation and Nominating and Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1D. Elect Stephen Gunn - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee and member of the Compensation Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee and the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, and among other concerns, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1E. Elect Kristin Mugford - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Compensation Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration policy, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration policy, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1F. Elect Nicholas Nomicos - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1J. Elect Huw Thomas - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and member of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that Audit and Nominating and Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. As abstention is not a valid voting option for this meeting, opposition is advised.

MONOLITHIC POWER SYSTEMS INC AGM - 13-06-2024

2. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.27% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.30% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

MONSTER BEVERAGE CORPORATION AGM - 13-06-2024

1.01. Re-elect Rodney C. Sacks - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

1.09. Re-elect Steven G. Pizula - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Member of the Nomination Committee and Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent, as this director was a Partner at Deloitte & Touche LLP, the Company's Auditor, from September 1977 to June 2018. There has not been a sufficient cool-off period. It is considered that audit and nominating committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.8, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.2,

1.10. Re-elect Mark S. Vidergauz - Senior Independent Director

Senior Independent Director, Member of the Audit Committee and Chair of the Nomination and Remuneration Committees. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Audit, Remuneration and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

1f. Re-elect John Humphrey - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

3. Approve 2017 Share Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of the Amended 2017 Share Incentive Plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

FIRST PACIFIC CO LTD AGM - 14-06-2024

3. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 7.53% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.1. Elect Anthoni Salim - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Member of the Remuneration Committee and Member of the Nomination Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he is the controlling shareholder of the Company, through his 100% ownership of the share capital of Salerni International Limited, which holds a controlling percentage of the issued share capital of the Company, through its beneficial holdings and its interest in First Pacific Investments (B.V.I.) Limited. Furthermore, the director is not considered independent as the he has close family ties with the Company. Axton Salim, a non-executive director, is the son of Mr. Anthoni Salim. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.2. Elect Philip Fan Yan Hok - Non-Executive Director

Non-executive Director, Member of the Remuneration Committee, Member of the Corporate Governance Committee and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee, Corporate Governance Committee and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors

It is proposed to authorise the board of directors to fix the Directors' remuneration for the next financial year. This will include fixed fees and variable remuneration, for executive directors. There are concerns regarding the absence of performance criteria or targets, which could lead to substantial overpayment for underperformance, as well as the possibility for discretionary bonuses.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Elect Alternate Director

Alternate directors are not considered to be best practice. While point of board continuity is taken, it is considered that co-option and subsequent ratification by shareholders at a general meeting (to be called without delay) are mechanisms sufficient for the pursue of this goal.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 10% until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

CTBC FINANCIAL HOLDING CO AGM - 14-06-2024

3. Approve 2024 Restricted Stock Awards Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

TOYODA GOSEI CO LTD AGM - 14-06-2024

1.1. Elect Miyazaki Naoki - Chair (Executive)
Incumbent Chairman. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

REGENERON PHARMACEUTICALS INC AGM - 14-06-2024

1c. Elect Arthur F. Ryan - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Corporate Governance and Compliance Committee and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the Board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Corporate Governance and Compliance Committee and the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
In addition, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Corporate Governance and Compliance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
Moreover, as the Chair of the Corporate Governance and Compliance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

FORTINET INC AGM - 14-06-2024

1.01. Elect Ken Xie - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

TESCO PLC AGM - 14-06-2024

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

It is proposed to amend the articles of association to allow an Executive Chairman and founder to serve as Board members. It is considered that the Chair of the Board should always serve in a non-executive capacity and have no connections with the Company. It is considered that the current wording of the Articles of Association are better aligned with best practice and there are concerns with the amendments. Opposition is recommended.

KADOKAWA CORP AGM - 18-06-2024

1. Reduction of Statutory Reserve
The board seeks shareholder approval for the reduction of statutory reserve. There is a reduction of the statutory reserve of JPY xm, down from JPY xm . The request for a reduction in the statutory reserve is being made with a commitment to facilitate a distribution to shareholders. An oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2.1. Re-Elect Natsuno Takeshi - President
Incumbent President. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.

WORKDAY INC AGM - 18-06-2024

1a. Elect Aneel Bhusri - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.
Furthermore, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. As the Chair and any members of the Nomination Committee are not up for election, opposition is recommended to the Chair of the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1b. Elect Thomas F. Bogan - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as Vice Chairman, Corporate Development. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1c. Elect Lynne M. Doughtie - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and member of the Compensation Committee. As the Chair of the Compensation Committee is not up for election, it is considered that the members of the Compensation Committee are responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 4.26% of audit fees during the year under review and 11.62% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: CEE. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the Company is amended to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

MASTERCARD INCORPORATED AGM - 18-06-2024

1a. Elect Merit E. Janow - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and member of the Audit Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is also considered that the Audit and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
In addition, as the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, among other concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

1i. Elect Rima Qureshi - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 98.0, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.6,

1l. Elect Lance Uggla - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit and Compensation Committees. Not considered independent as Mastercard has made a USD 20 million capital commitment to BeyondNetZero in February 2022, of which the director was then a member of the investment committee and is now its CEO. The Company has not disclosed the value of the transaction as a percentage of the beneficiary's revenue for the year, hence the transaction is considered potentially significant. It is considered that the Audit and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

6. Shareholder Resolution: Report on congruency human rights and privacy policies

Proponent's argument: The National Legal and Policy Center propose that the Board produce a Congruency Report on Privacy and Human Rights. " Mastercard Incorporated (the "Company") states that "the individual is at the center of our data practices as is our commitment to data privacy and protection." While any freedom-loving individual would likely admire such principles, Mastercard appears to implement – or rescind – them inconsistently across countries where it conducts business, and incongruently with its principles. The Chinese government has an abhorrent human rights record, as evidenced by its abuses against the Muslim Uyghurs and other ethnic minorities in Xinjiang, including forced labor programs, forced sterilizations, and torture. Chinese authorities perpetrate genocide and use emerging technologies to carry out discriminatory surveillance and ethno-racial profiling measures designed to subjugate and exploit minority populations."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "Respecting human rights is a core value that is entrenched in our mission to connect individuals, businesses and organizations around the world. We are driven by our belief that everyone should be treated with respect and decency, and are committed to upholding the highest ethical standards in everything that what we do. In April 2020, the Board adopted our Human Rights Statement, which affirms our continued commitment to human rights in our business. We believe that it is our responsibility to harness the power of our network to promote human rights globally and to address human rights violations within our spheres of influence. We actively engage with third parties to minimize the risk of our products, services and technologies being used in activities that may contribute to human rights abuses, including money laundering, terrorist financing and evasion of sanctions. We conduct periodic assessments and due diligence activities, working to prevent, mitigate and remedy human rights abuses."

PIRC analysis: The requested report on discrepancies between policies and practice in global operations in countries, particularly in geopolitical conflicts or under oppressive regimes, appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's involvement on human rights controversial activities globally and focuses on geopolitical threats with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views on international relations be represented within the company's global activities, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of global operations conducted fairly, and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues to avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation. A report on the human rights impact of the company's operations that may be potentially complicit in human rights abuses would be in shareholders' interests, but such a proposal does not seem to be in the interest of the proponent. Rather, this proposal appears to use human rights as an argument to ask the company to withdraw from doing business in certain countries, in a view that considered it to be a geopolitical threat to the US and without actual interest in human rights in that country.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 1.1, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 98.3,

7. Shareholder Resolution: Report on congruency human rights policies

Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research request that the Board produce a human rights congruency report. "Following the barbaric terrorist attack on innocent Israeli civilians and tourists by Hamas, Palestinian Islamic Jihad (PIJ) and other 'lone wolf' terrorists on October 7 – the most lethal day for Jews since the Holocaust – a number of NGOs, some of which are human rights organizations that exist for the sole purpose of responding to such tragedies, failed to condemn Hamas and failed to help Israeli victims and their families. Then those same organizations rushed to vilify Israel when it defensively responded, and some also directly assisted terrorists in Gaza. Mastercard contributes to, has a partnership with or provides a donation platform for every single one of those organizations. Shareholders deserve to verify if and to what extent Mastercard is using shareholder assets to fund and promote terrorist-allied organizations."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "At Mastercard, we leverage our assets, core competencies and employee volunteer efforts to create a positive social impact in our communities and accelerate inclusive economic growth around the world. Our Environmental, Social and Governance Report (ESG Report) indicates that in 2023, the Fund provided $74 million in grants supporting work in 54 countries, across three focus areas of financial security, small business growth and impact data science. The Fund also handles the third party-administered employee match program, which amplifies Mastercard employees' giving efforts by matching employee donations across a wide range of charities that employees personally support. In addition, through our diverse portfolio of donation technologies and cause-related marketing campaigns, we bring consumers and our customers together to create positive and meaningful impact. Mastercard has robust policies and procedures to ensure that our community giving initiatives are executed in accordance with the highest standards of ethics and legality."

PIRC analysis: The requested report on discrepancies between policies and practice in global operations in countries, particularly in geopolitical conflicts or under oppressive regimes, appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's involvement on human rights controversial activities globally and focuses on geopolitical threats with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views on international relations be represented within the company's global activities, as opposed to promoting transparency and accountability around the potential benefits of global operations conducted fairly, and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues to avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance and Corporate Responsibility Committee and the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Furthermore, as the Chair of the Governance and Corporate Responsibility Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, they are held responsible for the fact that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. The minimum vesting period is one year and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

TOYOTA MOTOR CORP AGM - 18-06-2024

1.1. Elect Toyoda Akio - Chair (Executive)
Incumbent Chairman. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity. Opposition is recommended.
Additionally, despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

4.1. Elect Fu Yuan Hong - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.2. Elect Wen Yuan Wong - Executive Director
Executive director. It is noted that this executive director holds non-executive positions on another listed company.
When executives hold external NED positions, it is considered that the company should disclose how much time they dedicate to the company. In particular, it is considered that they should dedicate at least 20 working days per month to the company where they hold executive functions, as this is the equivalent of a full-time employment.

As the company has failed to disclose such time commitment, abstention is recommended.

RIVIAN AUTOMOTIVE INC AGM - 18-06-2024

1a. Re-elect Jay Flatley - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Appoint the Auditors
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 13.11% of audit fees during the year under review and 14.36% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

HONDA MOTOR CO LTD AGM - 19-06-2024

1.1. Elect Mibe Toshihiro - President
Incumbent President. After this meeting, the gender diversity at Board level is below 30% and no plan has been disclosed on how to meet this target. Regardless of the level of independence, it is considered that it is the responsibility of the most senior Board members to ensure that there is adequate gender diversity on the Board. Although there are no specific legal requirements or recommendations in this market, it is considered that companies should not rely on minimum standards, but aim to best practice, including in gender diversity.
Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

MOTOR OIL CORINTH REFINERIES AGM - 19-06-2024

3. Elect Board: Slate Election
Election of directors is bundled in one resolution. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. Regardless of the independent representation on the board, full biographical disclosure for the candidates (whose names are disclosed) has not been provided at this time, preventing from providing an informed assessment. This is considered a serious lack of disclosure and an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approve Profit Distribution to Board Members and Management
It is proposed to distribute part of the Company's FY2023 Net Income, as an exceptional performance bonus to the personnel and to Board of Directors members (independent members are excluded), as recognition of their contribution in achieving 2023 profitability. While profit-sharing is welcomed, there are concerns as the company does not disclose the quota established for executives. On this basis, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

12. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

KINGFISHER PLC AGM - 20-06-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 99.1, Abstain: 0.9, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 84.6, Abstain: 5.9, Oppose/Withhold: 9.5,

9. Re-elect Sophie Gasperment - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given that the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.0, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.7,

10. Re-elect Rakhi Goss-Custard - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director member and Newly appointed Chair of the Remuneration Committee. There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 2.0,

12. Re-appoint Deloitte as the Auditors of the Company
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.57% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.17% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

17. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 81.4, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 18.5,

18. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

SUMITOMO MITSUI TRUST HLDGS AGM - 20-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 55 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 100.8%. which at more than 100% payout, is considered unwise given the capital maintainence needs of the company.

eBAY INC. AGM - 20-06-2024

1g. Re-elect Paul S. Pressler - Chair (Non Executive)
Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. As the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended. Additionally, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

10. Approve the Remuneration Report of Corporate Officers
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Corporate Officers with a binding vote. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there are no claw back clauses in place, which is against best practices. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve the Remuneration Report of Hinda Gharbi, CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to Hinda Gharbi, CEO with a binding vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The company has disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, but there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On balance, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

14. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors
It is proposed to increase the amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% per director on annual basis. The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

17. Approve Remuneration Policy of the CEO
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy of the CEO. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw-back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

1c. Elect Tony Xu - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.
Furthermore, during the year under review, there have been allegations over the company's labour practices. On 31 October 2023, the United Nations (UN) made public letters and requests to some US corporations like Walmart, DoorDash and Amazon regarding allegations that low wages paid to workers trapped workers in cycles of poverty, leaving them dependent on government aid. Led by Olivier Schutter, the UN's special rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights, the requests addressed inadequate pay and the misclassification of workers as "independent contractors" which deprived workers of benefits such as minimum wage guarantees. There are concerns about how potentially failing to meet expectations in labour management could impact the company's ability to retain or attract talents, as well as its reputation. It is considered that the company should not rely on compliance with law as a minimum, but aiming at best practice. It is recommended to hold the CEO responsible for these concerns. Overall opposition is recommended.

BIOGEN INC. AGM - 20-06-2024

1a. Elect Caroline D. Dorsa - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Corporate Governance Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as she has served on the Board for over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.
Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.
Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance records at board and committee meetings are not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment of the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Corporate Governance Committee is responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the Chair of the Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, among other concerns, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 95.7, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 4.2,

4. Amend Articles: Officer Exculpation
It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the Company is amended to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.
While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 86.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 13.6,

5. Approve Biogen Inc. 2024 Omnibus Plan
The Plan is presented as an omnibus plan, which means that bundled within the same official plan there are various incentive plan elements aimed at rewarding different groups of employees, officers and executives. However, it is noted that the Compensation Committee retains the power to select employees to receive awards and determine the terms and conditions of awards (and also note that 'management employees' appear most likely to be the principal beneficiaries of the Plan). On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 94.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.6,

6. Approve the Biogen Inc. 2024 Employee Stock Purchase Plan
It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 99.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

B2GOLD CORP AGM - 20-06-2024

1.3. Re-elect Kevin Bullock - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

1.4. Re-elect Liane Kelly - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Compensation Committee and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. Not considered independent as the director has a relationship with the Company, which is considered material. The director was previously employed by the Company as CSR Advisor from 2011 to June 2020. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

1.5. Re-elect Jerry Korpan - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director, Member of the Audit, Corporate Governance and Nominating Committees and Chair of the Compensation Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Audit, Corporate Governance and Nominating and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole. Also, it is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, an abstain vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

2. Appoint the Auditors
PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 6.36% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.43% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Abstain

3. Approve B2Gold Stock Option Plan
It is proposed to approve a stock option plan for employees and Executive officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. There seem to be no performance criteria besides employment and tenure.
Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clearly performance criteria and conditions. On balance, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, abstention is recommended. However, as abstain vote is not possible for this resolution, opposition is recommended.

OMRON CORP AGM - 20-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus

Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 52 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 253.3%. which at more than 100% payout, is considered unwise given the capital maintainence needs of the company.

CENTRAL JAPAN RAILWAY CORP AGM - 21-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 15 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 7.4%. which at less than 15%, is below what shareholders could reasonably expect.

CEZ AS AGM - 24-06-2024

5. Approve Charitable Donations
The board proposes to donate CZK 220m for charitable purposes. The total amount of funds that the Company can use to give donations in 2025 will be CZK 220 million. This fund amount includes the value of any non-monetary donations provided. The company estimates that approximately CZK 90 to 110 million of that amount will be transferred to the ČEZ Foundation's account in 2025 in connection with projects undertaken through the ČEZ Foundation. In connection with the operation, construction and renewal of ČEZ's generating facilities and distribution grids, we anticipate that, in order to maintain a favorable relationship with the regions concerned, or for ad-hoc projects where the need is greatest, a portion of the approved volume of funds of approx. CZK 110 to 130 million will be provided to selected entities directly by ČEZ, a. s., not through the ČEZ Foundation. As the Company's explanation is not considered sufficient, and due to the excessive nature of the proposed funds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve Fees Payable to Members of the Supervisory Board
No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.
Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision. Abstention from voting this resolution is recommended.

SEINO HOLDINGS CO AGM - 26-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 57 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 119.4%. which at more than 100% payout, is considered unwise given the capital maintainence needs of the company.

INFOSYS LTD AGM - 26-06-2024

3. Elect Nandan M. Nilekani - Chair (Non Executive)
Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is Not considered independent as he is a co-founder of the Company and former Chief Executive Officer between 2002 and 2007. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.
In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

GEK TERNA AGM - 26-06-2024

5. Discharge the Auditors
In this market, auditors discharge may prevent lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. As a consequence, releasing auditors from liability will weaken the governance framework and introduce great risks for investors. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Appoint the Auditors
Grant Thornton proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

1e. Elect Jen-Hsun Huang - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings

1g. Elect Harvey C. Jones - Non-Executive Director
Non-executive Director, Member of the Audit Committee and Member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Audit Committee and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

1i. Elect Stephen C. Neal - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.
As the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

1j. Elect A. Brooke Seawell - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the Chair.
At the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed.
Also, at the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the Chair of the Audit Committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation
The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADC. Based on this rating, opposition is recommended.

3. Appoint the Auditors

ENEOS HOLDINGS INC AGM - 26-06-2024

3.1. Re-elect Miyata Tomohide - President
Incumbent President. It is considered the responsibility of the most senior Board member to ensure that there is appropriate outside oversight of Board decisions. As there are three or more outside directors, it is considered that there is adequate outside presence on the Board.
Despite having some climate targets, the company has neither a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 or an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target nor a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

IHI CORP AGM - 26-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 50 yen per share is proposed, however, the Company made a net loss in the year under review. It is considered unwise to pay a dividend in this instance given the capital maintenance needs of the company.

12. Shareholders' Proposal: Partial Amendment to the Articles of Incorporation (Noto Peninsula Earthquake Relief Fund)
Proponent's argument: It is proposed to establish a new chapter in the Articles of Incorporation to allocate 25% of the company's surplus funds to a relief fund for victims of the 2024 Noto Peninsula Earthquake, through the Japanese Red Cross Society. The company had previously planned to build a nuclear plant in the earthquake-affected area. By contributing to the relief fund, the company would express sincere remorse and gratitude to the local community for opposing the construction, thereby avoiding a potential disaster.
Company's response: The Company recommends a vote to oppose. The Company states it has already made significant contributions to the relief efforts and believes that establishing such a provision in the Articles of Incorporation is unnecessary and redundant.
PIRC Analysis: While supporting disaster relief is commendable, embedding such specific financial commitments into the Articles of Incorporation may not be practical or flexible enough to address future needs and strategic financial management. Opposition is recommended.

1c. Elect Grace Hui Tan - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee, Member of the Compensation Committee and Member of the Nominating Committee. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: PwC, where Ms. Tan has over 19 years experience as an Audit Partner, until 2020. It is considered that audit committee, the compensation committee and nominating committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
Additionally, at the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. 3i GROUP PLC AGM - 27-06-2024

1. Receive the Annual Report
The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level accountability for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders, however the annual report fails to address these concerns adequately and therefore this resolution cannot be supported.

Vote Cast: Abstain Results: For: 98.7, Abstain: 1.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report
Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee falls below the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive.
The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

10. Re-elect Coline McConville - Non-Executive Director
Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Remuneration Committee. There are serious concerns regarding the implementation of remuneration at the company and it is considered that chair of the remuneration committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 96.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 3.3,

13. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as Auditor of the Company
KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.90% of audit fees during the year under review and 12.79% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.
In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).
The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state.
PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

18. Issue Shares for Cash for the Purpose of Financing an Acquisition or Other Capital Investment
The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose Results: For: 97.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.5,

19. Authorise Share Repurchase
The authority is limited to 10% of the Company's issued share capital and will expire at the next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

ODAKYU ELECTRIC RAILWAY CO AGM - 27-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 19 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 13.2%. which at less than 15%, is below what shareholders could reasonably expect.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Amendment of Article of Association
changing board structure to the audit and supervisory committee systemThe board proposes to alter the board structure to change from a "Statutory Corporate Auditor" structured company (Kansayaku-setchi-gaisha) to a three-committee structure (Shimei-iinkai-tou-Setchi Gaisha), with committees responsible for audit, nomination and remuneration/or to an Audit and Supervisory Committee structured company (Kansa-tou-iinkaci-Setchi Gaisha), - a development that is welcomed. Under this model, and in line with the Japanese Commercial Code, each of the board committees should consist of a majority of independent directors. There is sufficient independent [outside] representation on the board.

7. Shareholders' Proposal: Purchase of Treasury Shares
Proponent's argument: Shareholders propose the Purchase of Treasury Shares. "This proposal aims to enhance corporate value and shareholder value through a revision of capital allocation. The Company has sufficient financial capacity to implement enhancing returns to shareholders and appropriate capital allocation. However, the Company has not purchased treasury shares on a meaningful scale since the fiscal year ended March 31, 2008, and furthermore, as of December 2023, the Company held treasury shares amounting to 7.9% of the total number of shares issued and outstanding. This is contrary to the Company's corporate governance guidelines, which state that the Company will consider purchasing and cancelling treasury shares as returns to shareholders."
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "This proposal is based solely on the fact that "purchase and cancellation of treasury shares" out of the "purchase and cancellation of treasury shares and payment of dividends" listed as an option for consideration of shareholder return measures in the Company's Corporate Governance Guidelines, and thus it is contrary to the Guidelines. This proposal does not take into consideration the "payment of dividends" based on the stable dividend track with no declines and proactive dividend payments, which the Company has been implementing for many years as the best way to return profits to shareholders."
PIRC Analysis: It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares for 2% and for 12 months. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear; cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided; an oppose vote is recommended.

HELLENIQ ENERGY HOLDINGS S.A. AGM - 27-06-2024

5. Approve the Remuneration Report
It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to executives with an advisory vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, although there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

Vote Cast: Abstain

8. Approval of the overall management for the financial year 1.1.2023-31.12.2023 in accordance with article 108 of Law 454/2018 and discharge of the auditors
In this market, auditors discharge may prevent lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. As a consequence, releasing auditors from liability will weaken the governance framework and introduce great risks for investors. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 10.27% of audit fees during the year under review. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

10. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped. There are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is against best practices. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. On balance, opposition is recommended based on the lapse of Malus and Clawback provisions.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan
The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.
LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Approve the one-time free distribution of shares of the Company to the non-executive members of the Board of Directors
The Board of Directors proposes to the shareholders to approve the the special one-time granting of ten thousand (10,000) shares of the Company (common, registered, with voting rights) per non-executive member of the Board of Directors (including the independent non-executive members but excluding the Chair of the Board, who has a mandate agreement with the Company). The Company shall distribute the shares in view of the end of the Board's term, in recognition of the significant contribution of the Board's non-executive members to the successful implementation of the Group's strategic plan "Vision 2025", including the demerger of the Company's. The shares' distribution shall take place free of a retention obligation. The proposal is in accordance with the legal and regulatory framework in force and the Company's approved Remuneration Policy and is in line with the practice applied by other large capitalization Greek companies.

It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees, as variable compensation may align them with short-term interests and not with long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Establishment of a share buyback program, in accordance with article 49 of Law 4548/2018
The Board of Directors proposes to the shareholders to approve the establishment of a share buyback program (treasury stock) by the Company under the terms and conditions of article 49 of Law 4548/2018. The program shall concern the repurchase of up to 1,000,000 treasury stock of the Company, which correspond to a percentage up to 0.327% of the Company's paid-in share capital, at a price range between €5 (minimum price) to €15 (maximum price) per share, for a period of 24 months after the date of the General Meeting. The treasury stock that will be acquired by the Company shall be used for distribution to the executives of the Company or/and of affiliated companies or/and non-executive Board members of the Company. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14.3. Elect Theodoros-Achilleas Vardas - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination and Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members including the Chair, regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Overall, Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

PUBLIC POWER CORP OF GREECE AGM - 27-06-2024

2. Approval of the overall management of PPC S.A. for the 22nd fiscal year (1.1.2023 until 31.12.2023) and discharge of the auditors
In this market, auditors discharge may prevent lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. As a consequence, releasing auditors from liability will weaken the governance framework and introduce great risks for investors. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Appoint the Auditors
EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 13.41% of audit fees during the year under review. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

8. Establishment of a share buy-back programme by PPC S.A. and authorization to the Board of Directors.
It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the establishment of a buyback program and to authorise the Board of Directors to implement it. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Announcements and other issues.
Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

FAR EASTERN NEW CENTURY CORP AGM - 27-06-2024

3.1. Elect Douglas Tong Hsu - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.
Additionally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3.2. Elect Johnny Hsi - Vice Chair (Executive)
Executive Director, considered to be connected with the controlling shareholder. The level of independence on the Board is not considered to be sufficient to offset the power of an Executive director who also has connections on the Board. Where there is a controlling shareholder, it would be best practice to have an independent Board and independent Lead Director to offset the power of the controlling shareholder. As the Company does not abide by this practice, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

KANSAI PAINT CO LTD AGM - 27-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 22 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 13.4%. which at less than 15%, is below what shareholders could reasonably expect.

DAI NIPPON PRINTING CO LTD AGM - 27-06-2024

1. Appropriation of Surplus
Japanese companies seek specific authority for the appropriation of any surplus in earnings and this authority includes any distribution of a dividend. The approach to such resolutions rests on the degree to which the dividend payout ratio is in line with the level of distribution which investors could reasonably expect. A dividend of 32 yen per share is proposed, and the dividend payout ratio is approximately 14.4%. which at less than 15%, is below what shareholders could reasonably expect.

Despite having some climate targets, the company does not have both a clear commitment to net zero by 2050 and an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Having a target for net zero by 2050 at the latest shows overall commitment of the company to adequately manage climate risks. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change not having both adequate short term target and a net zero by 2050 commitment is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

5. Shareholder Resolution: Implementation of share buyback
Proponent's argument: Shareholders propose that the Board conduct a share buyback. "We believe that the management's lack of awareness of the cost of capital is one of the reasons for the weak share price performance in recent years. As of December 31, 2023, the Company held 179.5 billion yen in financial assets (132.5 billion yen in cash and deposits, 5.0 billion yen in marketable securities, and 42.0 billion yen in investments in securities such as cross-shareholdings). In addition, the Company is investing 25.8 billion yen in real estate to build a showroom in Minami-Aoyama, Tokyo. While we agree on an investment to strengthen contact with consumers, we believe that, in this case, it is far from justifiable from a cost of capital perspective, given the size of the investment.
Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. "We have formulated a medium-term business plan, New ERA 2025 (hereinafter, "Plan"), which covers the period from fiscal 2022 to 2026 . Under the Plan, we are making steady progress toward "Advancement in addressing social challenges" through "Expansion of business scale," and "Revolution of corporate structure." In the Plan, we have positioned improvement of capital profitability as one of our most important management issues. Accordingly, we will steadily grow profits by promoting our high-value-added product strategy and implementing rigorous cost reductions to further strengthen our earning power, and improve capital efficiency through flexible share buybacks. Through these measures, we aim to achieve ROE of 8 percent in fiscal 2026, ending March 31, 2026 (the final year of the Plan) and 10% or higher during the period of the next medium-term business plan."

PIRC Analysis: It is proposed to authorise the Board to purchase Company's shares until next AGM. This resolution will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, an oppose vote is recommended.

HELLENIC TELECOMMUNICATIONS ORGANISATION AGM - 28-06-2024

3. Approval of the overall management of the Company and exoneration of the Auditors for the fiscal year 2023
In this market, auditors discharge may prevent lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. As a consequence, releasing auditors from liability will weaken the governance framework and introduce great risks for investors. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Appoint the Auditors
Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 44.43% of audit fees during the year under review. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. Therefore, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

8. Approve Remuneration Policy
It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Authorize Board or Directors to Participate in Companies with Similar Business Interests
With this resolution, the Board is seeking authority that Members of the Board of Directors and to other Executives of the Company may participate in the Boards of Directors and/or in the Management of companies of the Group, having similar purposes to those of the Company. This authority is not sought for defined appointments. As a consequence, if approved, this authority may lead to potential time commitment concerns. In addition, an excessive number positions within the same company may develop excessive familiarity and trust, which would eventually hinder an effective independent oversight by directors (while there is already insufficient independent representation on the Board). On these grounds, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Publication to the Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Company, according to article 97 par. 1 (b) of Law 4548/2018, of any cases of conflict of interest and agreements of the fiscal year 2023 which fall under article 99 of Law .4548/2018
Such proposals are considered on the basis of whether they are deemed fair, whether they have been adequately explained, and whether there is sufficient independent oversight of the recommended proposal. It is considered that the Company has disclosed insufficient details of the proposal and there is insufficient balance of independence on the board, therefore, abstention is recommended.

Vote Cast: Abstain

11. Elect Konstantinos Nebis - Chair & Chief Executive
Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11.2. Re-elect Dominique Leroy - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is Executive in Deutsche Telekom AG, a significant shareholder of the Company. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board. Therefore, opposition is recommended.

JOLLIBEE FOODS CORP AGM - 28-06-2024

8a. Elect Tony Tan Caktiong - Chair (Executive)
Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. In addition, Chair of the Remuneration Committee. It is considered best practice that the committee should consist of a majority of independent non-executive directors, excluding Executive Directors from its membership. Member of the Nomination Committee. It is considered best practice that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by Executive Directors raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8b. Elect William Tan Untiong - Executive Director
Executive Director. Member of the Audit and Nomination Committee. It is considered best practice that these committees be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by Executive Directors raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8c. Elect Ernesto Tanmantiong - Chief Executive
Chief Executive Officer. Member of the Nomination Committee. It is considered best practice that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Membership of the committee by the CEO raises serious concerns in this regard and therefore an oppose vote is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8d. Elect Ang Cho Sit - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and Member of the Remuneration Committee. Not considered independent as they serve on the board of Hyper Dynamic Corporation, a substantial shareholder of the Company. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Remuneration Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Appoint the Auditors: Sycip Gorres and Velayo
SyCip Gorres Velayo & Co proposed. Non-audit fees represented 29.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 24.34% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Other matters
Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8e. Elect Antonio Chua Poe Eng - Non-Executive Director
Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent as he is the brother-in-law of the three executive directors of the company, Messrs Tan Caktiong, Tanmantiong and Tan Untiong. He also serves on the board of Hyper Dynamic Corporation, a substantial shareholder of the Company. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8f. Elect Artemio V Panganiban - Non-Executive Director
Non Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent as the director has a cross directorship with another director. The director is an Advisor of Double Dragon Properties Corp, where Executive Director William Tan Untiong serves as an Executive Director. Additionally, he has been on the board for over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.
Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8g. Elect Cesar V. Purissima - Senior Independent Director
Senior Independent Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: SGV & Co. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. In addition, it is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. An oppose vote is recommended.
